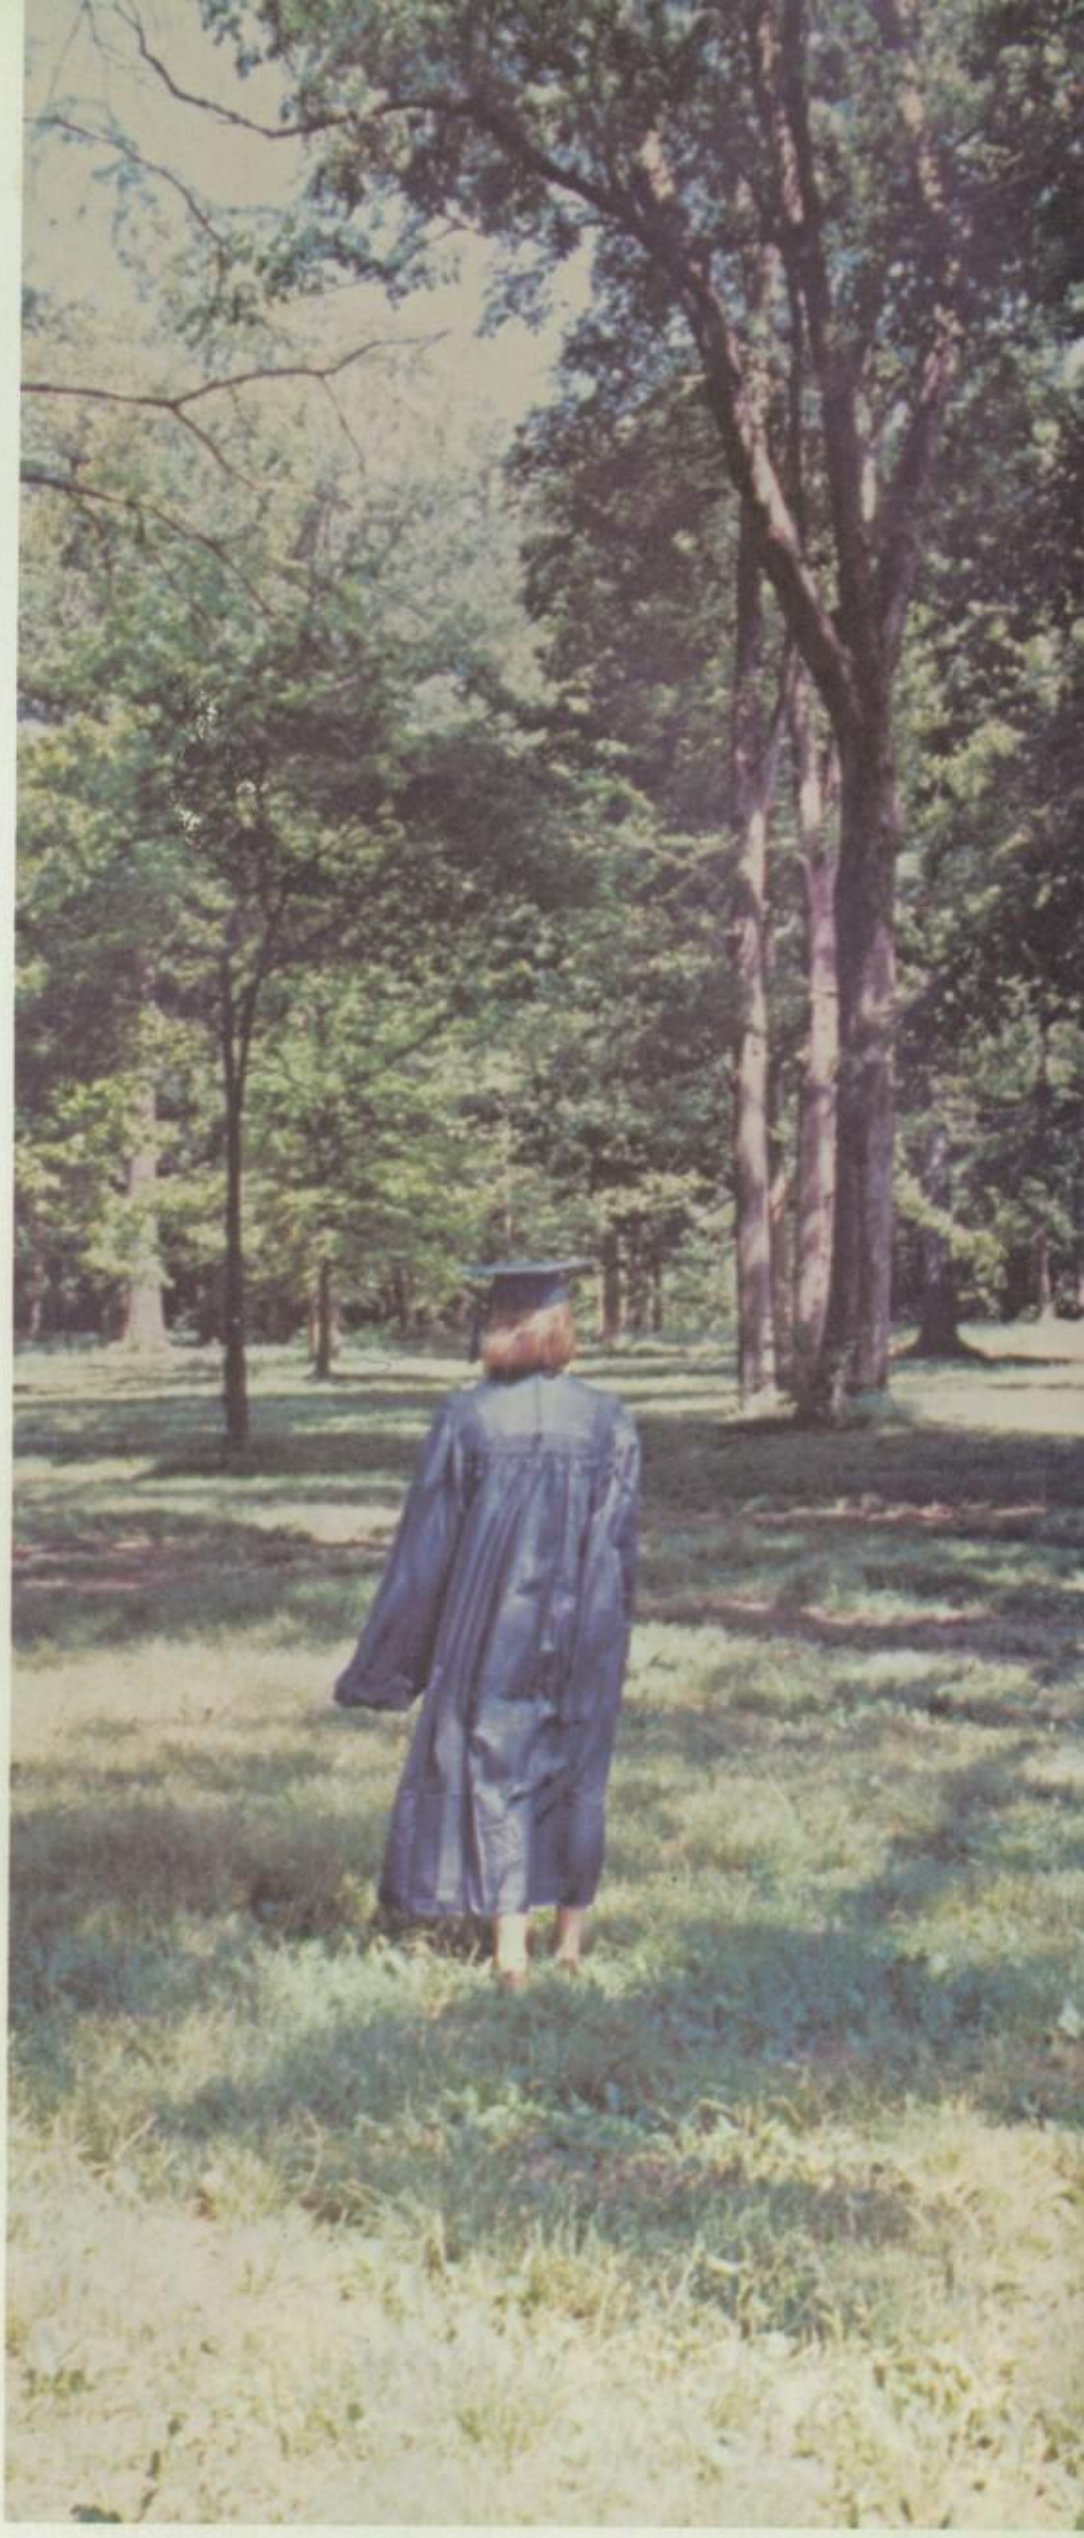
How many times has one heard it said that today's youth are tomorrow's leaders? Yet, if one honestly observes today's youth he need not be told. The adolescent's progress toward being a mature, responsible citizen is made evident by his daily striving toward that goal. His part is essentially like that of any other American citizen—a part that must be played not by imitating or conforming, but by honestly striving for excellence in whatever he seeks to accomplish. In order for our society to achieve greatness, each individual must realize the need for high standards of performance and seek to achieve those standards within his own limits. He must remember that whoever he is and whatever he is doing, some kind of excellence is within reach. Then he must attempt to achieve that excellence. For our society is bettered not only by the fulfillment, but also by the pursuit of excellence.

"And there is excellence in art, in music, in craftsmanship, in human relations, in technical work, in leadership, and in parental responsibility."

John W. Gardner



. . . In Art

Creative Overton students strive for excellence in various aspects of the art field; not only in the art class but wherever there is a need for artistic ability.

In Music and Craftsmanship

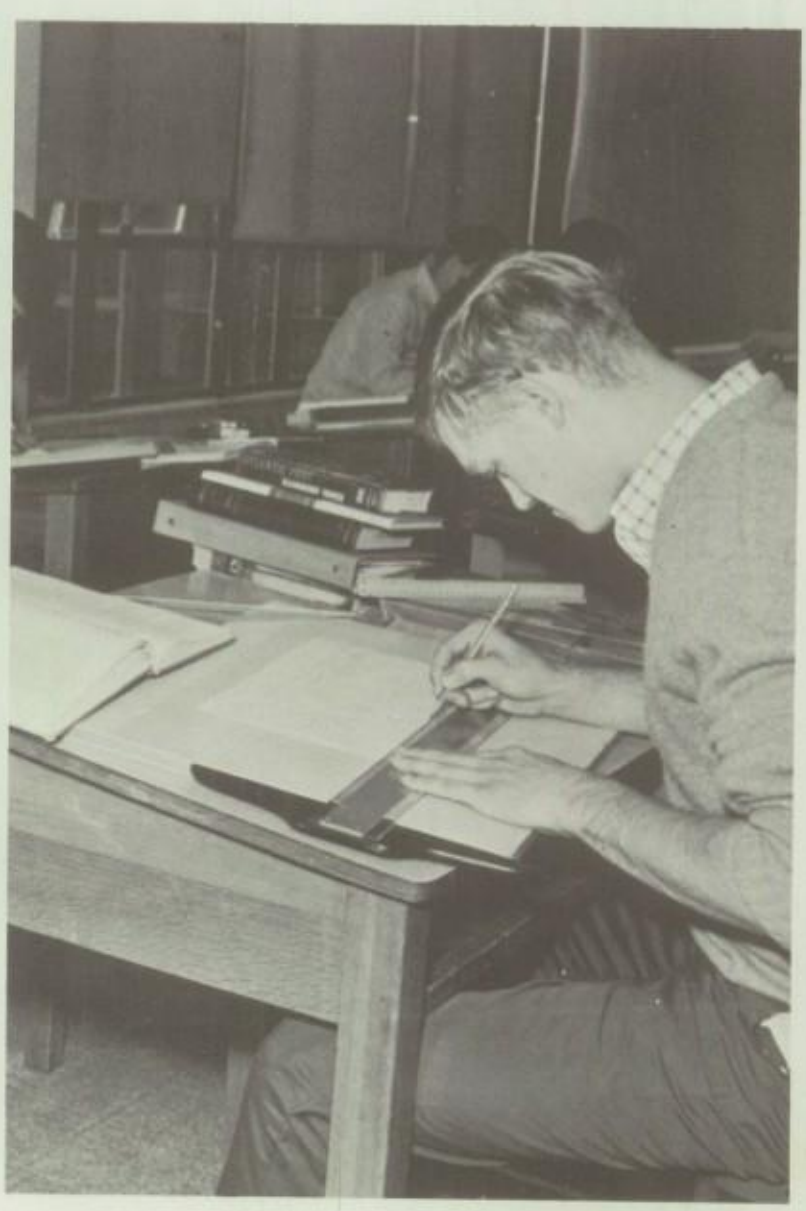
An important quality of individuals is that of creativity. Both in craftsmanship and music, Overton students have the opportunity to develop the compelling force which drives artists to paint, musicians to compose, and architects to build. In developing these creative talents, students incessantly strive not for mere fulfillment of their obligations, but for something much more important; for the self-satisfaction which accompanies a job well done. In working toward these self appointed goals students are striving for their own ideas of excellence.

In Human Relations

Recognizing the worth of each individual is the first step in building good human relations. Until this is achieved one cannot work effectively with his fellow man. Realizing that many of the most challenging and enjoyable tasks are those which require the combined talents and efforts of many, one must strive to work cooperatively with others if true excellence is to be achieved. Personal fulfillment, as well as survival, is dependent upon one's ability to communicate with his fellow man. This principle is illustrated daily behind the doors of Overton High School.

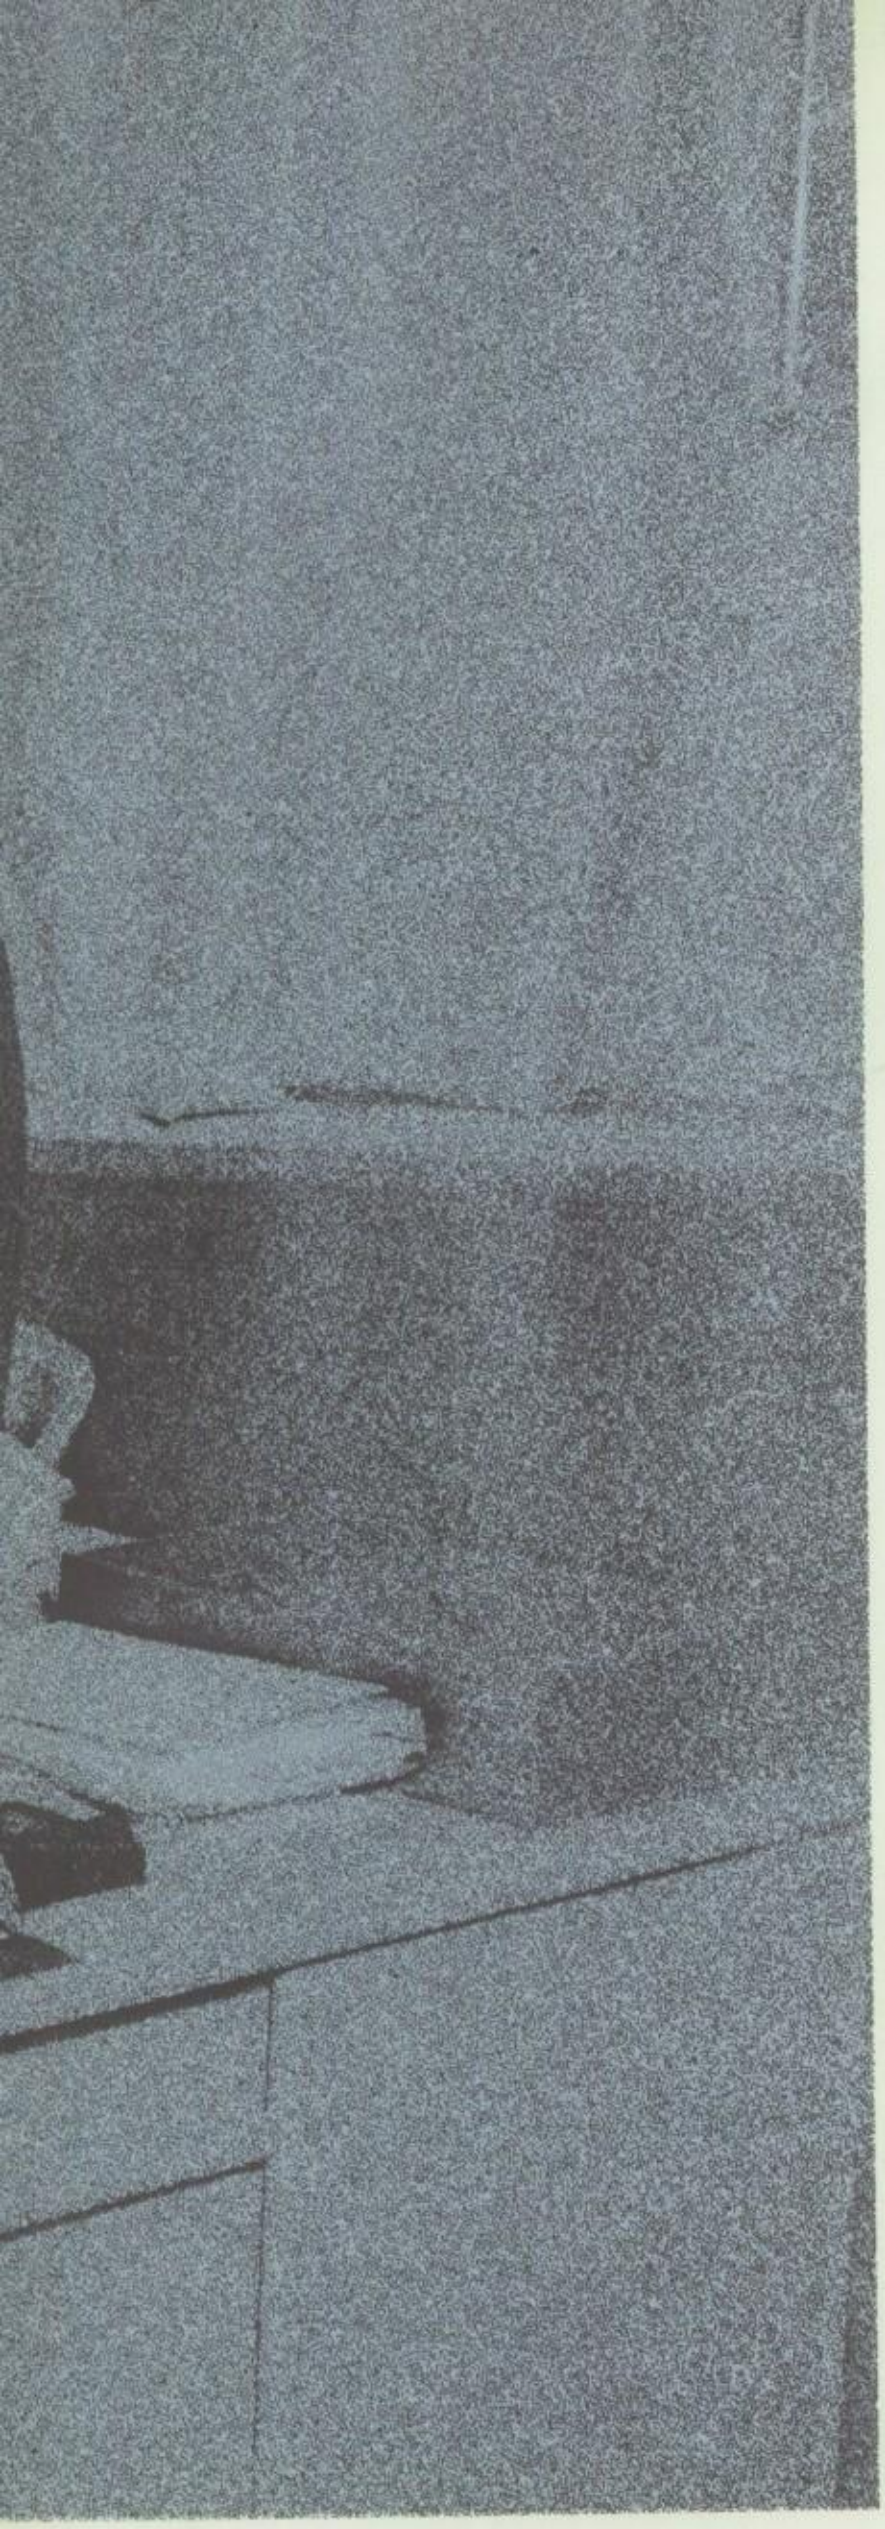
In Vocational Skills

Needless to say, no two people have the same potential. In working toward reaching the goal of true excellence one must first determine his individual capabilities. Overton's classes for those interested in technical work provide excellent study for persons interested in trade related subjects. This opportunity to improve on one's innate abilities is enjoyed by Overton students who wish to develop their capabilities to their fullest extent.



In Leadership

It has been said that leaders are born not made. It would appear that leaders develop because they possess certain essential qualities necessary for effective leadership. However, these intrinsic traits alone cannot produce an effective leader. They must be supported by knowledge, experience, and respect from those who are to be led. Our Student Council officers have proved themselves to be worthy of their distinction as leaders. Class responsibilities provide opportunities for other types of leadership.



Curriculum

Gateway to Knowledge . . .

In order to progress individuals must be well informed. Overton's library offers a wealth of material from which students may constantly increase their knowledge. Whether one is preparing a research paper, studying, or just reading for fun, the library is a welcome retreat from the noise and scurry of school life. With the help of Mrs. Bernadini, the librarian, and her library helpers, any student can explore the mysteries and truths which can be revealed through books.

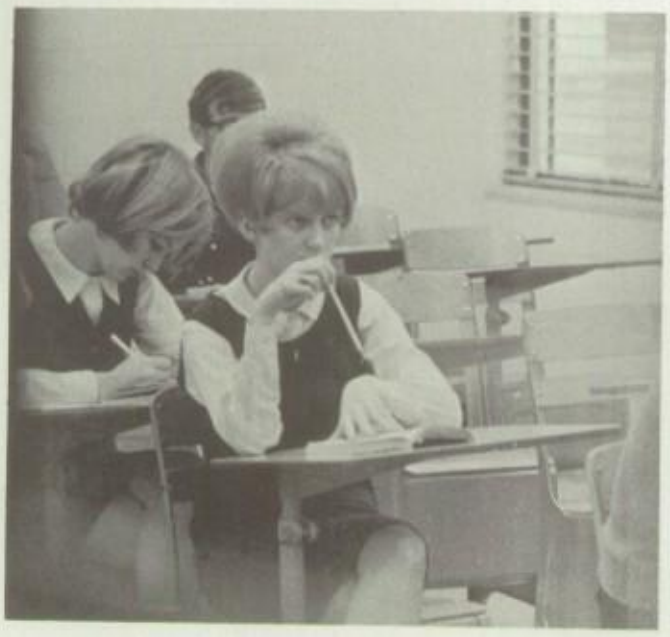
The Library

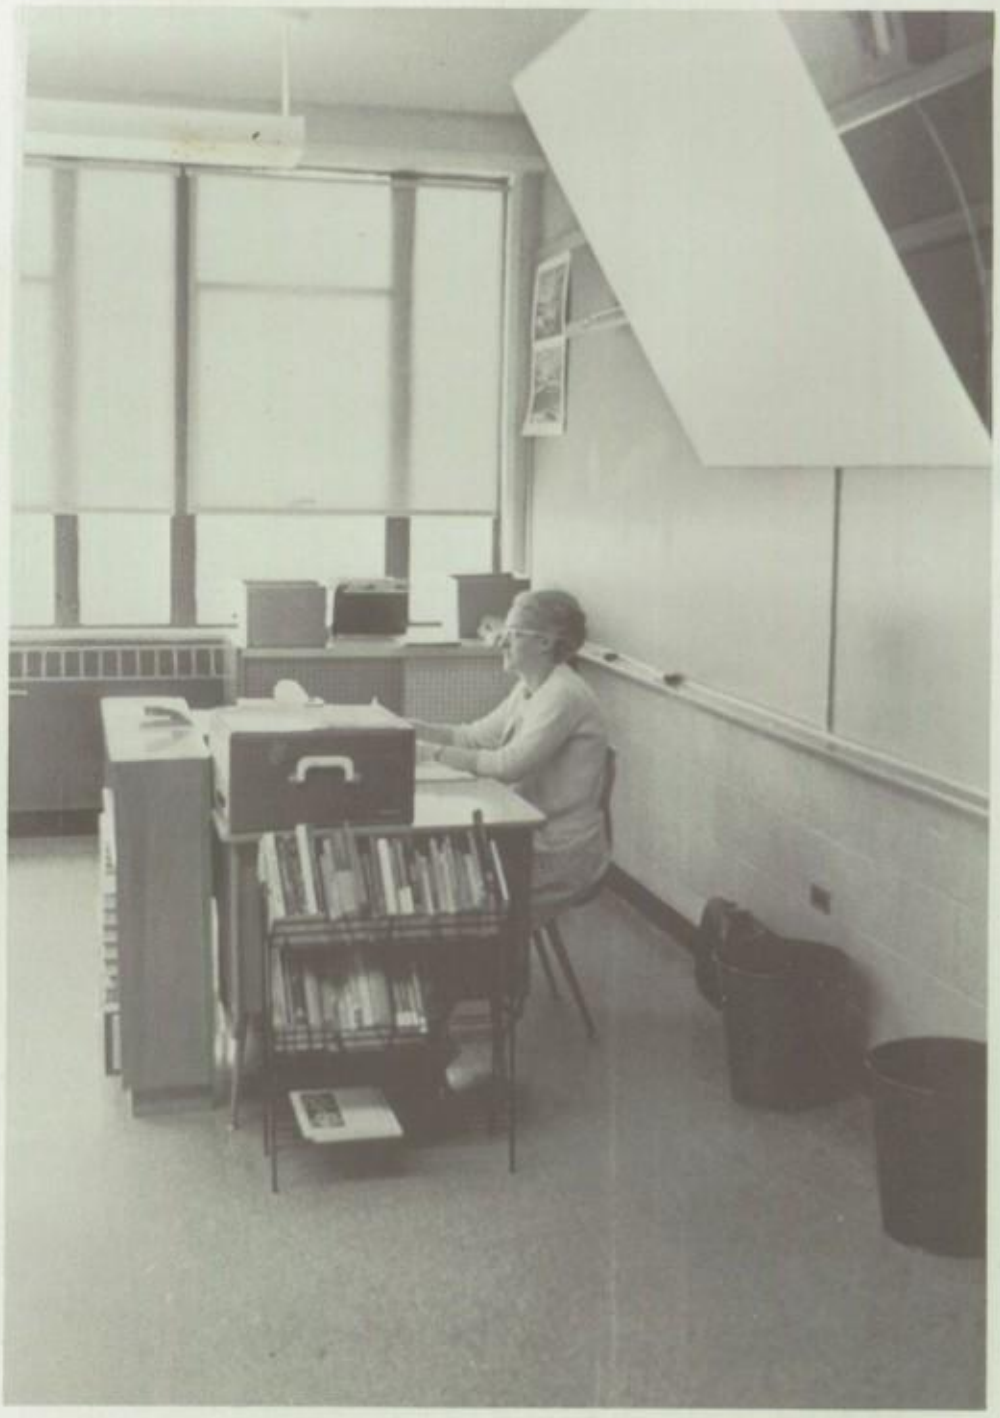
Self Discovery

English today is an all-around, all purpose course; it is concerned not only with grammar, literature, and composition, but also with cultural appreciation, world affairs, ettiquette, and public speaking. Through the study of great literature, the student is able to discover himself, to realize his basic needs, and to find his ultimate goal in life.

The advanced Placement English course goes into greater depth in the study of certain works of literature. Emphasis is placed on the humanities approach to communication and development. It is an enriched program that teaches the student to develop his ability to think and write effectively.

Self Discovery and Expression





English is an introduction to life itself: through its study one learns how to accept responsibilities and how to support his beliefs. It is vital for an intelligent person to be able to express his ideas clearly, vividly, and concisely. Walk into a senior English class one day. You might find the pupils vigorously and animatedly discussing the problems facing teenagers today, or you might find a group discussion of A Tale of Two Cities, or you might find the teacher reviewing the fundamentals of grammar or composition. Whatever it is, there is on the faces of these young Americans an expression of avid interest.

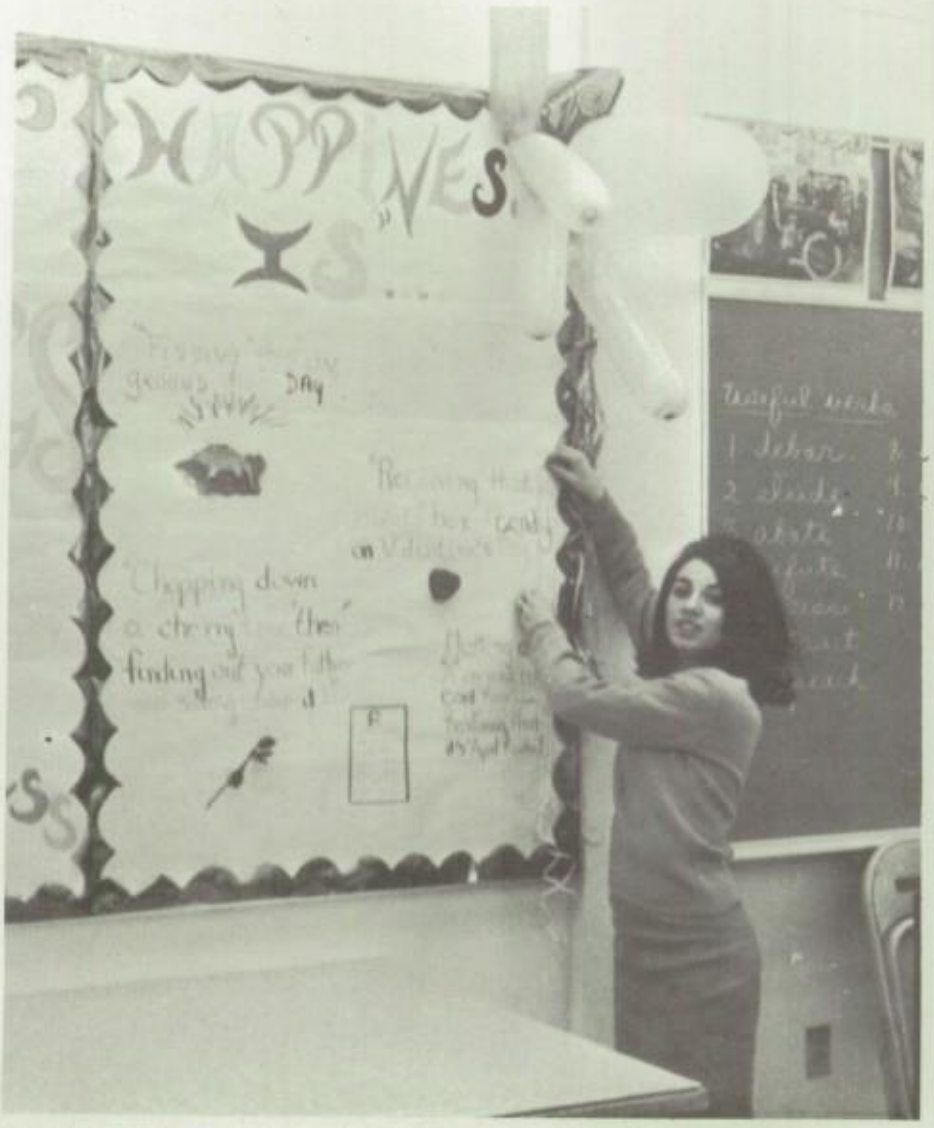
WILLIAMS

American Literary Heritage

The Eleventh grade English course includes an intensive review of grammar followed by theme development. America's literary heritage is studied by pupils and vocabulary building is a part of the program.

Accelerated English is designed for those students who have a strong English background and an unusual interest in their native language and literature. An attempt is made in this class to deepen and broaden the study of English. There is more reading, more writing, and more intense study of every phase of the English program.

Study of World Literature



Excellence in English can only come from the untiring efforts of students to achieve their capacities in appreciation, comprehension, and composition of good English. Sophomore English classes analyze the novel and the students probe into all types of literature. Along with a general survey of World Literature, Shakespearean Drama is studied in detail. Perhaps some will remember only the credit they received for taking this required subject, but those who work for excellence in English reap the reward of truly being acquainted with the language so important to their everyday lives, and with those universal concepts expressed in the great pieces of literature.

Languages —

Fast-paced living, world-shaking crises—these provide the introduction we have received to the world we are soon to enter. Outside the walls of Overton, there is a challenge awaiting us which we must be prepared to meet and conquer. This is the "year of the gaps." 1968 has faced us with a family relation gap, a generation gap, and even a "credibility" gap. Communication is the only key to closing these gaps and accepting all people. The Overton language department offers us an excellent opportunity. By becoming better acquainted with the languages of France, Spain, ancient Rome, and even that never-failing challenge, English, we can become acquainted with the people of those places. By opening this door of understanding, a completely new world is entered. The ability to communicate offers the ability to understand and appreciate others of all different origins. It is to this purpose that the language teachers of Overton are dedicated. They offer the challenge—it must be accepted and fulfilled to the greatest extent.

Keys to Understanding and Communication

A Conducive Environment

French

Application of Acquired Knowledge

"Allons enfants de la patrie!" Do these words ring a familiar note? If you take French they probably do, for these are the words to the French national anthem. Singing, group reports, plays, Mardi Gras parties—what more can you ask from a class?

Three years of French are offered at Overton, and they are three of the most interesting courses one can take. In addition to the basic language skills, varied customs, geographical features, and the charming people of France are studied.

Some of the highlights of Miss Krause's French Club this year were Christmas carolling and a late snack at the Dobbs House, slides of Europe, and several guest speakers, such as Marie Burdallet, an exchange student from Grenoble, France. La Jeunesse, sponsored by Mrs. Heffernan presented a program at Alliance Francaise, carolled for Boy's Town at Christmas and had a luncheon at the Top of the Hundred Club in addition to monthly meetings.

Latin: A "Dead" Language

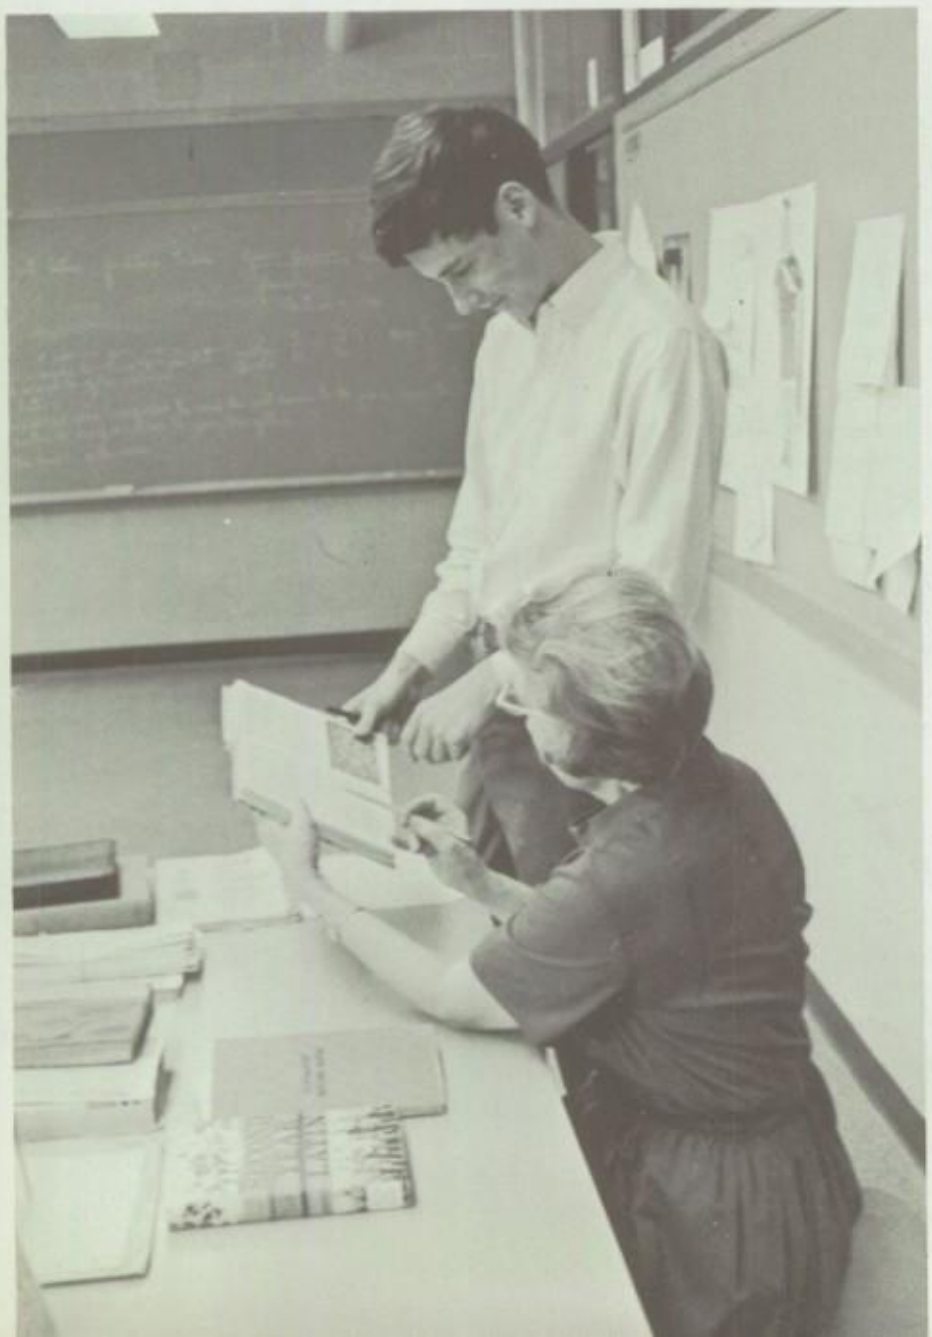
Even though many people consider Latin a dead language, the Romans of the Overton Latin Department take a different approach to this classical tongue. "Scientia crescat vita colatur" (Let knowledge be increased, let life be enriched) is the keynote to both of the Latin Clubs, Societas Romana and Orbis Latinus, sponsored by Mrs. Mary Kay Heffernan and Mrs. Iris Hilliard respectively. The underlying tone of "Living Latin" is reflected in the many activities carried out during the school year.

Roaming with the Romans to the Eternal City via Air France; historical and colorful lectures by scholars as guest speakers; the dramatization of How to Succeed in Latin Without Really Trying (a skit prepared for competition in the Tennessee Junior Classical League Convention) and other plays featuring Caesar, Cicero, and Virgil by the membership.

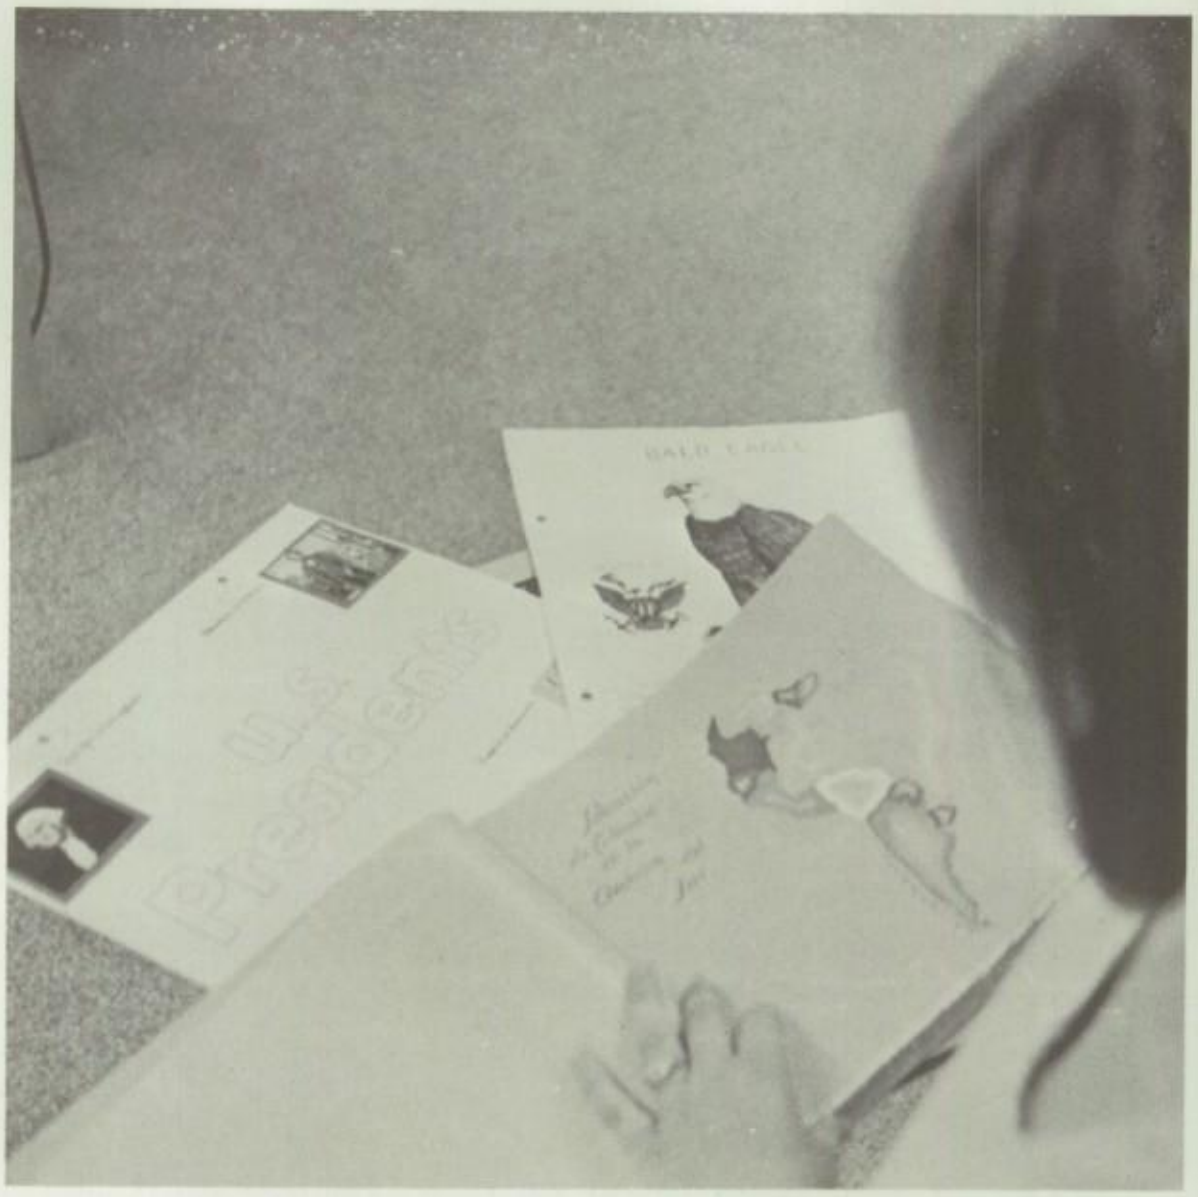
Membership into the Latin Club automatically entitles each student to life membership into the American Junior Classical League together with an honorary pin for this organization. Particularly significant this year was Overton's rare privilege to host the Tennessee JCL state convention in Memphis. The activities of the year are always climaxed with participation in the exciting Mid-South Latin Tournament, followed by the traditional Cena Romana (Roman Dinner).

Each year some member of the Latin Department receives the Helen Bogart Award on Honor's Day. To qualify for such an award the member must be a fourth-year Latin student who excels in leadership and service and maintains Honor Roll Academic Standards. This year Blaire Volman received this honor "magna cum laude."

Revived in the Classroom



Spanish



Spanish, the first language of the inhabitants of Mexico, Spain, and Latin American countries, and the second tongue of educated people in many other lands, is available on three levels at Overton High School. Never before has the need for fluency in a second language been more evident. Along with a steadily rising cost of living, there has been a similar rise in educational standards. Because of this, goals must be set higher to meet the many obstacles which will confront the world of tomorrow.

The Overton Spanish Department, under the direction of Mrs. Mildred Grooms and Miss Neva Kyser, is doing much to prepare the leaders of tomorrow. Regular textbook study is complemented with various other activities. Group reports are given, slides are shown, in addition to the language skills that are studied.

The Spanish Club provides ample opportunities to learn more about our neighboring countries. An occasional guest speaker may "enlighten" the students, besides the many Spanish-speaking countries which are visited by slide previews. The highlight of this year's "learning by experience" was a sponsored trip to Panchos, a restaurant specializing in Spanish food.

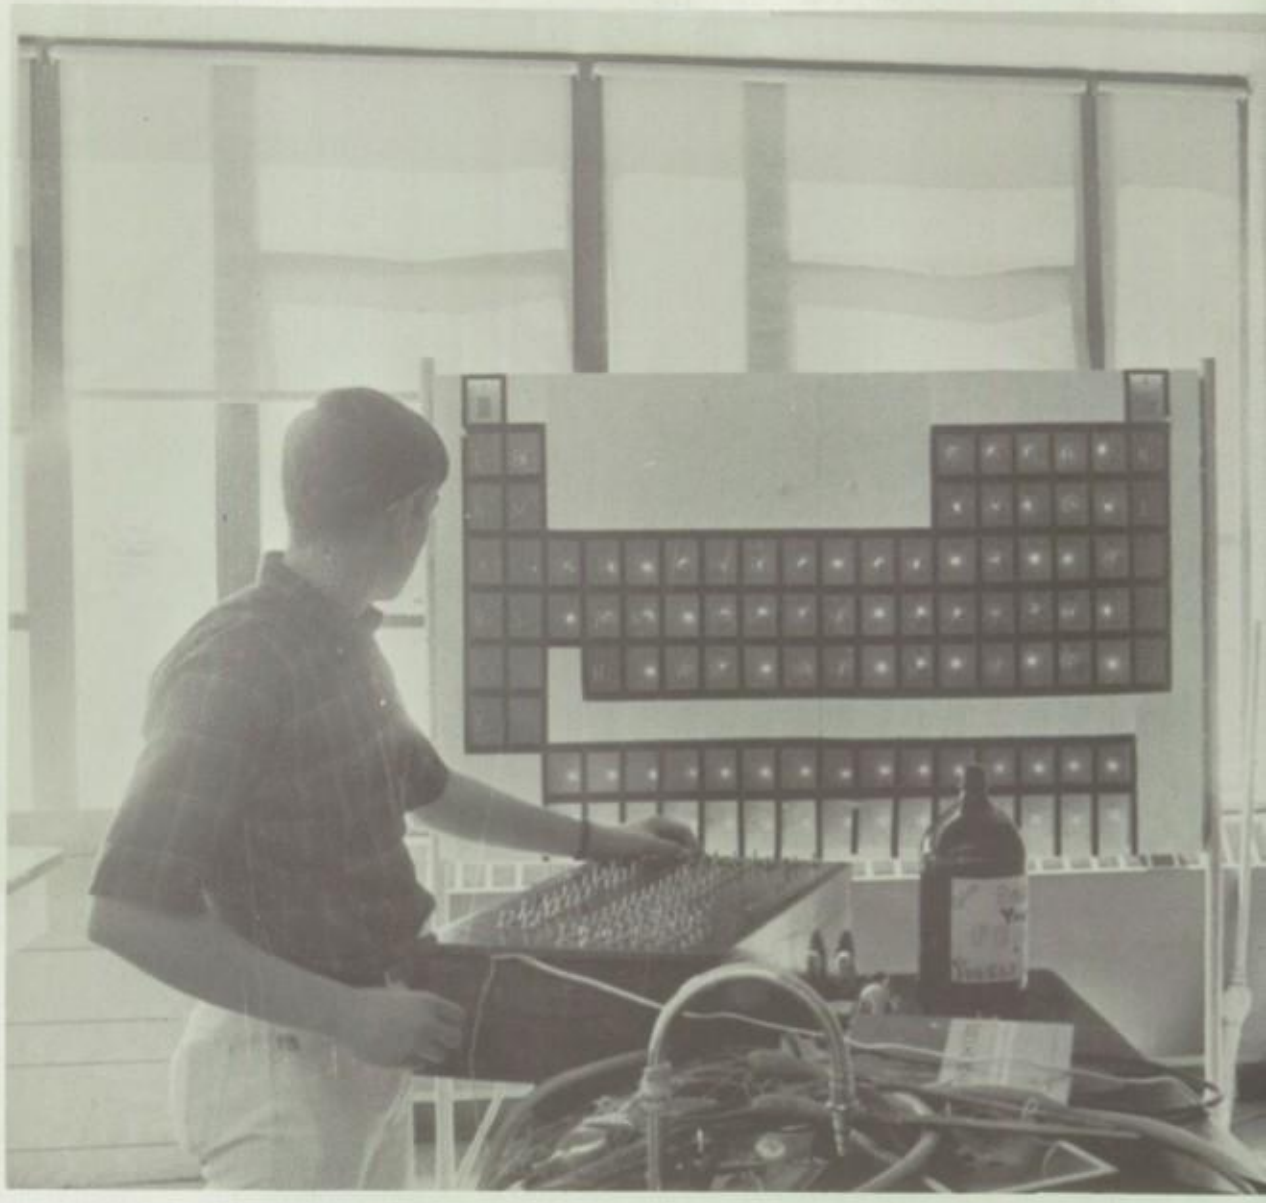
Learning by Experiencing

Science . . .

Among the many fields of study offered at Overton are three courses in the science department—biology, chemistry, and physics. All these courses concern the basic questions and fundamentals of life: How did we come about? What are we doing here? How can we improve our way of living? By learning the fundamentals of science, we not only enrich our own lives but also the lives of many others.

Ranking high among the "long-looked-forward-to" projects of the science department is the biology "bug" collection. Also in our memory remain those chemistry lab experiments, ones which Overton students will not soon forget. An extremely commendable project, constructed by the physics department, was an electrically wired periodic chart.

If preparation for the future continues to consist of gaining this much-needed knowledge, we shall indeed be equipped to meet the future.



To Seek

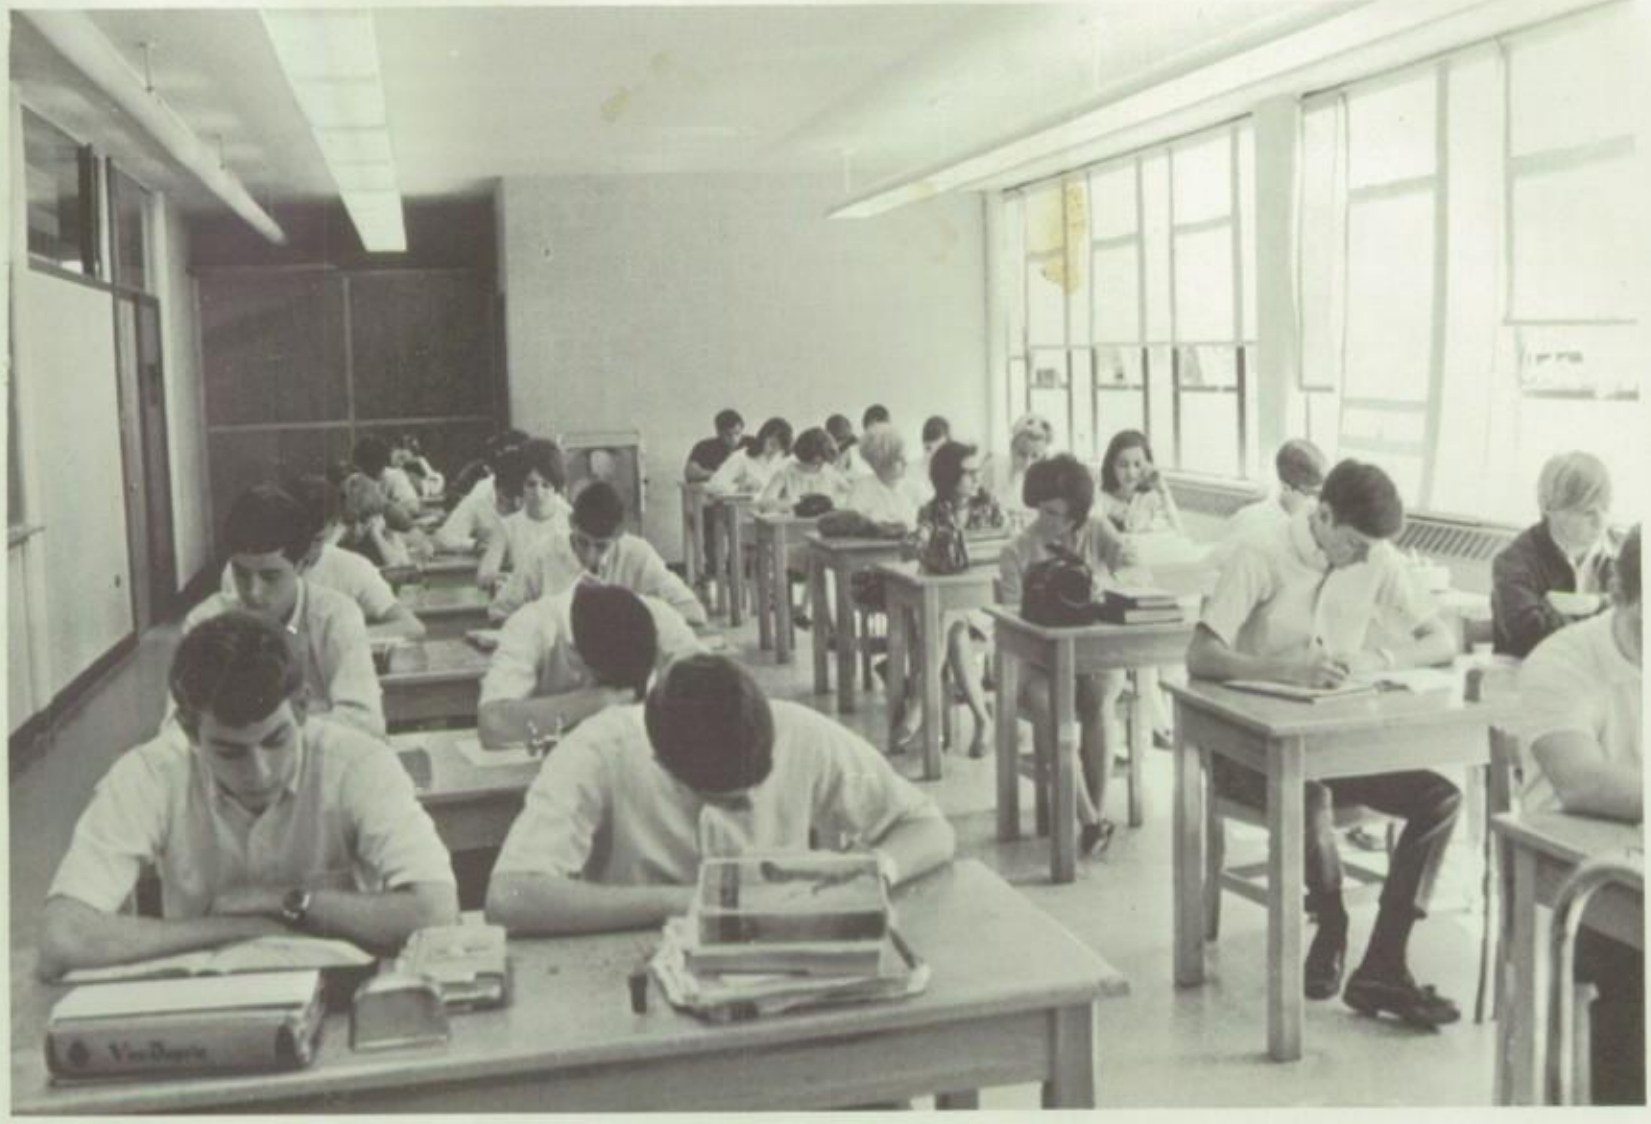
To Apply

The biology department at Overton places emphasis on research. One of the highlights of biology is the dissecting of preserved specimens. The classes explored the woods for specimens to complete their insect and leaf collections. The students also studied prepared slides and made their own slides in the laboratory.

Biology . . . That's Life



Chemistry The Study of Elements

Chemistry is a thorough study of fundamental principles including the study of elements, mixtures, and many compounds. Chemistry students also write formulas and equations and mathematical calculations. They study chemical theories and do practical experiments in the laboratory. This laboratory work adds a variety to the field of research.

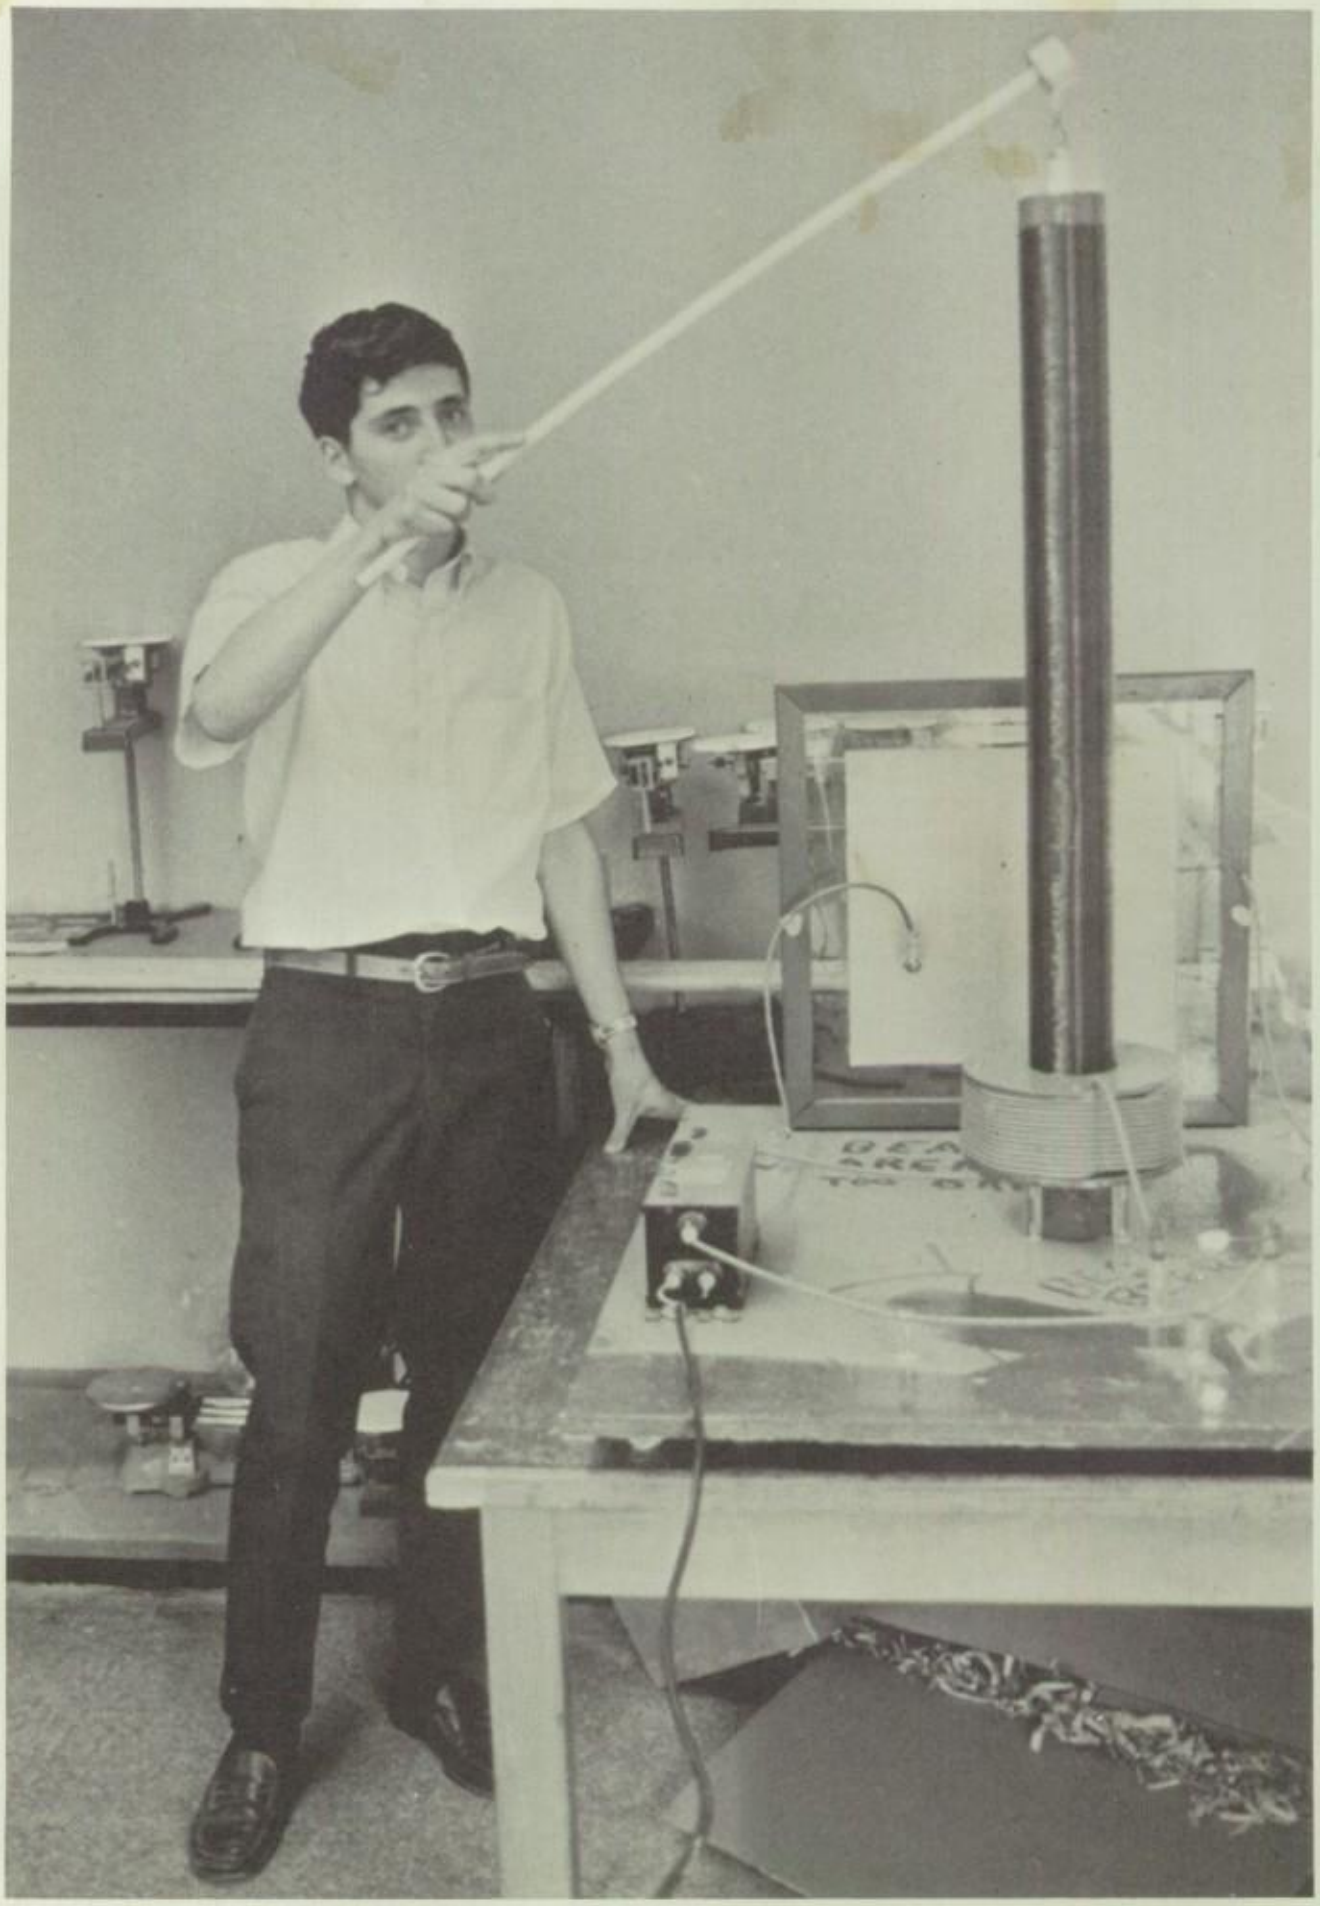
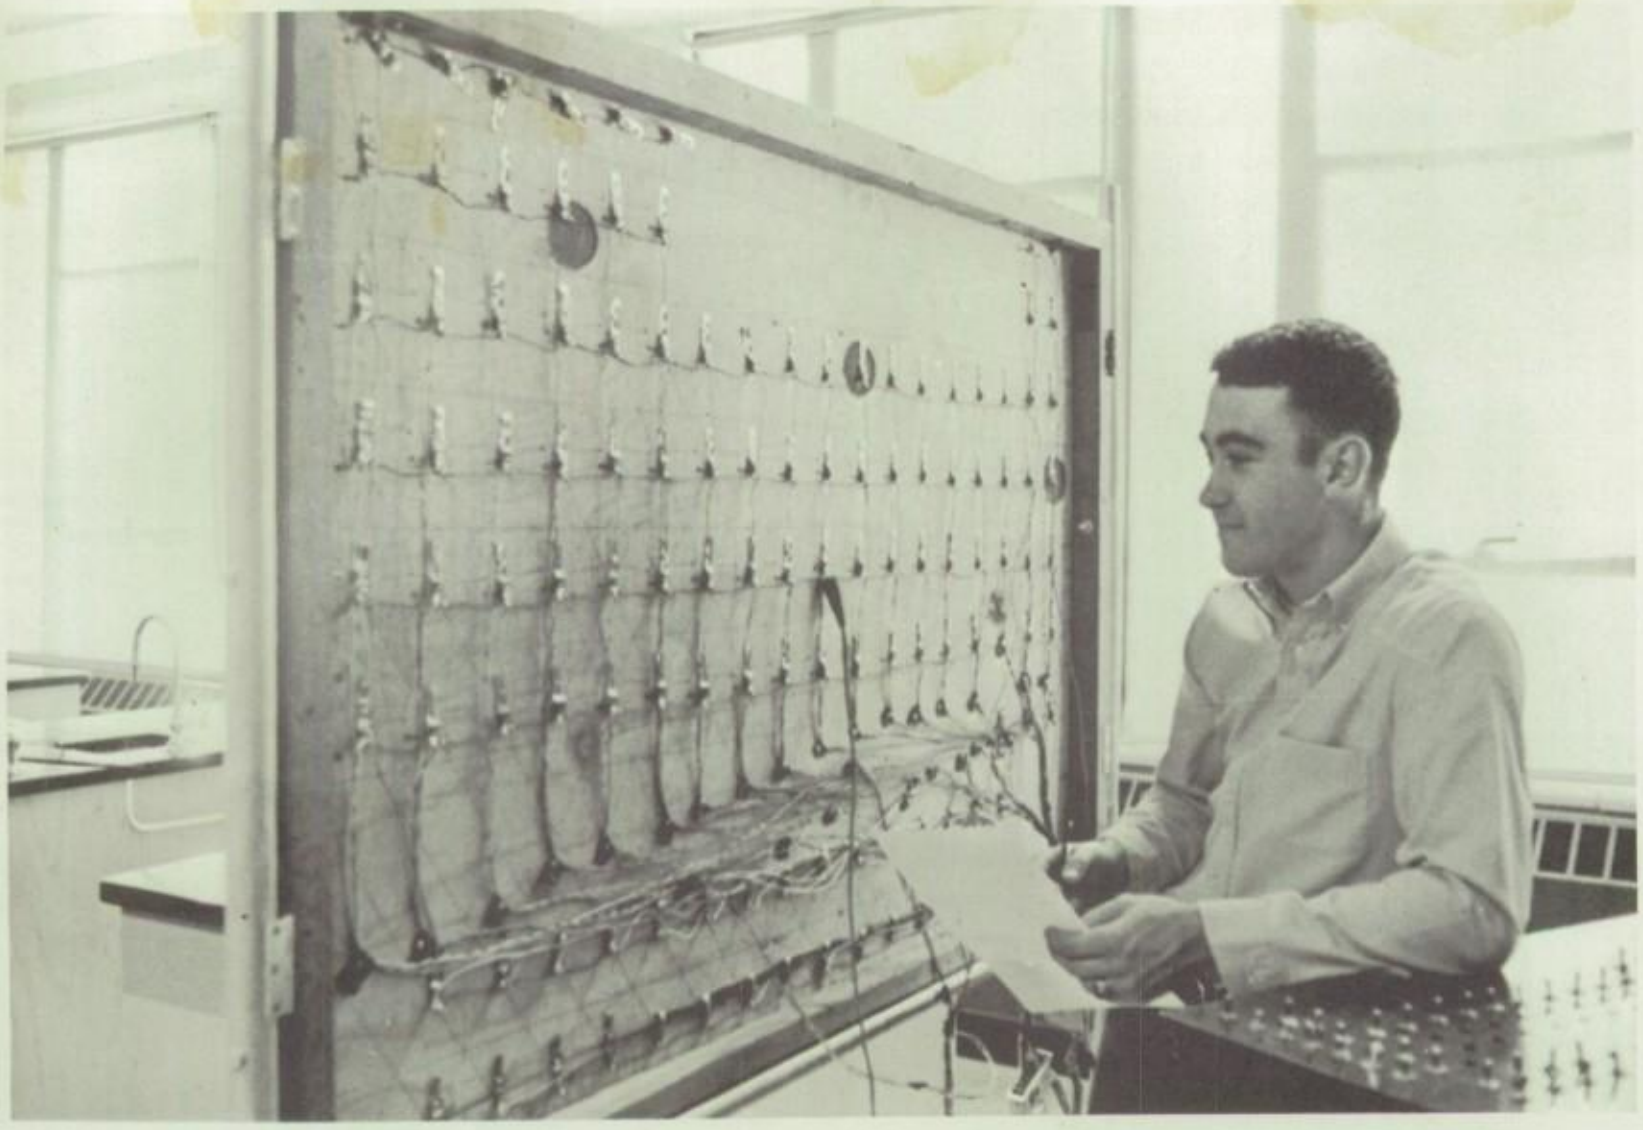
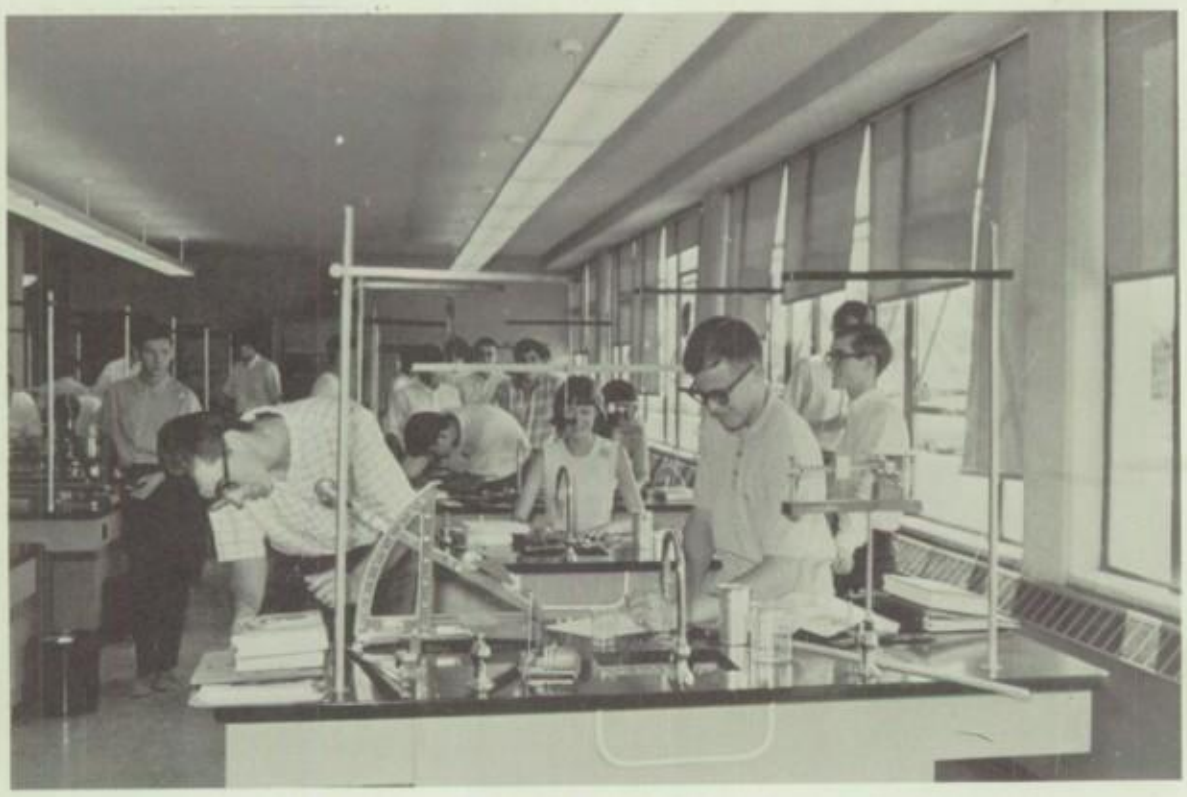
Physics . . .



An Exciting Discipline





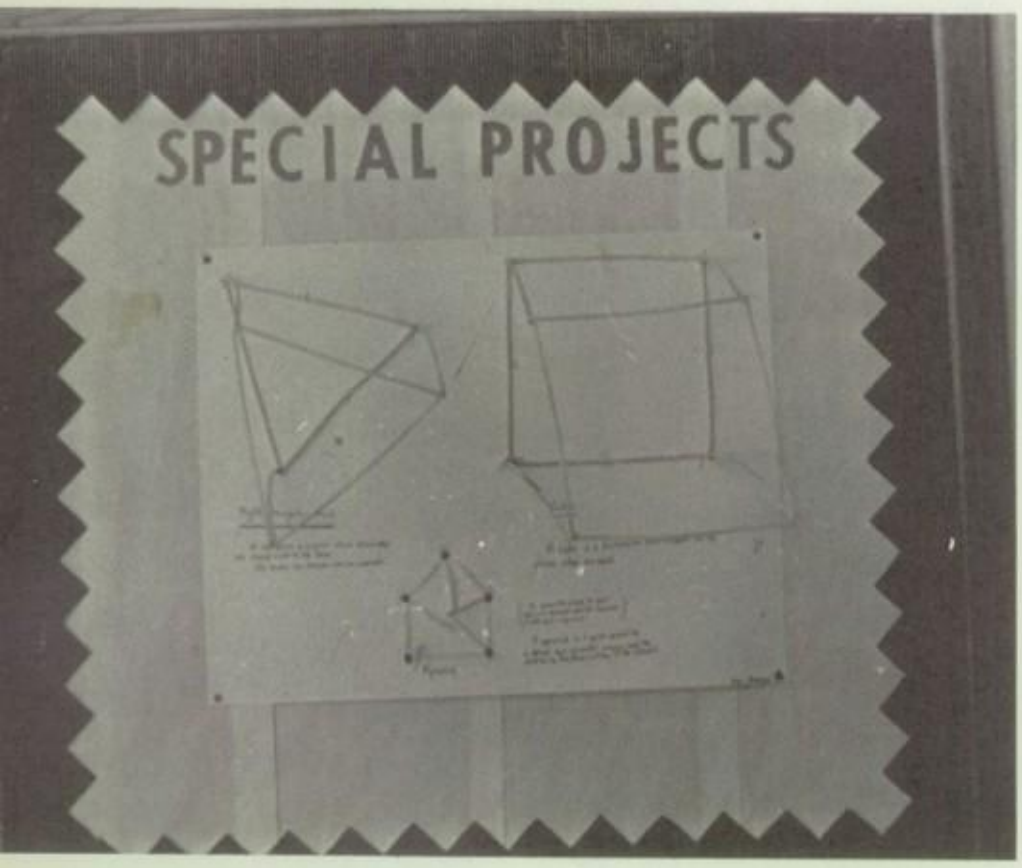
A highly specialized scientific field, physics is recommended for students who have successfully completed chemistry. Individual achievement has opportunity to develop in this class.

The feeling of excitement is contagious as students investigate the scattering high frequency sound waves, theoretical studies of solid states, principles of electrostatics, steady and alternating currents, and magnetism. Consideration is given to elementary mechanics of particles.

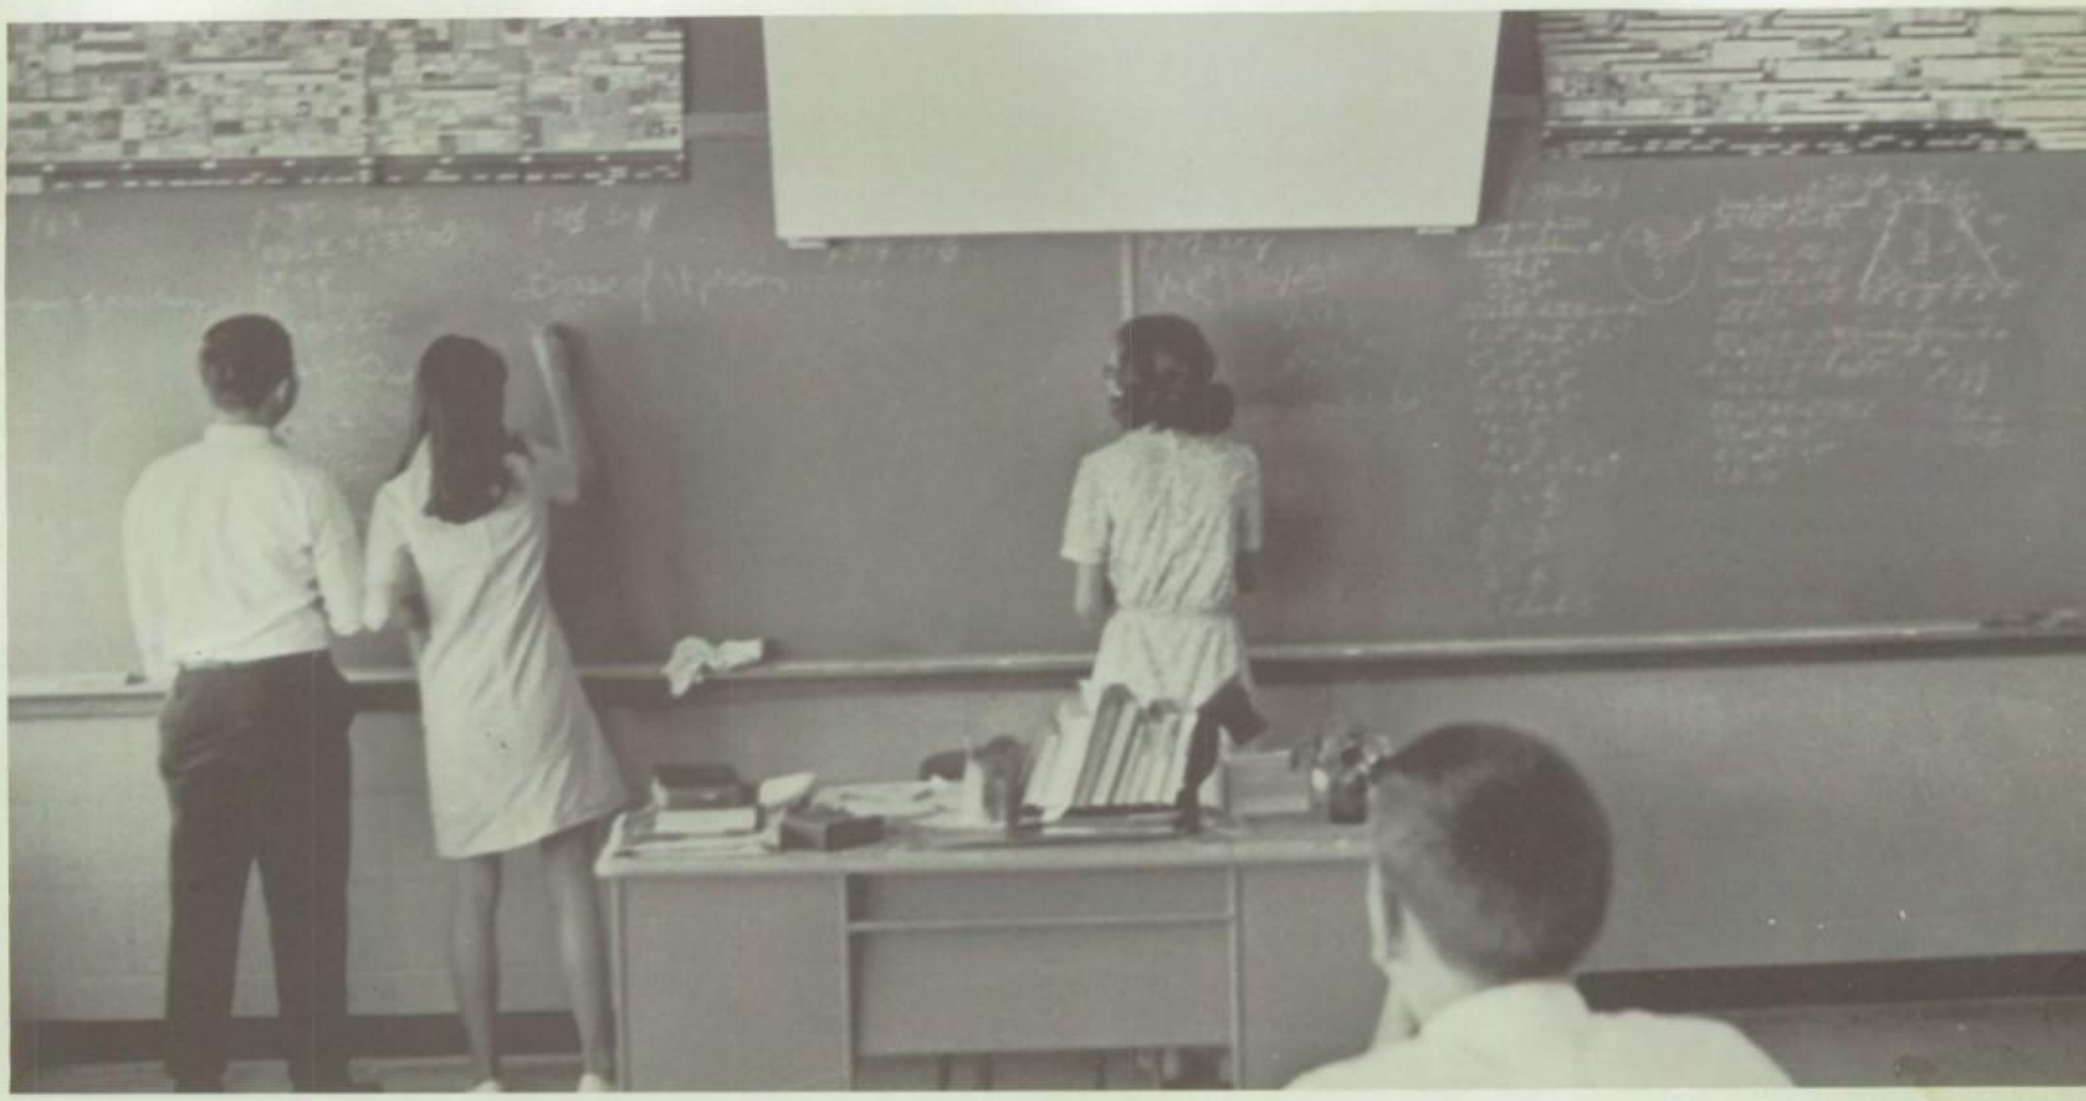
Time is permitted for individual investigation in areas of particular interest.

Geometry . . .

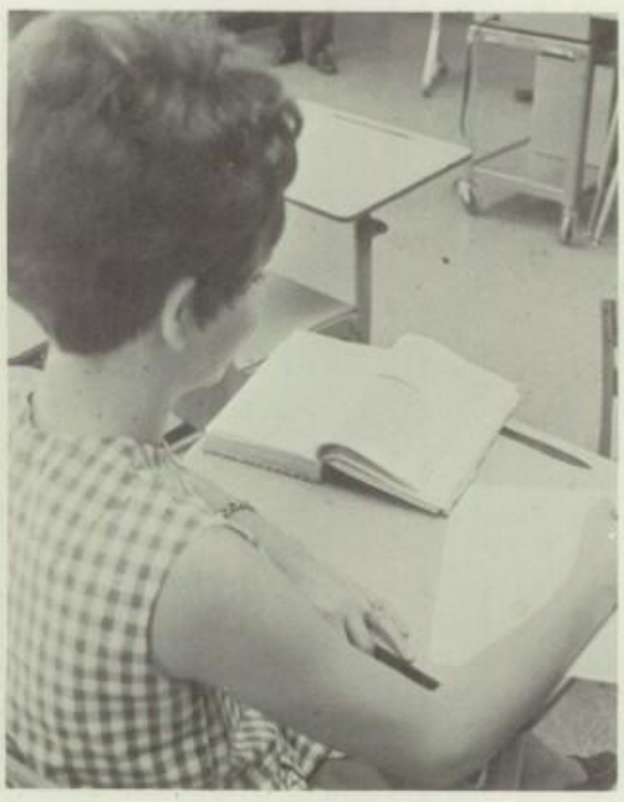
In our complex society a basic background in math has become an essential part of education. To further this fundamental understanding of figures Overton's math department offers courses in Algebra I and II, Geometry, Trigonometry, Advanced Algebra and Calculus and Analytics. Each of these branches of learning aids students in enriching their understanding of the world of mathematics.



Learning Deductive Reasoning

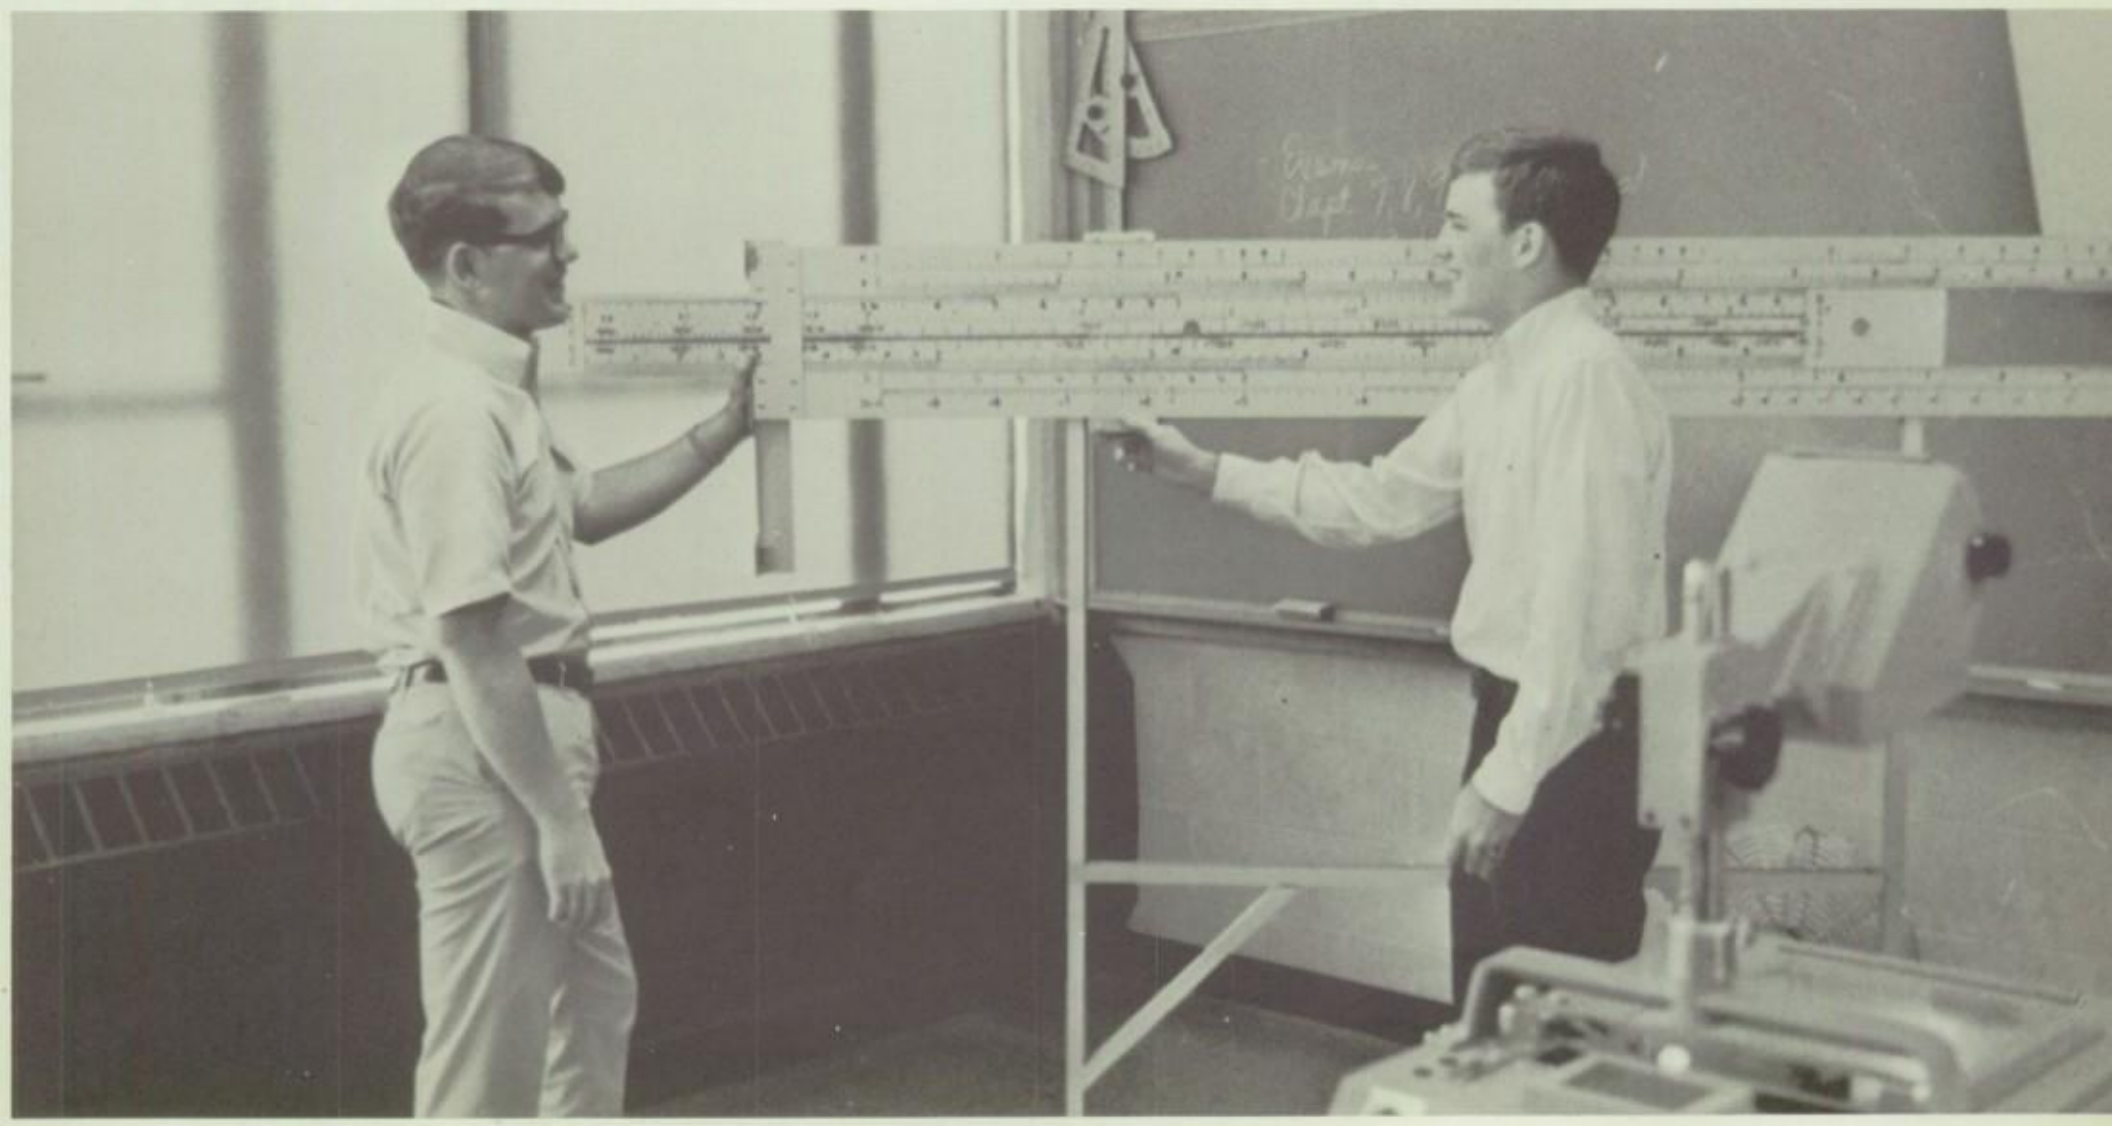


Solving Problems With Equations



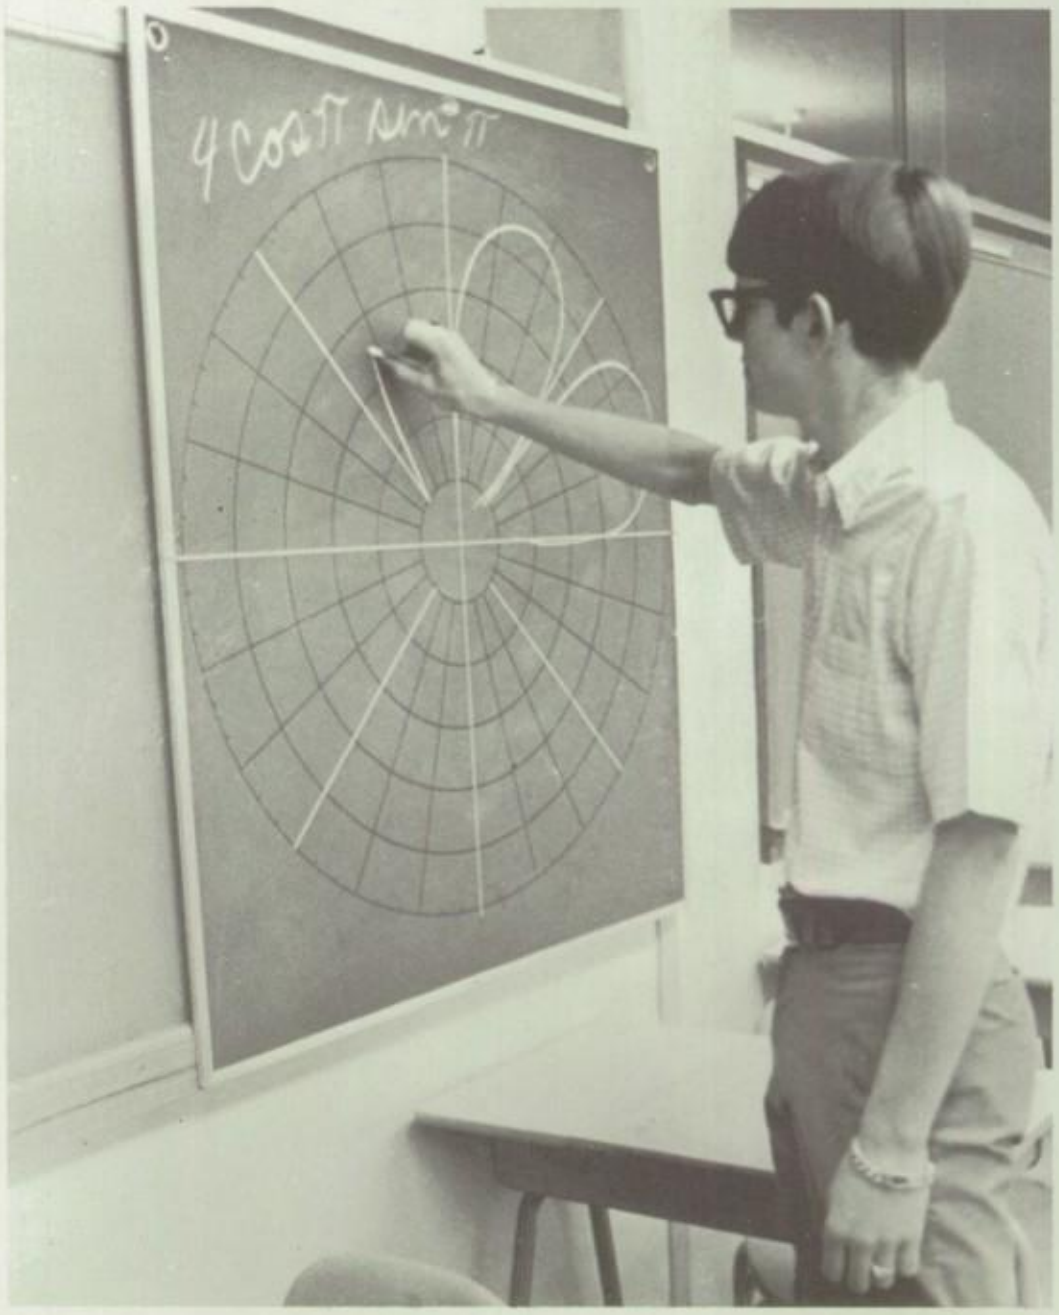
. . . Algebra

Functions, logarithms, and coordinate geometry are some important topics covered in Overton's Algebra classes. While building a basic foundation, students learn to enjoy the study of mathematics.



Higher Math — Preparing for Tomorrow

Math majors and students interested in engineering are those found in the "trig" and calculus and analytics classes. A genuine desire to learn is necessary for excellence in this department.



Social Sciences

Social Science is the study of man and his interactions in an organized community. Whatever broadens and clarifies man's picture of the universe is, in the sense, a social study. There is no clearly defined boundary between the "so-called" social studies and art, literature, music and science; thus, Overton's social studies department attempts to achieve excellence through tying together the various fields of education.

In the classroom, art illustrates historical events and through a collage represents the student's feelings about the Vietnam war. Students are encouraged to read good literature of periods in history related to current studies. The Speech Department cooperates with the social studies department in bringing history students patriotic declamations.

In another way, the social studies department attempts to achieve excellence by bringing the student into closer contact with the activities about which he studies. The government classes witnessed the naturalization ceremony at city hall. Economics students were given play money to play the stock market. The Bell Telephone Company connected a history class with Dan Kuykendall. The students asked the Congressman questions about government. At right, seniors prepare for graduation by taking their final American History exams. The Social Studies department at Overton believes in learning by participation.

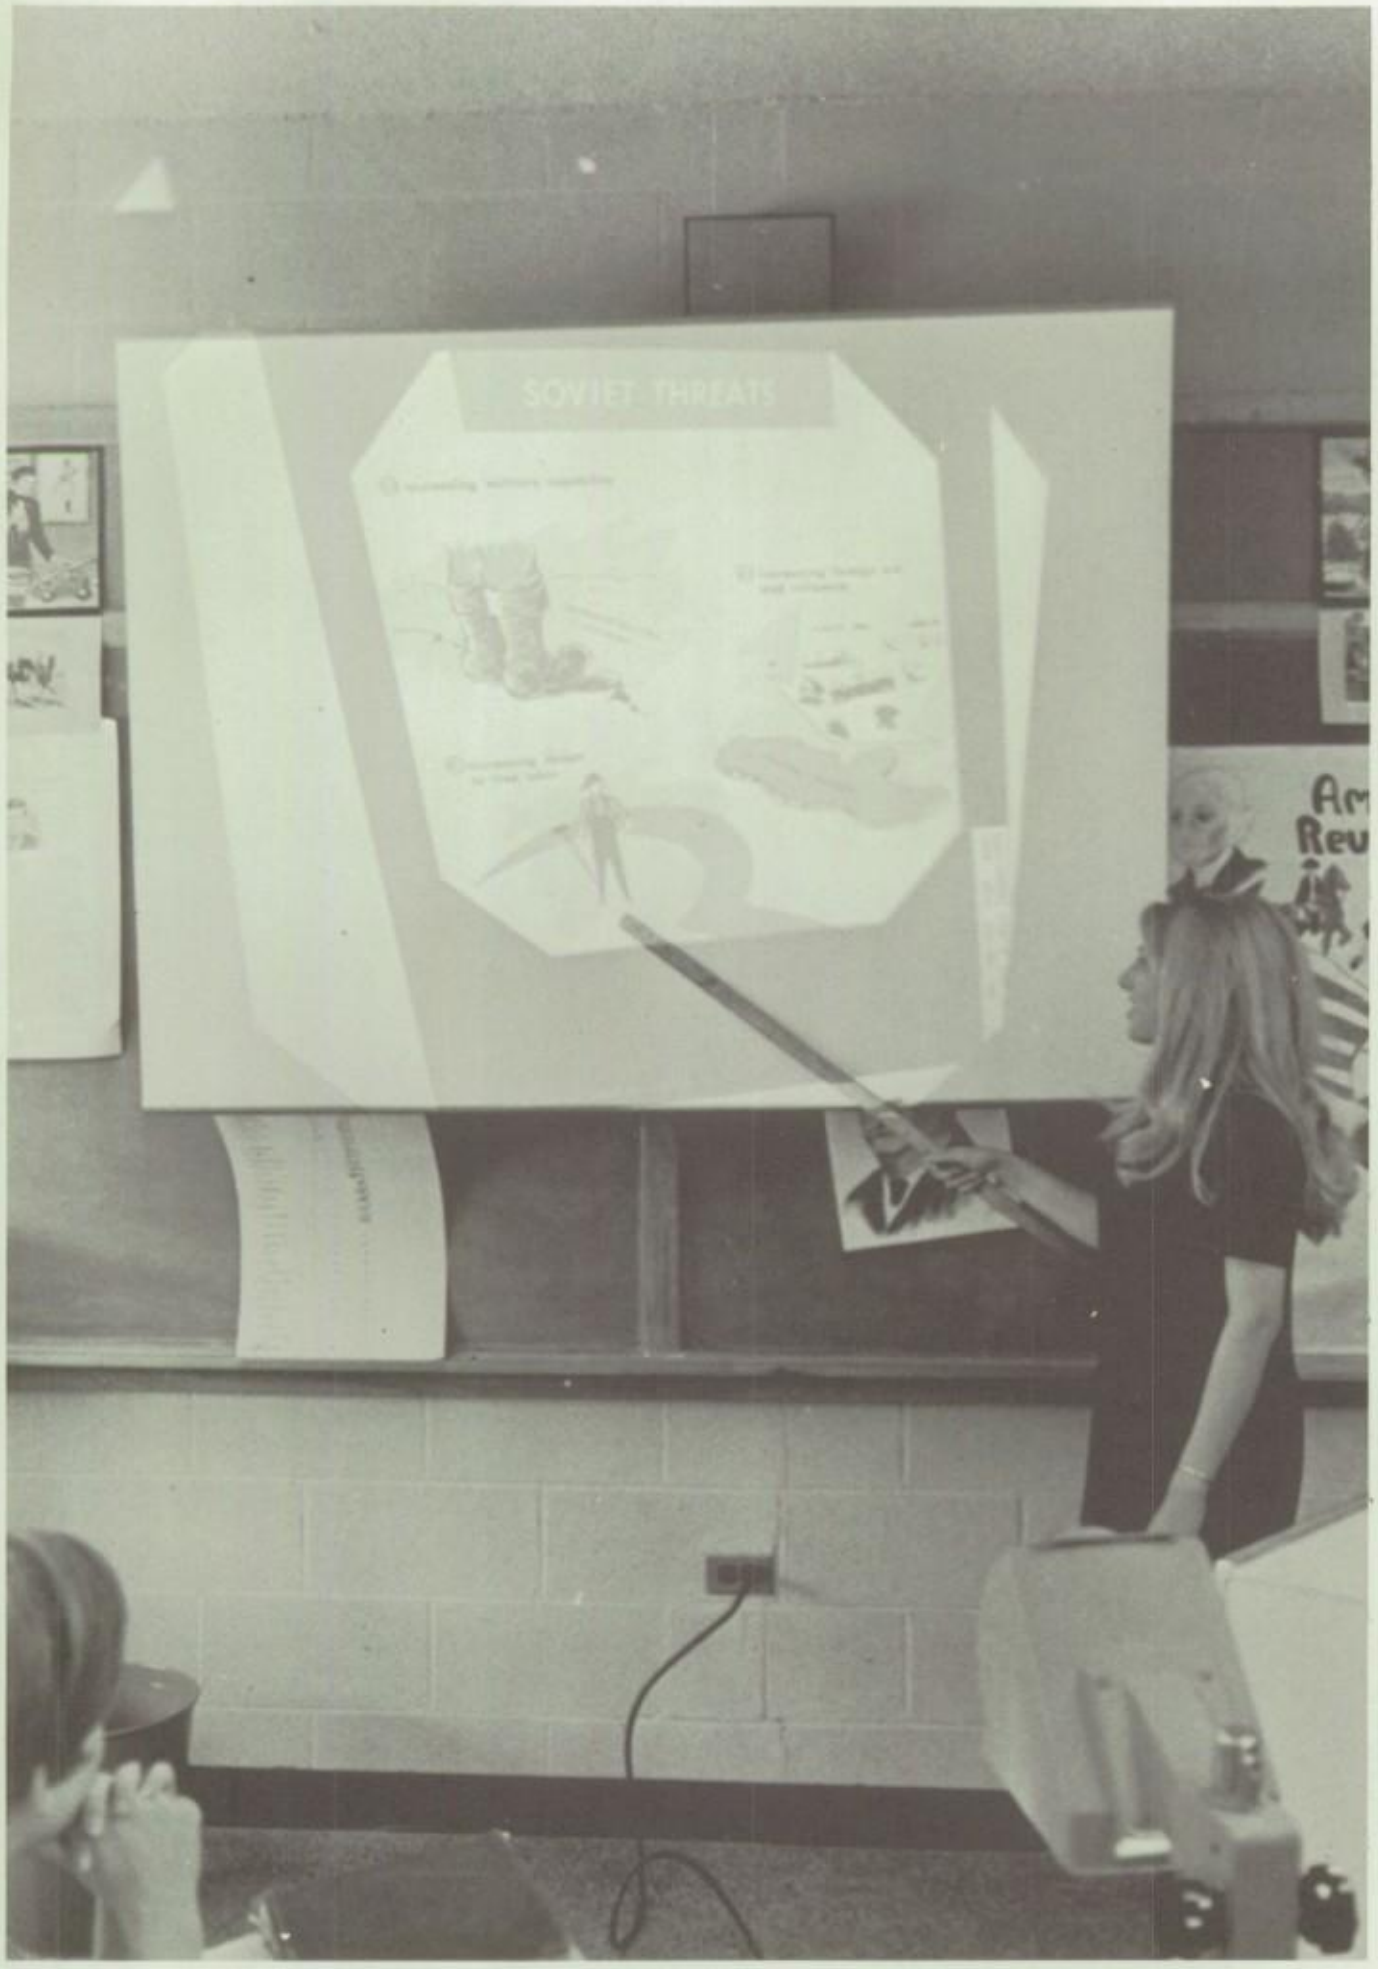
Man's Reaction to His Environment



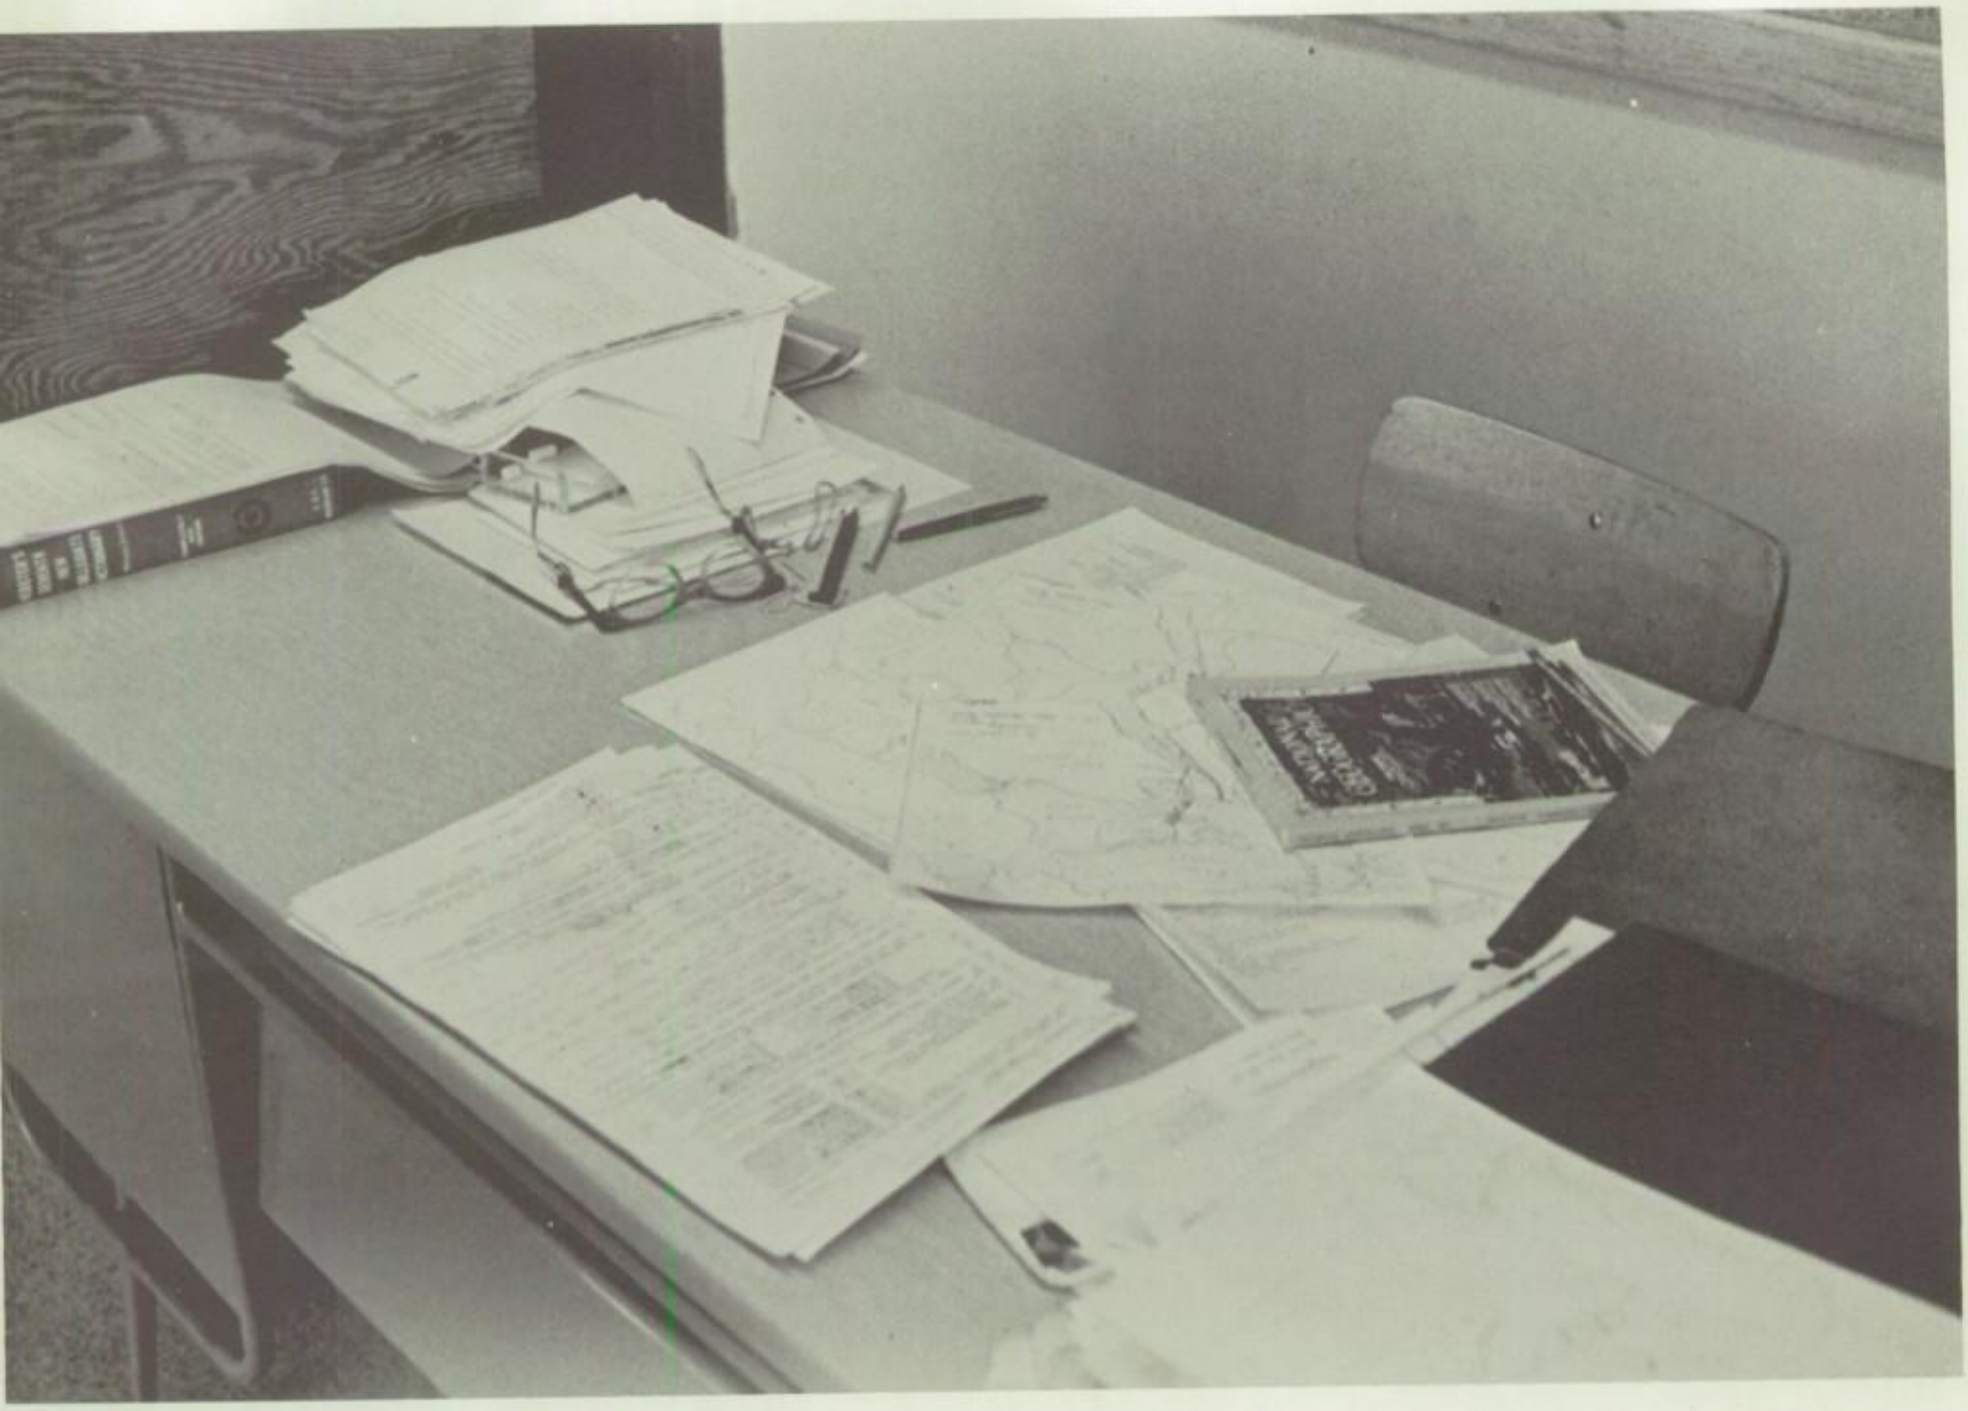
Various books symbolize the wide array of history courses taken at Overton. With so many subjects to choose from the students may easily accomplish their pursuit of excellence in history.

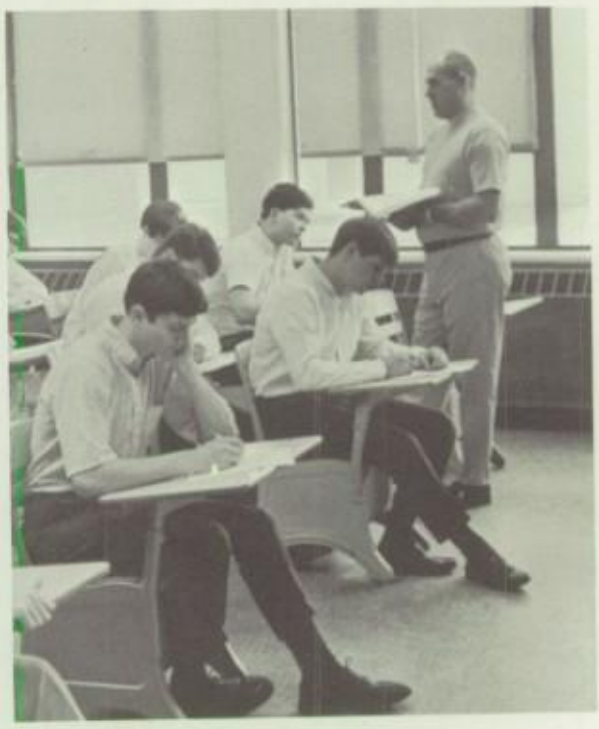
Because it is such an important part of geography, the study of maps and charts is pictured. Geography is defined as being the descriptive science dealing with the surface of the earth. Thus, maps and charts are very essential equipment for the world geography classes.

Visual Aids . . .

Through bulletin boards and art projects history is brought to life for the student. Here we see art work created by several Overton students, who have been enriched in their study by participating in making them. Murals and decorated bulletin boards have something to say to everyone and serve their purpose in getting the pupil interested in his studies.

Enhance Learning





Home Economics — FHA . . .

The emphasis on excellence in individual performance has become a vital demand of today's society. Only if the individual is motivated and encouraged to develop his potential fully will this superior standard be achieved.

Recognizing the home to be a powerful influence in the development of excellence, Overton's Home Economics Department strives to instill this level of motivation in its students. Through home economics today's student can learn to set a high quality standard for tomorrow to understand the sound relations in the home and community.

Build Foundations for Better Family Living

Many facets of family living are emphasized in the yearly home economics course of study. Emphasis on consumer living is realized through programs in foods, clothing, home planning and consumer economics. Special shopping trips for study of comparative prices make this area more realistic.

Child care is an essential course for the future homemaker. A nursery-play school is planned each year to give students experience in understanding children and coping with the problems they present.

Students enrolled in home economics have many opportunities to practice planning, preparing and serving meals and special "tea tables." The Parent Teachers Association and the Home Economics Department plan two teas annually for the parents of the community.

The clothing construction class is culminated each year with a Spring Fashion Show for parents and interested students.

Probably the most widely acclaimed project undertaken by the home economics students is the "TASTING TEA" the first Thursday of December each year.

A varied group of activities are offered to make learning fun and lasting.

Spotlight Shared by Future Homemakers . . .

Emphasis on the individual and development of potential are two of the many aims of the Future Homemakers of America. The Overton Chapter offers varied opportunities and experiences to develop leadership abilities of each member.

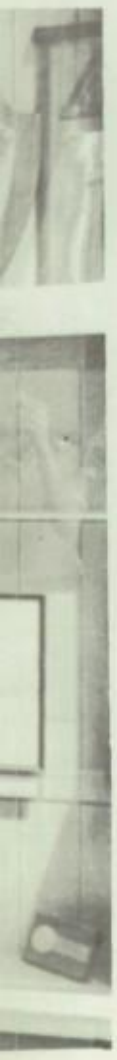
Numerous honors have been awarded to talented young women who participated in home economics activities. Sweepstakes have been claimed in clothing by the Overton home economics department the last three years and many individual blue ribbons awarded. Special honors have been received by the students pictured on this page. Above (left): Susan Penney—Betty Crocker Award; (Center) Brenda Hendren —Sterling Silver Award; (Right) Vickie Brown, 1st place — Sew-A-Rama, $200 Scholarship and Crisco Award. Below: Barbara Dodd — Outstanding FHA Member; Sandra Bonds—Crisco Award. Not pictured: Judy Bogan, 2nd place, Sew-A-Rama, Automatic sewing machine; Kathy Wallace —Crisco Award.

Future Teachers . . . Future Aviators

FTA

Future Teachers of America was organized for the purpose of preparing students who plan to teach as a profession. The members are made aware of the qualification that they will need by the excellent guidance of teachers and guest speakers. Teaching is a great part of our democratic system, and it is important that these students learn about their future responsibilities and opportunities. They can obtain this knowledge by learning today what they will be teaching tomorrow.

The FTA held its annual banquet at the Luau on April 27. Miss Pierce, Joyce Heddy, and Blaire Volman are shown as they arrive for the luncheon.



Aviation Club

Creating an exciting interest for flying, the Aviation Club got off to a fine start in its second year at Overton. Members of this club have experienced flying, as well as learning about the airplane and how it functions. They have made numerous trips to the airport in order to observe the planes in action. Many members of the club have mastered the skill of flying a plane. Overton is extremely proud of one of its newest organizations, the Aviation Club.

VOE

The answer to the rapidly increasing demand for more adequately prepared office personnel may be found in the VOE classes—Vocational Office Education. This "Secretarial Program" curriculum, introduced at Overton last year, has as its purpose an opportunity to offer students an actual learning experience in clerical, stenographic, and bookkeeping work. Because a large percentage of students enter a secretarial or clerical field upon graduation from high school, experience is most welcome.

With emphasis being placed on personal development and practical application, the students are trained with the basic knowledge and skills which lay the foundation for future careers.

At right, Mr. Rutland and Mrs. Patton present certificates to Sandy Simpson and Linda Dixon. They were awarded for passing the "Administrative Management Society" international spelling test.

Clerical Curriculum

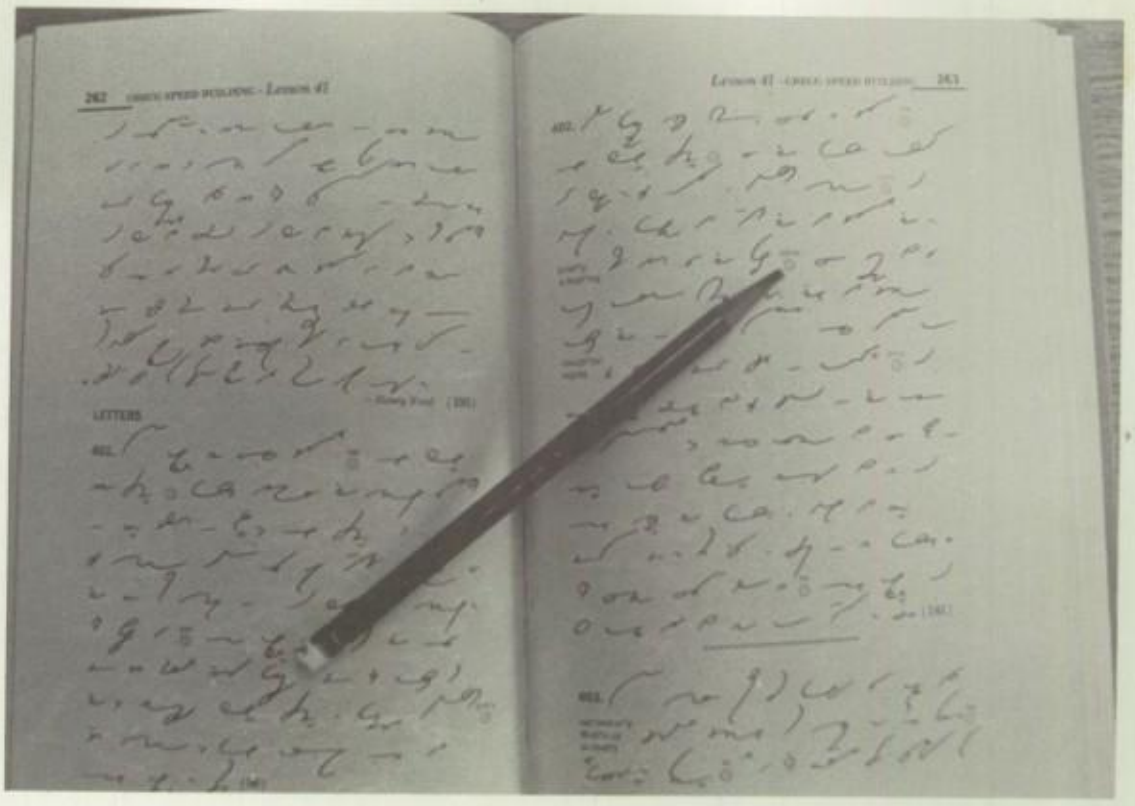
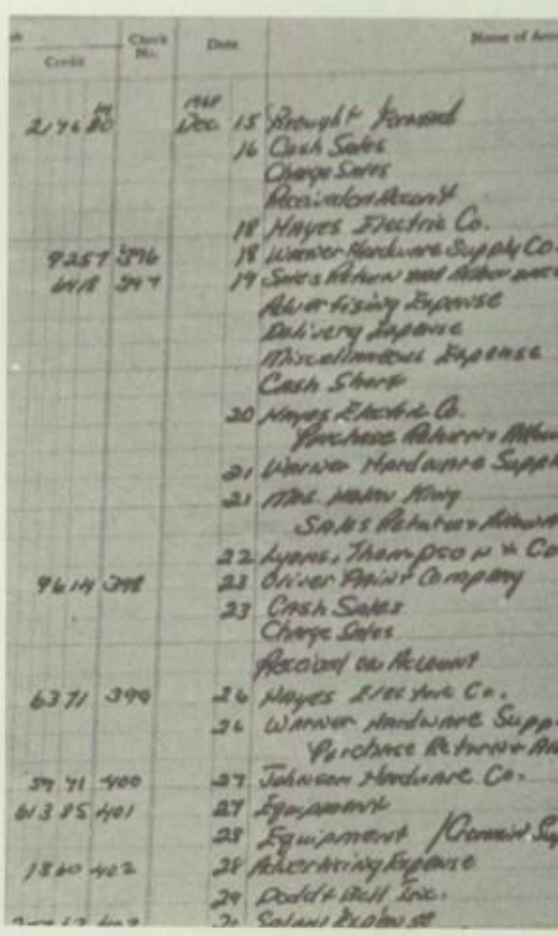
At right is one of the many colorful bulletin boards displayed in the VOE classroom. The students create the designs and rotate them from month to month.

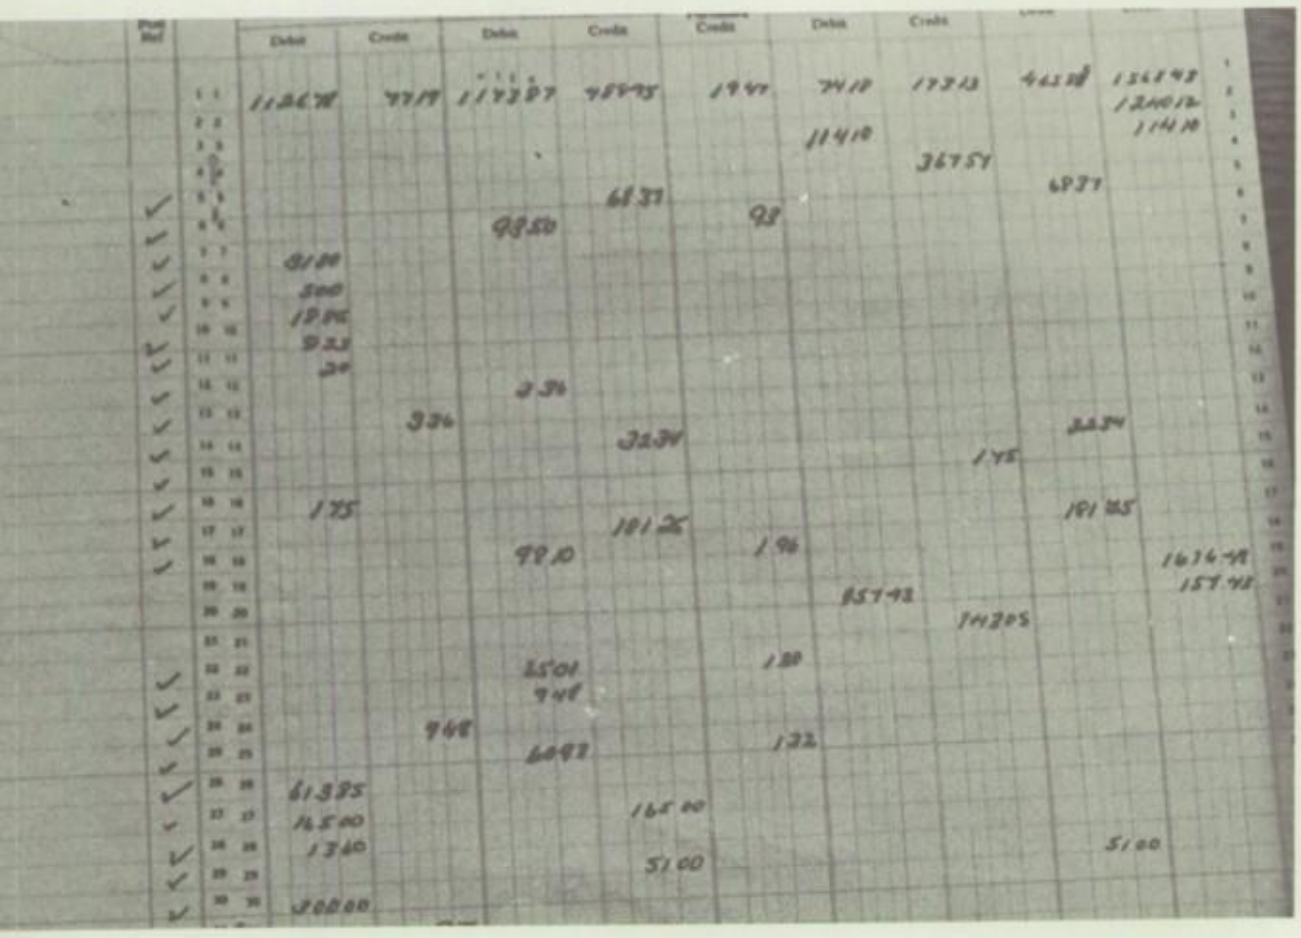
Secretarial Skills Acquired . . .

Shorthand, typing, notehand, and bookkeeping are the business courses offered at Overton. These courses are very popular with the Rebels as shown by the high enrollment in these fields. As it is needed in high school, college, and many vocations of future life, typing is a good skill to acquire. Shorthand, which is difficult to master, seems meaningless to the untrained eye, but it is essential to the business world. Below, a shorthand class checks dictation for accuracy, and at far right, a shorthand book is displayed. Bookkeeping, at right, equips the student with the knowledge of keeping accurate books and records. Thus, the business department serves as a worthwhile purpose in preparing Overton students for the future.



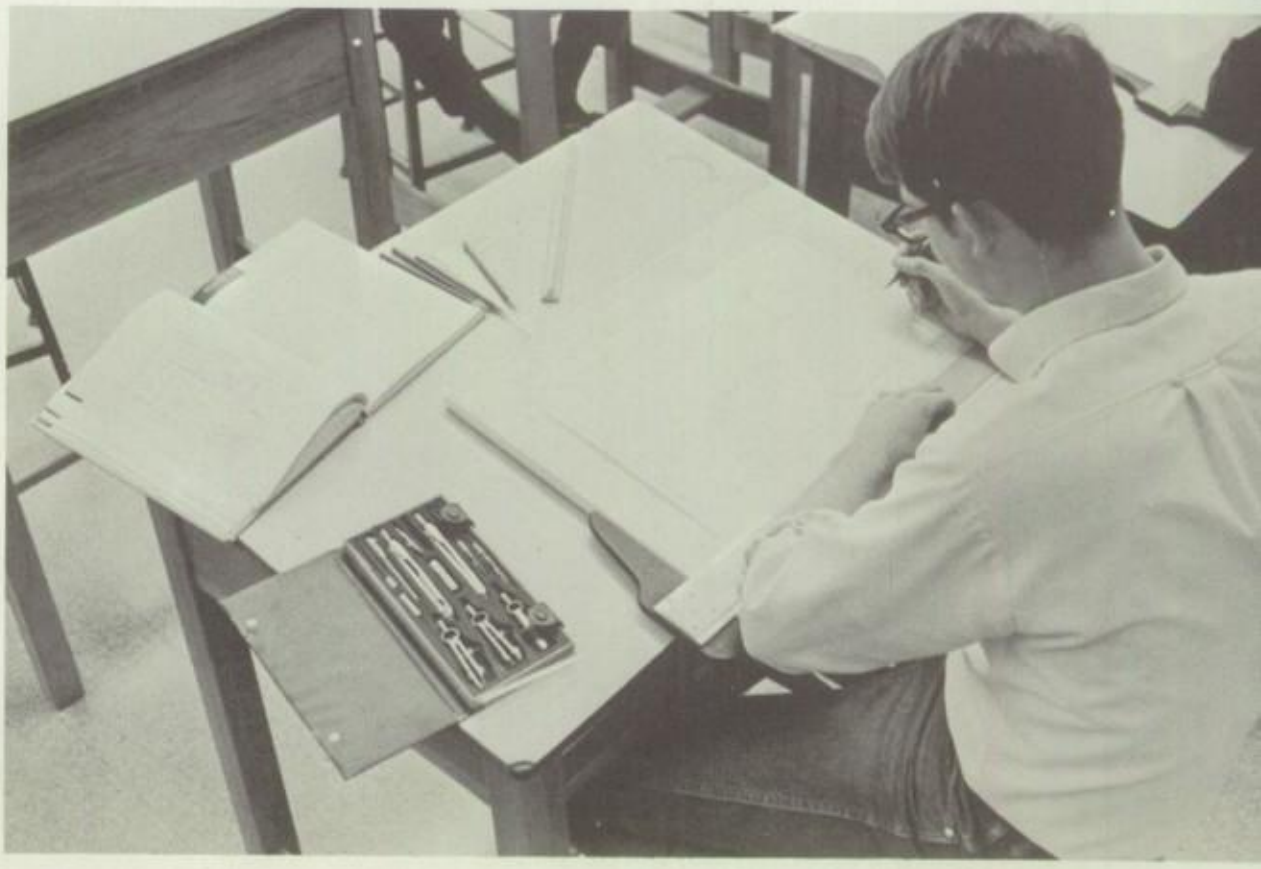


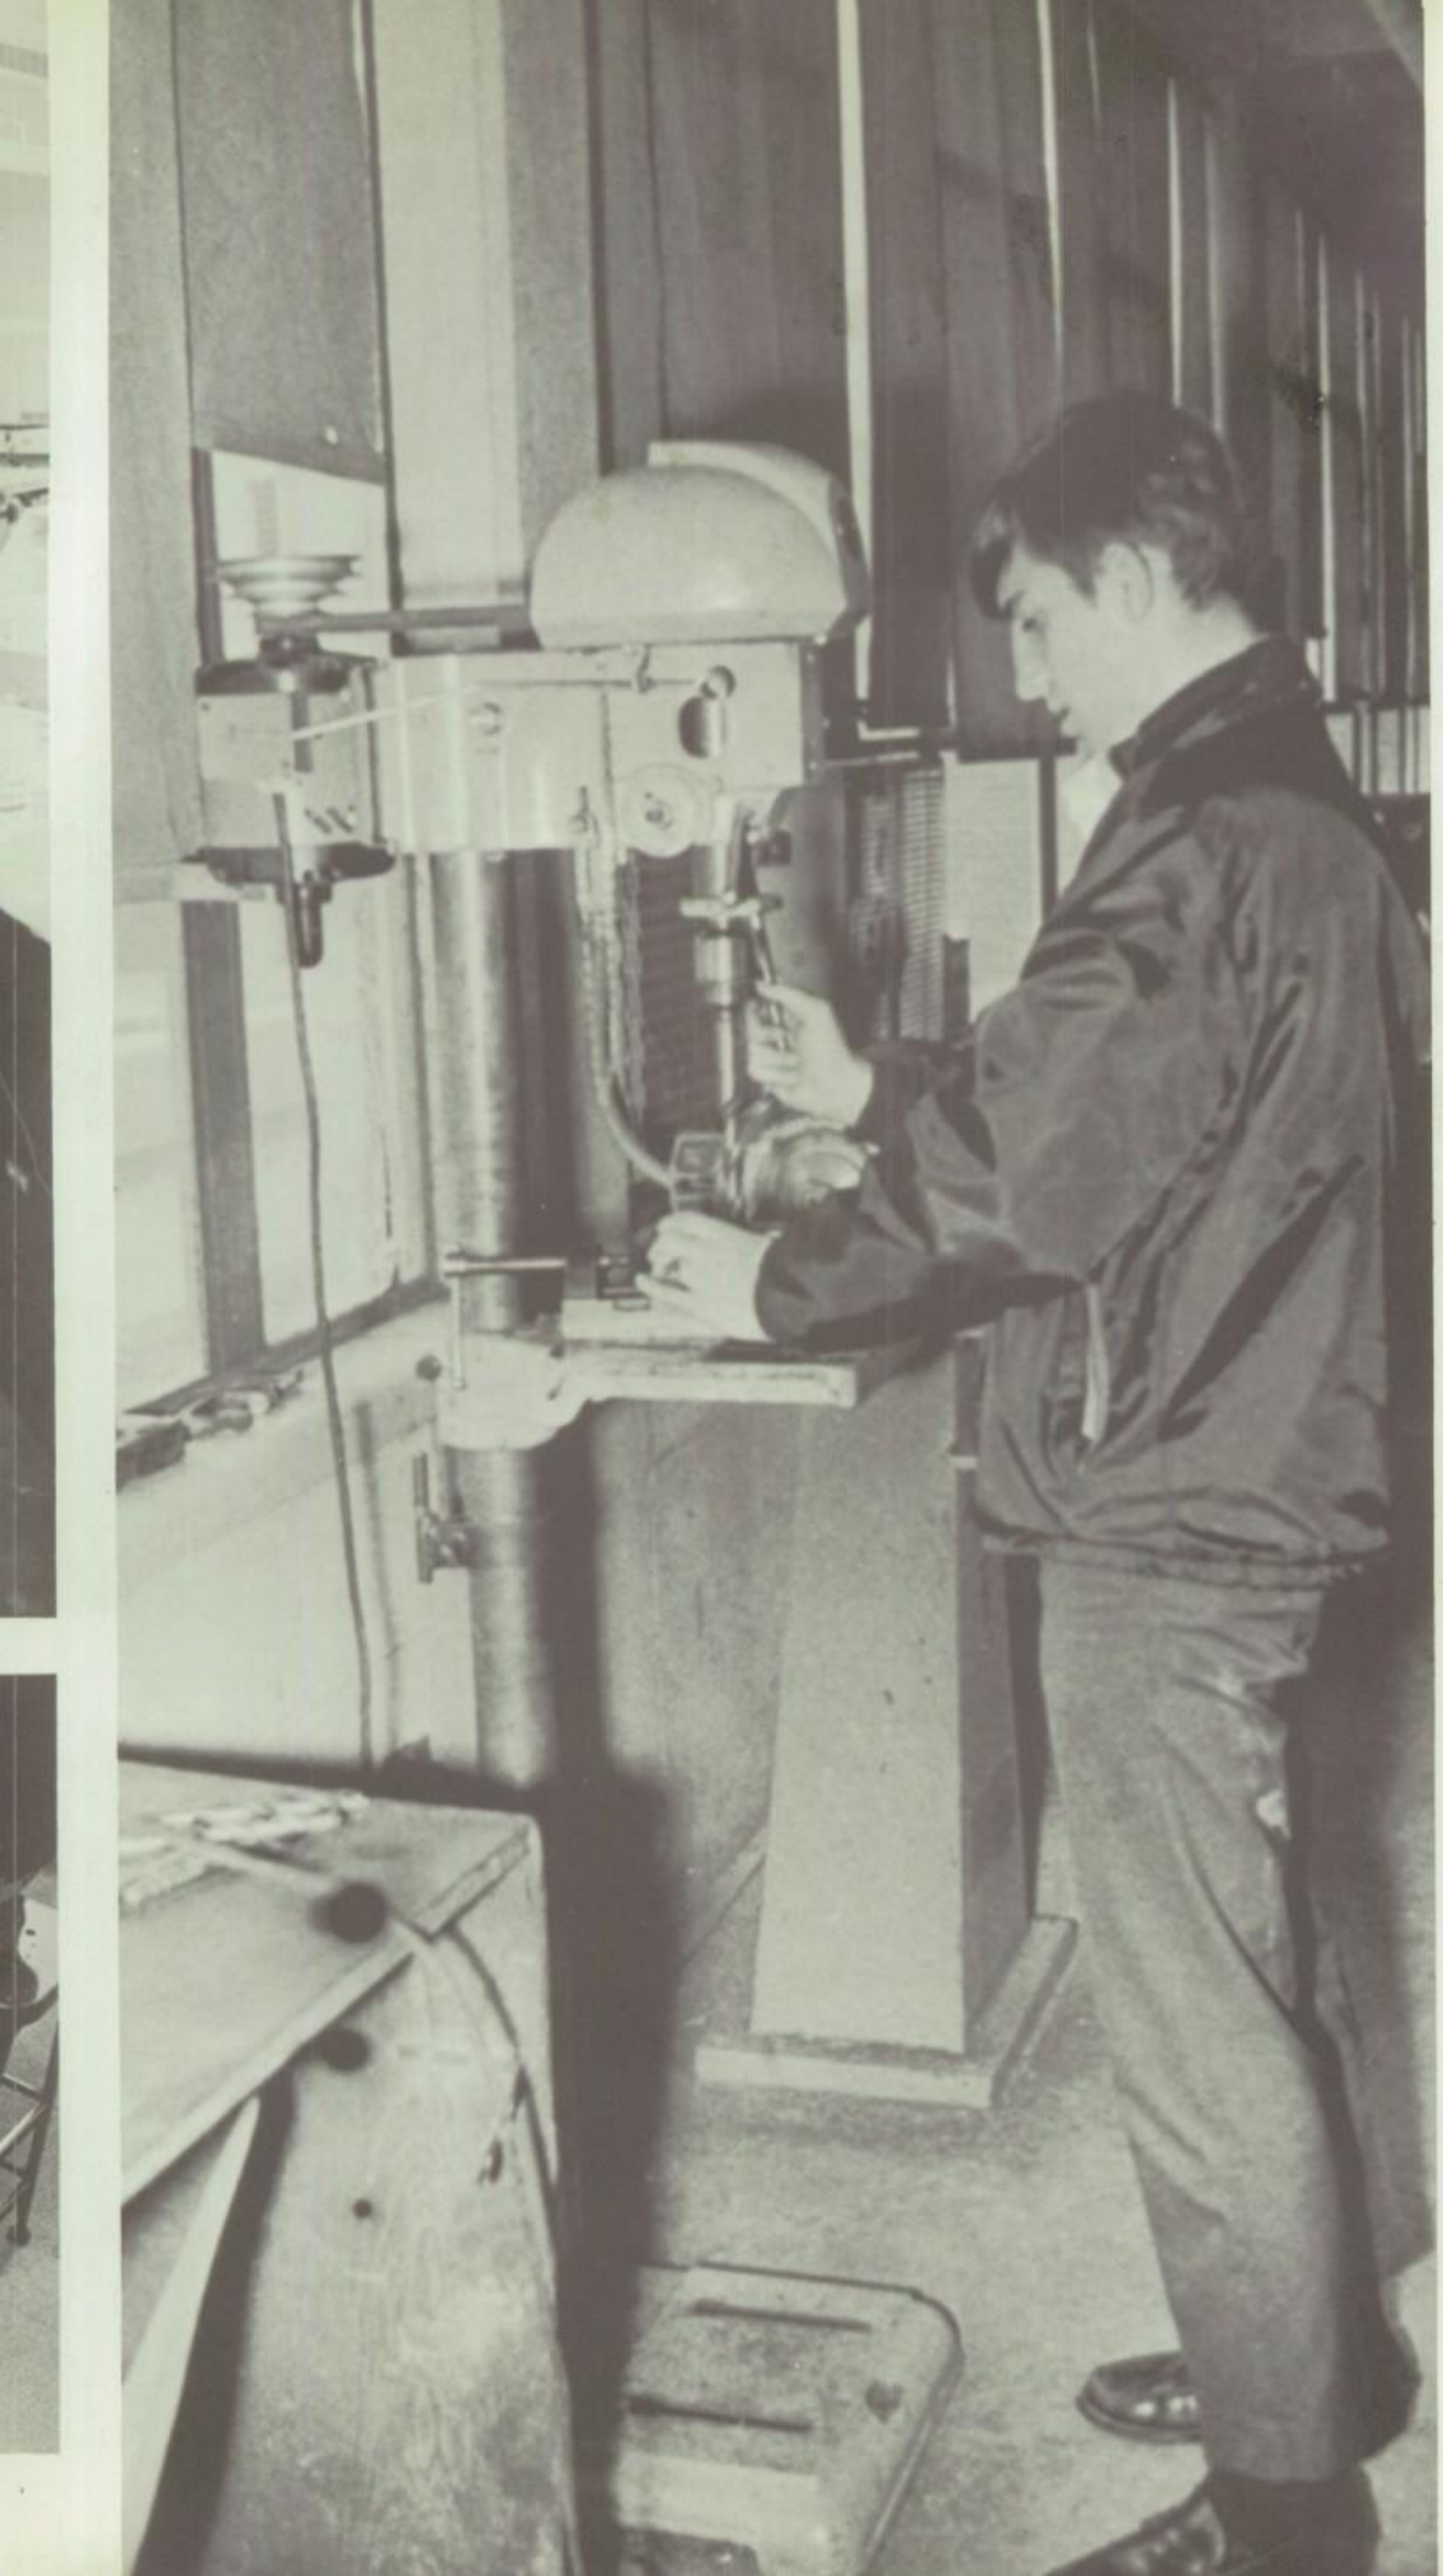
Coordinating the Eye, Mind, and the Hand



Industrial Arts . . .

Mechanical Drawing, woodshop, and metal shop —all these comprise the section of curriculum known as the Industrial Arts section. Many skilled workers will be essential to the world of tomorrow. In addition to preparation for a future career, a welcome opportunity is provided for expression of the individual. To be able to create, not only with accomplished skill but with a personal feeling, is one of the finest assets a person may possess.





. . . Opportunity for Personal Fulfillment

Working in the industrial arts department affords such opportunities as building furniture, gaining experience in metal work, and acquiring training in the field of architecture.

Varying Talents Recognized . . .

Creative Expression

To create is to be alive. Ability in the arts is creativity. Enlightenment and recreation are found in all arts. The purpose of the arts is to perform: in body, through voice, in movement, or by hand. To be able to excel in these arts is the goal.

Overton's flourishing arts departments are the personification of creativity—creativity comprised of speech, vocal music, art and instrumental music.

Abounding Talent and Dedication

Potential and creativity —these are two modifiers which describe the typical art student. However, by what justification may an art student be called typical? Each is a unique individual—one striving to portray and relate on paper the feelings which are so evident in his life. He strives to reach excellence in the field of communication, and under the guidance of Mrs. Sue Littleton and Mrs. Sherry Fooshee of the Overton Art Department, many of these goals are exceeded. With four years offered in this extensive study of creative expression, many students reach near perfection. With talent abounding and dedication running high, perhaps Overton may someday be able to claim a future Michelangelo.

Art Department Excels

of Speaking and Surviving

An unknown, but highly creative division of the arts is the talent of forensics. It is the science of communication through speech and interpretations.

The Overton Speech Department excelled this year in forensics training. Proving our department superior in the state as well as the region, speech students won tournament after tournament.

Varied areas of expression have been taught in Overton's speech classes. Speech is not just speaking. Pantomime was a favorite this year along with debating, acting, oral interpretation and extemporaneous speaking. The basics of learning to be at ease in any company are taught.

Under the direction of Mrs. Anita Marberry and Mrs. Fredricka Schleifer, the speech students have abounded in displaying their talents in all forms of forensics and speech.

Speech Department Productions

Who hasn't heard of "Fanny the Frivolous Flapper?" Is "Charley's Aunt" male or female? What is an old woman doing playing in a "Sandbox?" These queries were answered in the theatrical productions presented at Overton in 1968.

Publicity for all productions was especially noteworthy this year. As a promotion stunt for "Charley's Aunt," the actors and actresses, dressed in early twentieth century costumes to further stimulate the student body to attend the performance. Creativity and infinite variety were displayed in the clever and artistic media utilized to advertise "Fanny the Frivolous Flapper."

The Speech Department made selections to provide the Thespians of Troupe 2071 a variety of acting challenges. Each student found something entertaining due to the diversity of material and the excellence of performances.

Overton Choir . . .

Local, Regional, State Participants

Singing on key is no problem for the Overton High Glee Club, under the direction of Mrs. Delores Kinsolving. The choral group has made many appearances in the '67-'68 school year and has become well known for its fine singing ability. Among the productions of this year's group was a complete show on the local television program, "Pride of the Southland."

Many hours of before school practice, as well as the curriculum time, is spent preparing these young voices and helping to transform them into quality singers. Because the Glee Club is selective, there is an excellent grade of material to work with. Showing their perfection, they received a superior rating at a Memphis State contest. Overton is indeed grateful for this fine representation.

Band . . .

Football games, pep rallies, R.O.T.C. drills, Christmas and spring concerts, parades, . . . Attendance at any of these events is synonymous with the opportunity of hearing Overton's outstanding band. Under the leadership of Mr. Larry Volman, these students have grown into a group of accomplished musicians.

This year, the band participated in many contests and always represented Overton well. With eleven students in the West Tennessee band, and six students in the All State Band, one can easily see the standard of excellence that is obtained by the band.

Although, we rarely give the band the approval and thanks that they deserve, every Rebel is appreciative of the fine performances our band provides.

Foundation of School Spirit

Girls Physical Education

"Line up for roll call! Where are your socks? Get in place for exercises!" Every sophomore girl has heard these quotes at least one hundred eighty times this past year. For them orientation to Overton entails enrolling in, and enduring six months of grueling physical activities. Several weeks of mental gymnastics which include instruction in Home Nursing and Drivers' Education are an integral part of the program.

This year the girls learned many new skills from ballroom dancing to hoe down steps. Volleyball, basketball, and softball were played by every girl. Competition was heightened by pitting classes against each other. Motor skills were accomplished with the use of stilts and jump ropes, and the balance beam was used to teach poise and grace.

Shiny rifles, faces smiling from behind military uniforms, a new approach to teaching responsibility and dedication—all these were added this fall as Overton gained its ROTC unit. ROTC—Reserve Officers Training Corps—is a program that has been incorporated into the public school system with three objectives: to develop a working knowledge of basic military skills and an appreciation of the role of the United States Army; to instill self-reliance, leadership, and responsiveness to constituted authority, and; to provide an opportunity to gain the attributes of good citizenship and patriotism.

Now as one wanders through the halls of Overton, he is faced with the situation which confronts the world. The military is an important part of civil life in this fast-changing existence we now live. Certainly America is a great country, but history teaches that we hold no permanent lease on greatness ... it must be renewed by each generation. To renew this lease, today's youth must be prepared to meet the challenge it offers. Under the guidance of Major Westbrook and Master Sergeant Williams, the youth of Overton are fast becoming prepared to meet the future that faces them.

Future Military Strategists

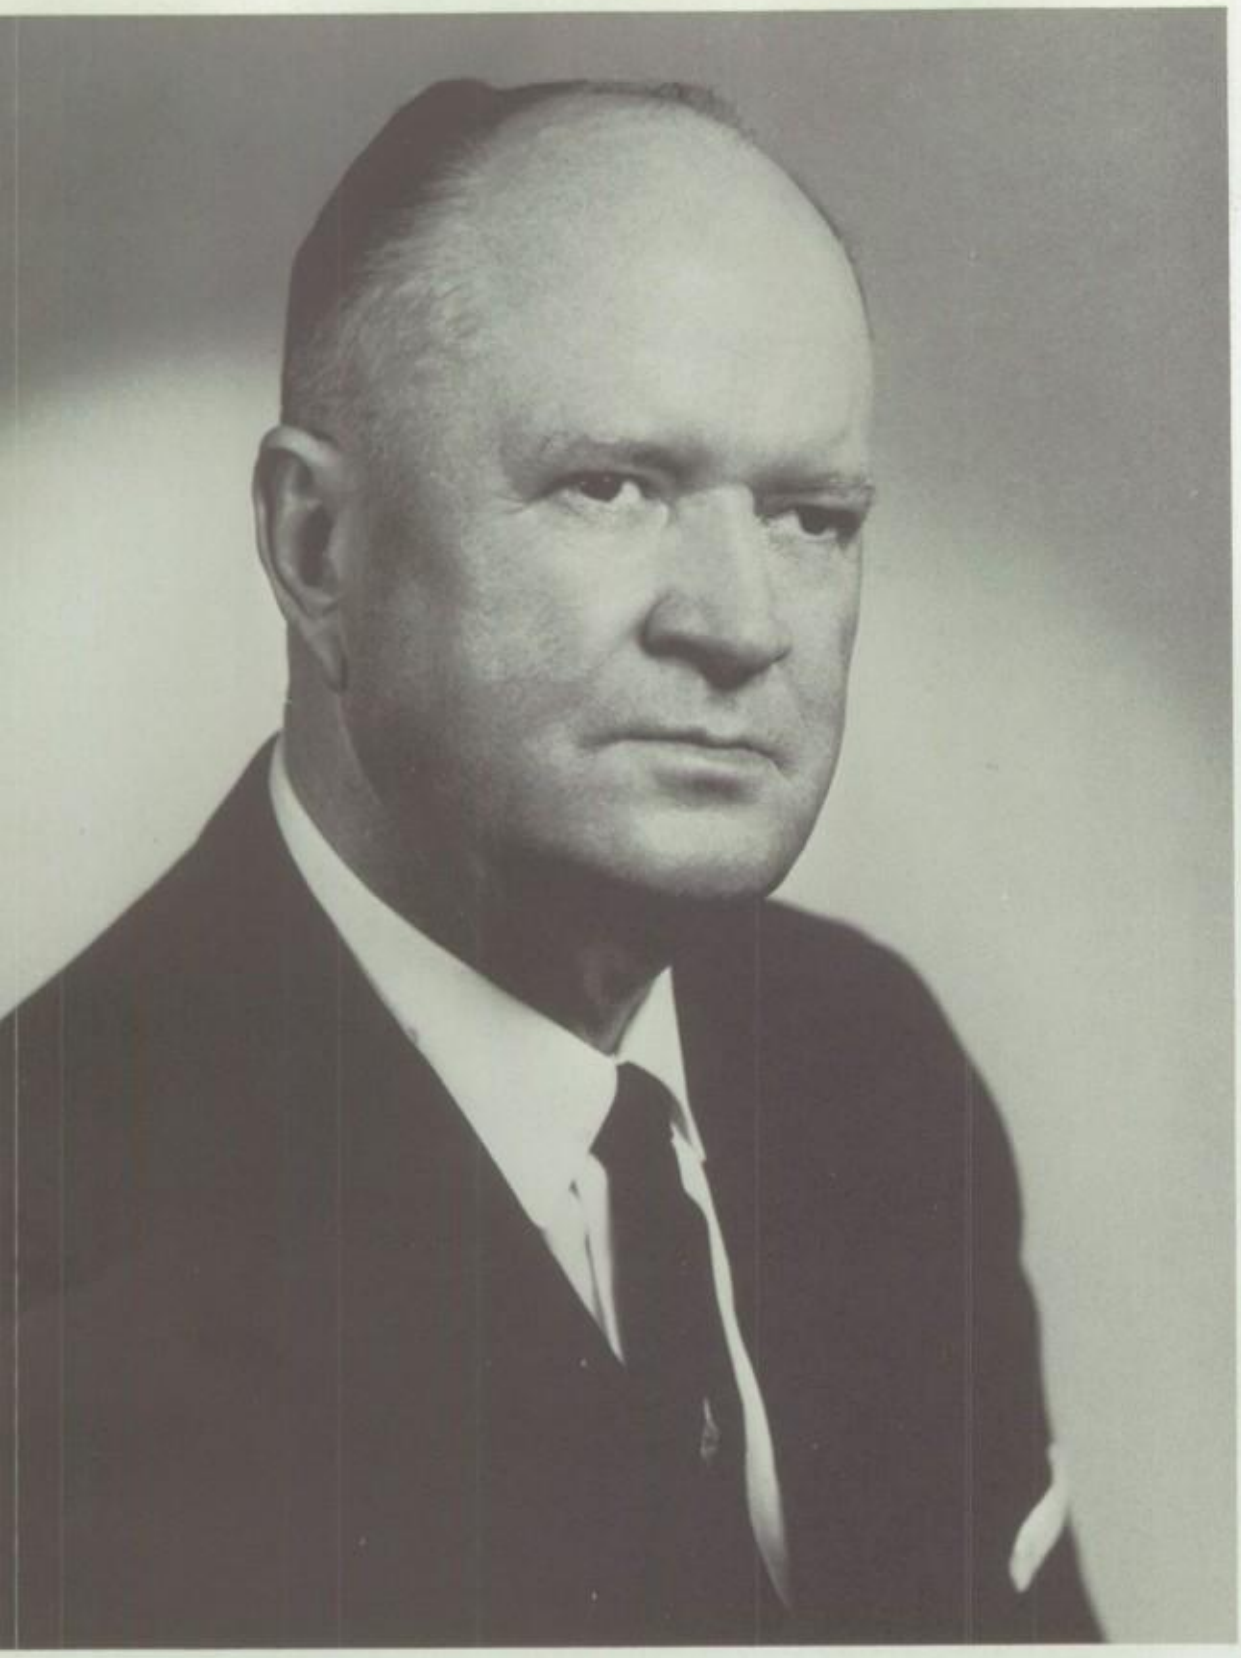
Faculty

Remaining after the halls of Overton have been vacated will be many cherished memories. Among these, the faculty and the administration will rank high. During this important time of our lives—the transition between youth and maturity—these dedicated people have been available to assist and guide us. They have offered the understanding needed during the difficult times; they have helped to maintain standards when ideals seemed to be lagging. The challenge of learning which was provided by these devoted workers offered the satisfaction of having accomplished something worthwhile during the 1967-68 school year. This standard of excellence for which the Overton faculty has strived has been reached and exceeded. For this, and for all the many hours of unselfish attention, the Overton student body is appreciative and will strive to emulate this challenging example.

MR. JAMES M. HEWLETT, Principal

As administrative and educational leader, Mr. James M. Hewlett has successfully handled this position at Overton High School since it opened the last week of August 1959. It is his responsibility to schedule and facilitate all curricular and co-curricular activities within the realm of the school. Constantly seeking ways to improve the existing high standards is exemplified in the staff selected to serve the Overton student body.

School and community relations are cemented through PTA and other community activities in which Mr. Hewlett takes an active part.



Dear Seniors,

Overton's official school philosophy states that it is a school "dedicated to the fullest possible development of each individual student committed to our care." In the process of providing opportunities for this development, Overton has become one of the finest high schools in the state of Tennessee. Many factors have contributed to this—the curriculum, the activities, the facilities, the faculty, but the most valuable ingredient has been the student body. The Overton High student body has always been characterized by its enthusiasm, wholesomeness, intelligence, high sense of values and goals, and the ethical manner in which they uphold and pursue them. The Class of 1968, the seventh and largest class ever to graduate from Overton High School, has been composed of the same high quality, and we look with pride on its accomplishments and honors.

These are serious days with many of our students. Many are going into the Armed Forces to serve our country in Vietnam, and many more are weaving their post high school plans around this service. These are also complex days with many new technological advances and social changes being made each day. Each of you can see the need for more knowledge and training than has ever been necessary before.

We know that you are equal to the challenges of tomorrow's world. It is my hope that we have trained you to be aware of what is right, as well as what is wrong with our world, and that Overton has equipped each of you with the ability to think critically and with the desire and the knowledge to improve our world society.

I hope you will enjoy much success in all that you do.

Come back to Overton and visit us whenever you can.

Sincerely,

James M Hewlett

School Services —

Hundreds of students crowding around lunch tables, exchanging current gossip, and snatching that last long look before a test provide the exterior scene which is set for the Overton cafeteria. Many strange, confusing sounds all emitted from husky voices (the most common being "Grab that stool!"). The impression given to the visitor is left to one's imagination.

Underneath this jumbled mass lies the intricate workings which comprise the school services. Mrs. Everett and her assistant, along with the other lunchroom workers, keep the food situation under control. They are kept busy by supervision of food preparation, the most vital of cafeteria jobs.

Also in service to this school is Mr. Jenkins, long an indispensible asset. As day custodian, he has not only kept the school in running order, but has been an ever-ready friend. Helping behind the scenes is Mr. Dunning, the night custodian. Because of these well-trained men and their able assistants, Overton may take pride in its excellent maintenance.

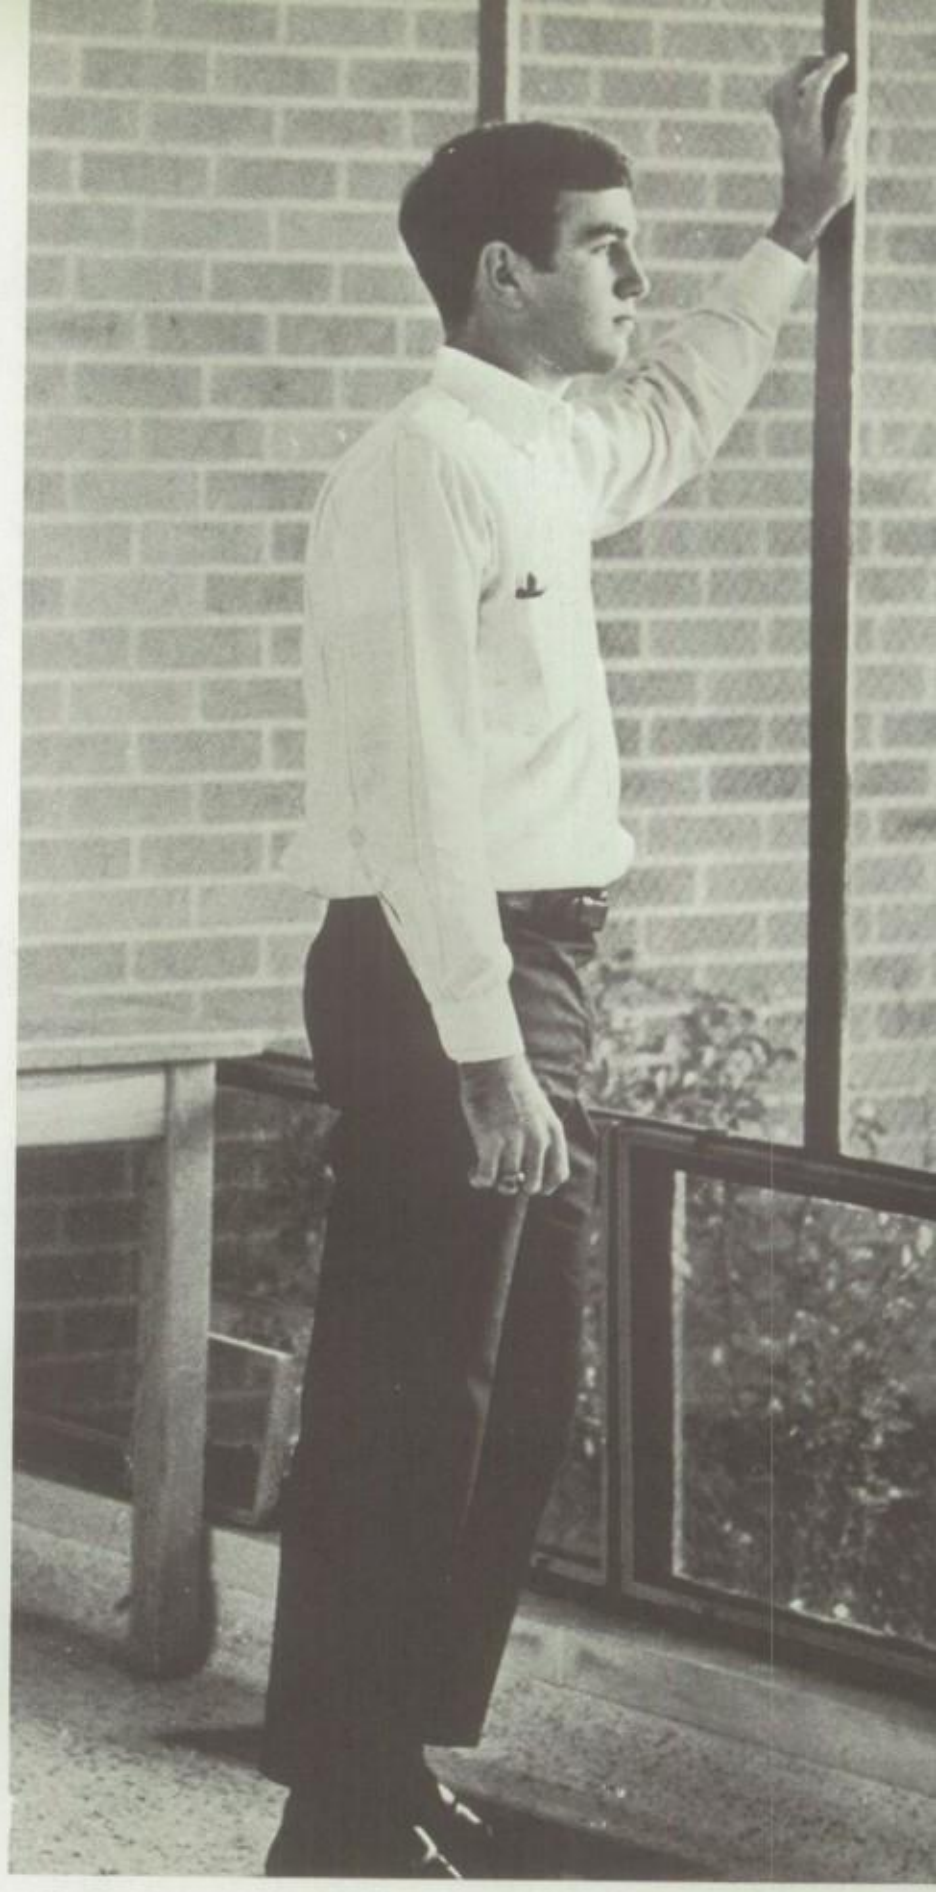
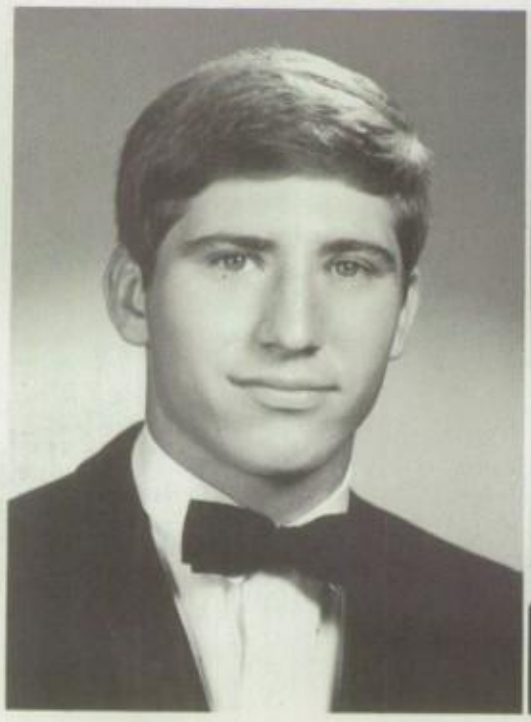
Student Council

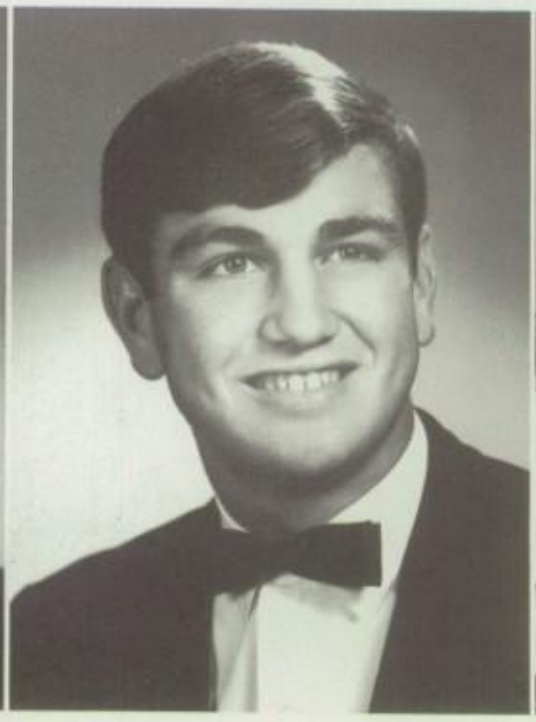
The establishment of a unified, working Student Council marks a tradition in the heritage of Overton High School. The capable leadership of the Student Council under its President Steve Collums is displayed in the dedication and willingness to cooperate exhibited by its members.

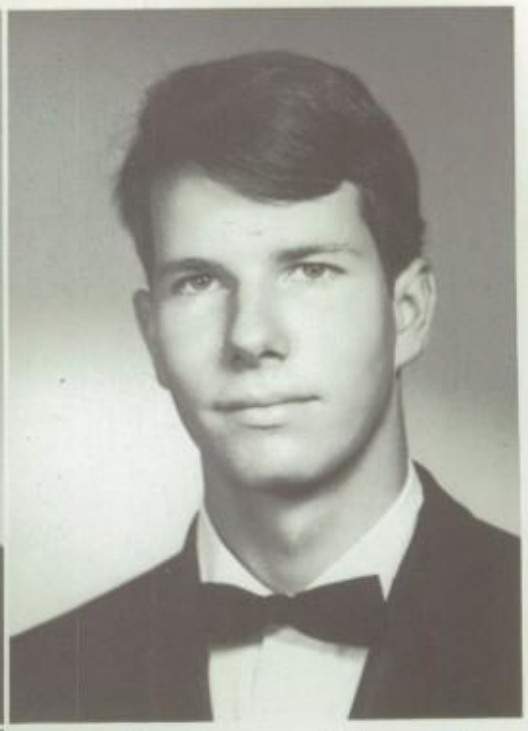
The Student Council has served a four-fold purpose this year by representing the student opinion to the administration, conducting meetings with the Student Council Representatives, sponsoring many drives for charitable organizations, and taking action to improve conditions in the cafeteria.

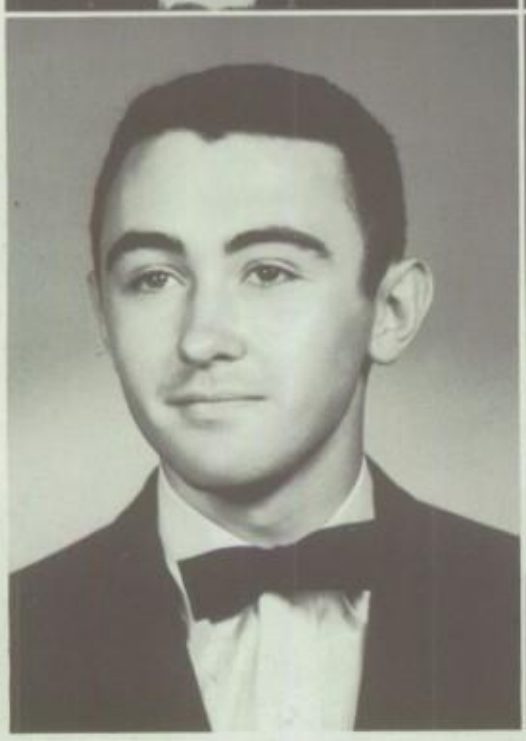
This year's officers are: President—Steve Collums; Boys' Vice-President—Robert Black; Girls' Vice-President—Linda Biggs; Secretary-Treasurer—Carol Dando; Commissioner of Traffic—Dave Brotherton; Commissioner of Sanitation—Jim Thompson; Commissioner of Assemblies—Rubel Burcham; Judge—Mike Lackey.

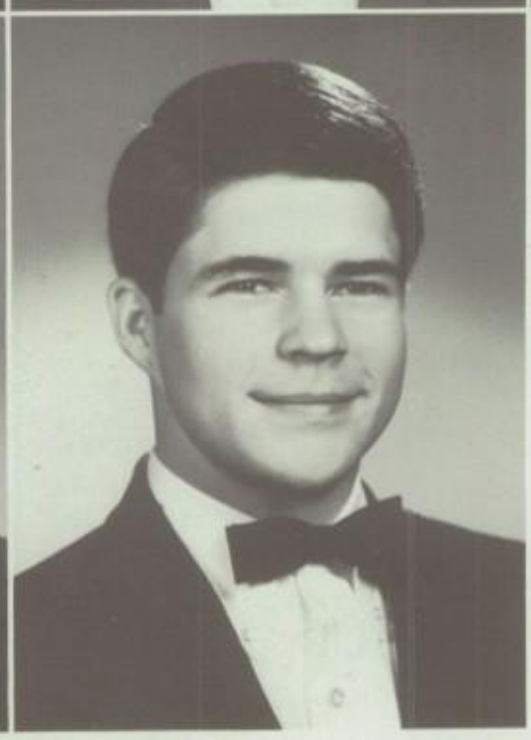












As representatives of the student body, the Student Council members carry a great deal of responsibility. Each Student Council member executes certain duties according to his office. Below: Robert and Mike lead an after-school Student Council Representative meeting; Rubel stands ready to assist Linda in case of a sudden crisis; Dave studies the problem of decongesting the halls; Carol gives out some disciplinary action with Jim on the receiving end.

Student Council Representatives: Homeroom Presidents

The Student Council Representatives are the legislative branch of the Student Government. The body is made up of the President and Vice-President of each of the homerooms. This year, their title has taken on an active meaning. The Student Council Representatives have worked on many projects and performed more services than ever before in Overton's history. In these pictures we see a few of these duties being executed. (Upper) Selling tickets to the homerooms for the Plantation Party; (lower left) casting nominations for the Student Council; distributing envelopes for the Teenagers' March Against Leukemia for St. Jude Children's Hospital.

MAΘ

Mu Alpha Theta is an International High School and Junior Mathematics Society whose purpose is to promote an interest in mathematics and scholarship. MAO accomplishes this goal by conducting monthly meetings, having outside speakers, and taking field trips. Its members possess the qualities of industry, initiative, and reliability.

To become a member of Mu Alpha Theta a student must have a "B" average, be taking a second course in math, and he must be recommended by his teachers. Danny Hinsley, member of MAO, explains "multidimensional figures" to other members of the club as Mrs. Aaron, sponsor, looks on. Mu Alpha Theta officers: Barbara Fienup, Secretary-Treasurer; Tim Brotherton, Vice-President; Bruce Garnett, President; Kay Edington, Reporter.

Quiz 'Em Team

Competition and pressure all the way. Elimination tests reduced a group of eighty plus students to a team of eight. More midnight oil, well marked newspapers, further tests and the top scoring students "learn" the right to represent our school on WMC-TV. The program is dialed and four calm (?) informed Overton representatives await the current affairs questions.

Quill and Scroll

The Quill and Scroll is a club for student journalists who have shown outstanding ability in high school publications. Its purpose is to promote interest in school publications and to recognize students who have given their time to make the yearbook and newspaper possible.

The induction of new members takes place each spring. This year twenty-seven students were chosen for membership in the Quill and Scroll at the annual banquet held on May 7, at Wilmoth's Cafeteria.

Key Club

The Overton chapter of the Key Club, sponsored by Mr. Drinkard and Mr. Volman, is a civic club which has been at Overton since 1962. This service organization has projects every month, some of which have been collecting clothing for the Goodwill Drive, collecting food for the Christmas Basket Drive, and collecting money for the Heart Fund.

The members of the Key Club are chosen by a faculty committee and the principal on the basis of character, scholastic standing, and civic interest. Although membership is restricted to young men, sweethearts are selected each year.

Members held a bake sale for the faculty and students. This was a main money-raising project. (Below) New Key Clubbers were sworn in by President, Robert Black, at a Key Club meeting.

Honor Society

Officers: Bruce Garnett, (Pres.); Susan Meeks (Vice-Pres.); Barbara Fienup (Sec.); Kay Tankersley (Treas.) and Sue Krohn (Rep).

The National Honor Society at Overton was established in 1961 with twenty-five members. At the conclusion of this school year, 1967-1968, the Honor Society had eighty-six members. Mrs. Elizabeth Williams served as the society's sponsor this year.

Requirements for membership include an academic average of 3.6 and personal traits of leadership, good character, and service.

Members served refreshments in the Home Economics room on College Night. Representatives from various colleges came to Overton to talk with interested students and their parents about a particular college. (Below) New members of the Honor Society are inducted with the traditional candlelight and tapping ceremony.

1968 Who's Who

WHO'S WHO is a select group of students who, in the eyes of the Overton faculty, have shown qualities of leadership, scholarship, and citizenship. There are many students who have maintained the minimum 2.5 average and satisfactory conduct prerequisites but have not been leaders. Therefore, they are not among those who have attained a place in the 1968 WHO'S WHO.

Although the teachers voted on these students, they were also selected by the student body of Overton, because we give these students positions of leadership. The students played a large part in the selection of the thirty-one members of this year's WHO'S WHO.

Of the senior members, the top five girls and top five boys ran for Mr. and Miss Overton. This selection was made by individual senior vote.

JOY HURT

Who's who? Joy Hurt that's who! She's that cute sophomore with the twinkling eyes and the vivacious smile you've seen rushing down the halls of Overton. Joy is the true friend who is genuinely concerned with others. She can always be depended upon to help with a job and to make sure that her share of the work is done. Her teachers obviously have been impressed by her intelligent, alert mind and her desire to learn. By the same token Joy's pleasing personality and zany sense of humor have made her popular with her peers. Who's who? Joy Hurt, a real REBEL.

Nancy McClain

LEE SILVERTHORN

Describing Lee is like building a model. Before you can start building it, you must have an excellent grade of material with which to begin. Then, following directions, glue together sincerity and willingness to serve with a great deal of intelligence. Insert the ability to accept responsibility into a big lump of energy. Join quiet dependability with honesty, add a dynamic personality, and connect a quick laugh and an interest in others. Finish by painting it all with a friendly smile. After you have finished assemblying, you find you have constructed—Lee Silverthorn.

Cissy Day

VICKI KENNEDY

Vicki Kennedy is a ruly unique person, well- iked by everyone. In her ophomore year at Over- on, Vicki's dedication as been proven by her lependability and effi- iency in her many ac- ivities and by her main- enance of a high scho- astic average. Vicki's riendliness and sincerity ave gained for her the espect and admiration of her fellow students. Recognizing her qualifications, they have elected her to positions of leadership and responsibility. A capable and concerned individual, Vicki is always able, always willing to serve. All of these fine qualities have combined to make Vicki Kennedy an outstanding member of our student body.

Julie Chapman

WALLACE McALEXANDER

When the field is under water, who do you turn to to find out if ROTC drill is off? Wally McAlexander—a reliable authority. Wally stands out in a crowd. He was chosen from three hundred cadets to be an officer. Always on the scene, he is ready to lend a helping hand. I met Wally the first day of school—a friend in the crowd of faces. Wally is a leader, modest with his achievements but ready to accept responsibility. He is a good example of Overton's leadership. Anyone who watches Charlie Chan movies is bound to be a leader.

Tom McAdams

MARGO FIENUP

How many Margo Fienups do you know? If the answer is one, don't be embarassed; Margo Fienup is an unusual name. Like her name, Margo is a unique personality characterized by her amazing wealth of energy and her willingness to use that energy to complete any task that is put before her. That energy alone, however, is not the quality which makes Margo unique. Combined with this vigor are the qualities of leadership, intelligence, a genuine concern for others, and an enthusiasm that could inspire even the most spiritless Rebel. That is indeed a winning combination—the unique character of Margo Fienup.

Susan Meeks

CAROLYN BRITT

You are now viewing a fine specimen of the human race under your microscope. At first glance you may find a somewhat reserved exterior, but squint a little bit and you'll find a keen sense of humor and a touch of sarcasm. You can stop squinting now for you are focusing on her beauty and intelligence, which are very easily seen. From time to time you will notice the specimen hopping around and giggling. This is only natural for her—she's doing a cheer (or she finally understands Einstein's Theory of Relativity). Classification of our unique specimen is an Overton Rebel—or better yet, a Carolyn Britt.

Sharon Black

WANDA MURPHY

There is a certain glow in Wanda Murphy's dimpled grin that somehow projects her enthusiasm. Her versatility and maturity make her "just the right person" to call on for various activities, which she unselfishly pursues. Wanda is one of those rare people who has mastered the art of putting everyone else before herself, and from this humility stems her drive—for, even when she has done her share of service, and then some, she doesn't quit. A leader is characterized by such qualities. Add that she is a lady, and you have—Wanda Murphy.

Karen Indorf

DAVE BROTHERTON

There are few better liked or respected students at Overton than Dave Brotherton. He has gained the admiration and confidence of teachers and students alike. The student body showed their faith in him by electing him Traffic Commissioner this year. Dave is a well-rounded person. He participates in many school activities, is an above average student, and represents his school in sports. Perhaps his most outstanding quality is his pleasant attitude and enthusiasm for life. He is always loyal, friendly, and eager to help. Truly, I am proud to say he is my friend.

Dee Gay

CAROL DANDO

There are few possessions I value more highly than my friendship with Carol Dando. I often wonder what makes everyone like Carol so much. Maybe it's just because she is so little and cute that one can't help but love her ... or because she is dependable and always willing to do more than her share of the work ... or maybe just because she is a "true friend" and always there when you need her the most. Yes, I know why everyone likes Carol. It's because Carol is just herself. To know Carol is to know humbleness, modesty, and sincerity. Carol Dando is a true friend and an outstanding Rebel.

Linda Biggs

MIKE SUTTLE

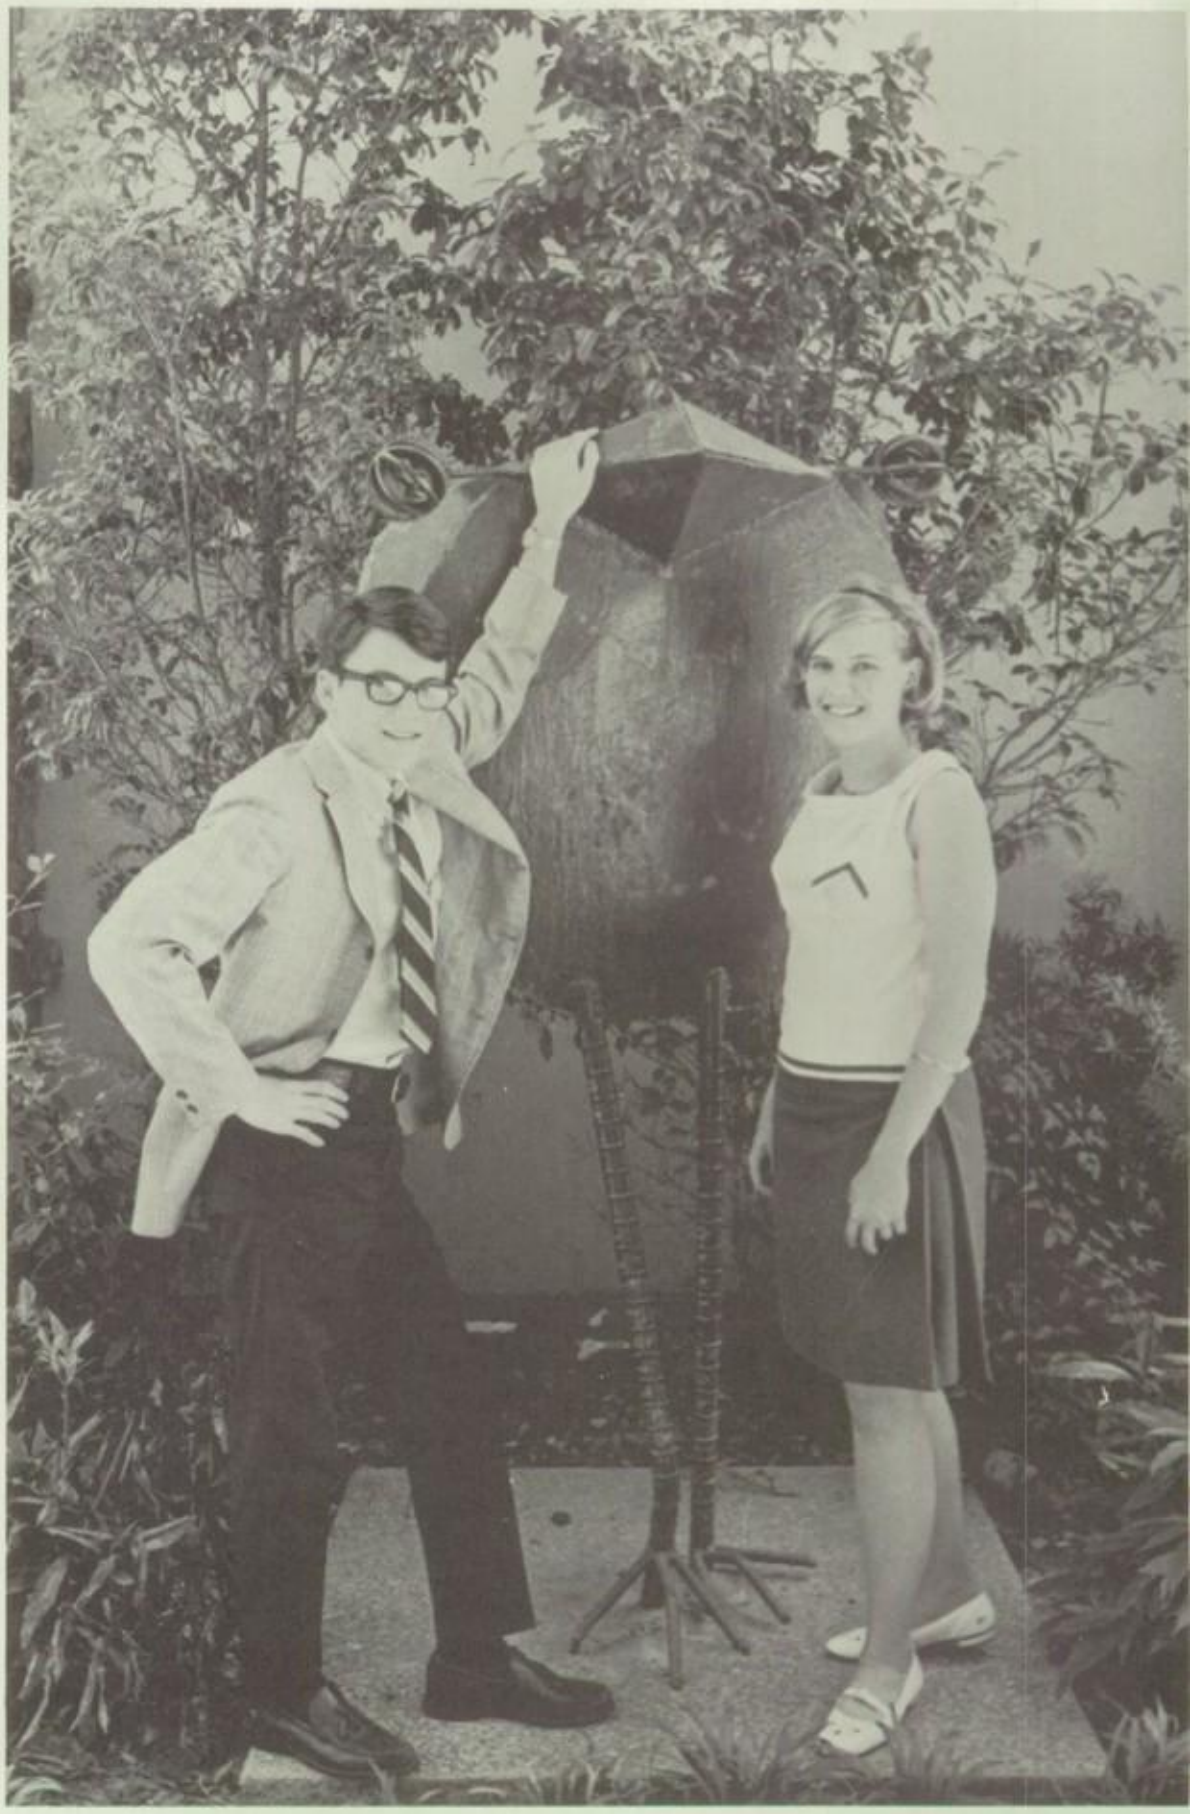
Why was this very usual person honored with this very unusual award? Mike is quite usual. Surely he is on the newspaper staff. Of course he is in the Key Club, and he is an officer in ROTC. Yet Mike Suttle is quite usual. If literary ability is usual, or if his leadership ability usual, then yes, Mike is usual. Although Mike is usual, to those who know him, he is quite the opposite. Mike is not so usual after all, is he?

Bill Monroe

RANDY SIMMONDS

The spotlight is focused on center stage. The audience applauds. Photographers snap pictures and reporters rush to the nearest phone to relay the story—Randy Simmonds, LEADER. Though his intelligence, dependability, and determination have marked him as an outstanding personage at Overton, I picture him differently. To me, Randy is an appealing person with a sincere interest in other people. Randy's warmth and cheerfulness make being with him fun. Anyone who allows himself to be doused with water, hit on the head with a light bulb, and creamed with a pie has to have a good sense of humor. That's Randy Simmonds!

Maura Flanagan



SUSAN STOCK

I'm hard put to think of a more delightful girl that Susan Stock. She is alert and active in all school affairs, but still finds time to be the sweetest girl around. She is never too busy to listen —never to pressed to show her smile; The kind you know is sincere. She is an excellent student; her high standards are evident in the many honors she has received.

In short, I cannot name a girl showing more concern in the present and more promise in the future. Susan is the best of human beings and a joy to know.

Rubel Burcham

DONNA BUTRUM

Donna Butrum's unique personality, warm smile, and pleasant appearance are bound to make a good first impression on anyone. After knowing her longer, one finds out that she is enthusiastic in any task she undertakes. She is always there when you need her, and she is always willing to work. Her service, her yearning to help anyone, and her intelligence are a few of her numerous qualities. In her two years at Overton, she has made a place in every Rebel's heart. She displays the true Rebel spirit and is the perfect nomination for Who's Who.

Mike Callaway

LINDA DUGAN

Linda Dugan is one of those rare persons who never tries to be an attention-getter but whose hard work and determination always gain top recognition by both faculty and her fellow students. Linda is efficient, capable, and has proven herself to be most dependable, not only in school activities, but also in her loyalty and consideration for her friends. Don't be misguided by Linda's shy appearance. She has a congenial personality that is truly the sparkling quality of an Overton Rebel. These deeply sincere qualities make Linda a most outstanding and wonderful person to know.

Cendee Smith

BEVERLY McCORMICK

Knowing Beverly is liking her. Bev's optimistic outlook will carry her a long way in life. She is a sincere, honest, and thoughtful person who has a genuine concern for others. Willingness to work and readiness to learn are qualities that Beverly possesses. Being around Beverly is having fun. Seldom do you see anything but a smile on her face. She is always ready to do something new and exciting, yet she still enjoys "good, old-fashioned" fun. In my opinion, the title of Who's Who couldn't go to a greater or more deserving person.

Donna Butrum

KATHY ROELLE

Kathy Roelle is the kind of person you can't say much about. Think about it . . .

How can you describe a girl who is always ready to listen to your problems, even when she has some of her own? What can you say to make someone understand about a great sense of humor that is combined with a deep sensitivity for everything around her? No words have yet been invented to describe a great "let's get going" attitude and a mature insight that blend into an intelligent girl who is loved by everyone who knows her. There is simply nothing to say about Kathy Roelle except she's a friend who has all the traits a good friend needs.

Susan Stock

JIM THOMPSON

People remember Jim Thompson for his warm smile and unique personality, but there are more reasons for his being in Who's Who. He is a willing and able Rebel. His delightful sense of humor and friendly manner make him a special friend to all. He is a determined and dependable person.

Jim is dedicated and unselfish in contributing his time to Overton. His attitude toward school has won for him a high academic average as shown by his membership in the Honor Society. Although Jim has contributed many things to Overton, his enthusiastic Rebel spirit stands above them all.

Carol Dando

ROBERT BLACK

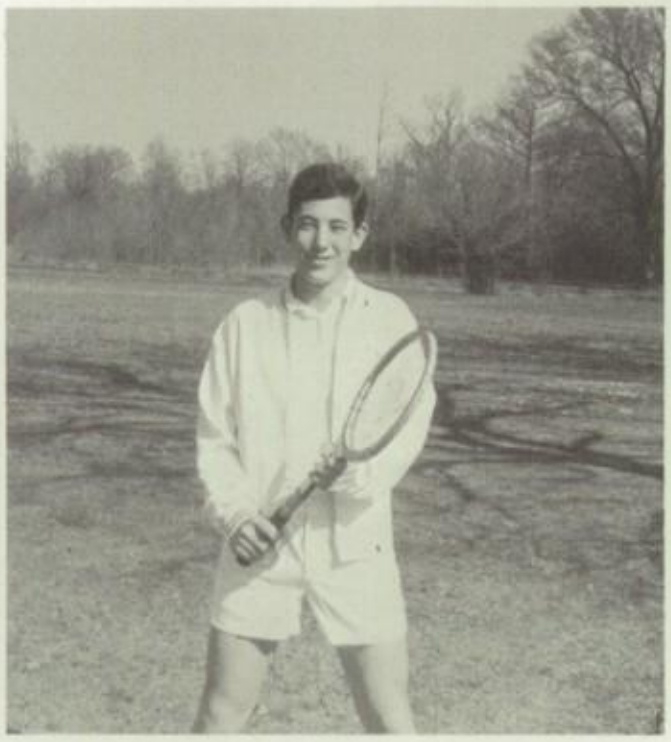
Robert Black, while being a character, is one of the outstanding personalities of this year's senior class. He is a dedicated athlete as well as an honor student at Overton. His many and varied qualities enable him to be a fine leader. He was president of the Key Club and Boys' Vice-President of the Student Council. Responsibility is Rob's middle name; his work for Overton is efficient and a guide for future leaders. Robert Black typifies the hard-working student that will be needed in the leadership of tomorrow's world.

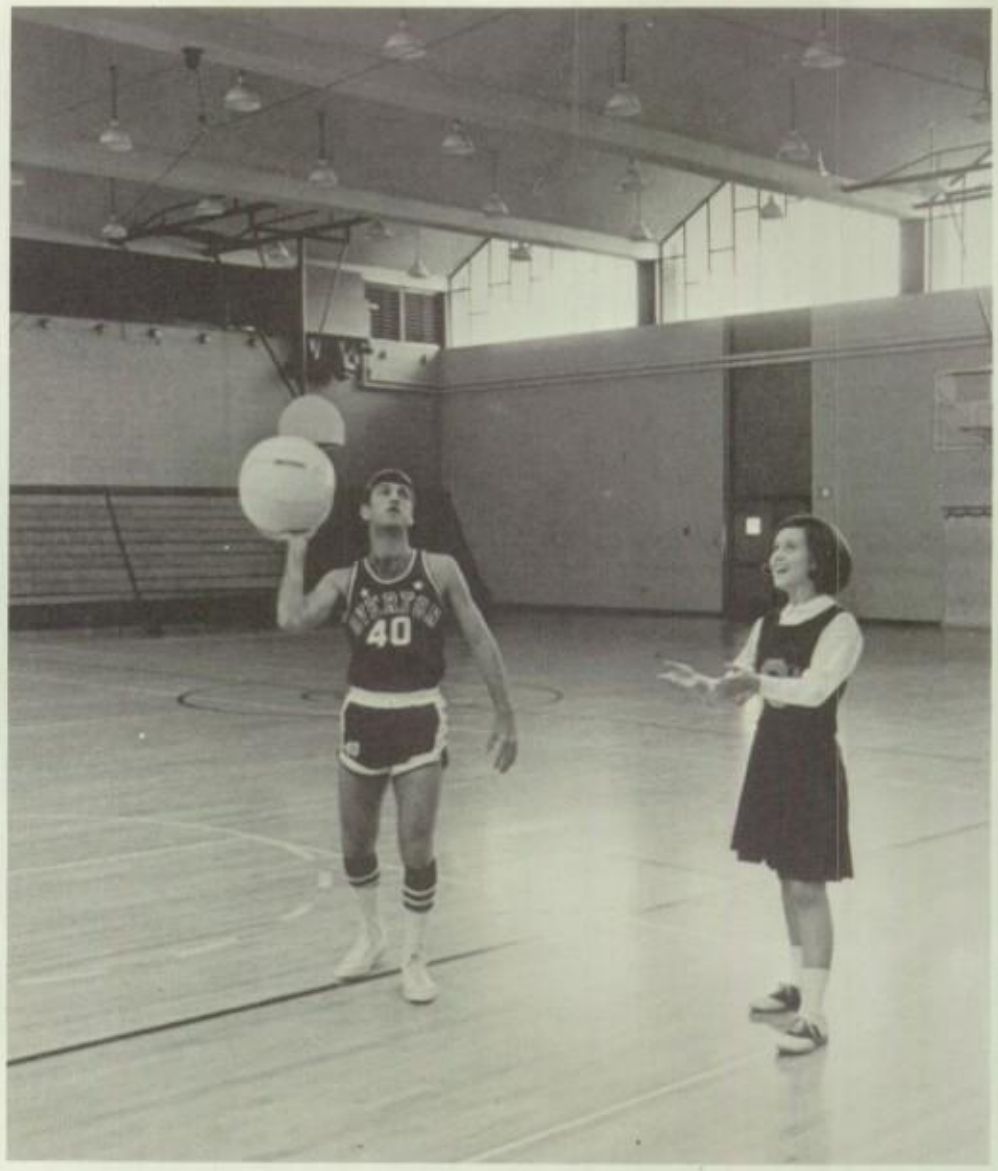
Mike Lackey

BARBARA FIENUP

Because I have been very close to Barbara for a long time, I feel qualified to tell about her "inner-person". Barbara means sunshine to me. Her warmth and brightness shine immediately on anyone who meets her. It is apparent that she is blessed with a deep, sincere feeling for others. She rejoices at the good fortune of others; the sorrow of any friend is her sorrow. To complement her sincerity, Barbara is efficient and intelligent, traits which endear her to teachers and friends who need help on homework. She is one of the few people who knows the meaning of friendship, and she gives her friendship to everyone.

Sue Krohn





JIMMY COLEMAN

Through all walks of high school life, Jimmy has demonstrated such potential and accumulated such a wealthy store of knowledge that his contributions will long be remembered by Overton. Whether it be Key Club, Student Council, or any of his many activities, Jimmy has shown himself to be a capable leader as well as a loyal follower. Jimmy's sincerity and diligence have won him great respect from his fellow students and teachers. I am sure that Jimmy's selection to the Hall of Fame as "Most Likely To Succeed" will be fully justified in years to come.

Steve Collums

STEVE COLLUMS

It is very unusual to find a person who has both the natural God-given strength of intelligence and physical strength and the cultivated characteristics of honesty, integrity, humility, and good will. Steve Collums is one of these few. Yet, even among others of this group he stands out as a leader, for his good characteristics are not merely occasionally aroused, but dominate his every act, his entire personality. Overton has benefited from this person and is deeply indebted to him. He is truly Mr. Overton.

Jimmy Coleman

KAREN INDORF

In the 1968 graduating class there are over two hundred girls, but there is one who stands out above the rest—Karen Indorf. Karen's enthusiasm and spirit are not only present in the many activities she pursues, but this spirit is felt by those around her, for her drive and personal interest in others lends a helping hand that leads. Mature, level-headed, attractive, and intelligent are only a few words to describe Karen. If I were given the power to give everyone a friend, I would give them Karen Indorf, a friend who is one in a million.

Wanda Murphy

SUE KROHN

Sue is a special kind of person. Sure, she has excellent grades, and she participates in school activities. These are prerequisites for recognition. Sue has one thing more, though. She has personality. You don't notice it —unless you talk to her. Then you can't miss it. It's an intermingling of just the right things—character, wit, vivacity, and spirit. It doesn't matter if she's talking about Alice's Restaurant or laying out the newspaper; she's the best kind of person to be around.

Kay Edington

BLAIRE VOLMAN

One of the most dedicated people I have ever known, Blaire possesses the "just right" combination of seriousness and frivolity. Her poise and intelligence contribute to her ability to appear before large audiences. Blaire is reliable and never fails to complete her responsibilities. She is in great demand, for she seeks excellence in everything she undertakes. It is no wonder that she was selected for Who's Who; she is a willing and resourceful student—a warm and truly human friend.

Kay Tankersley

BRUCE GARNETT

If someone were to describe Bruce Garnett, he would begin by identifying with him the qualities of honesty, sincerity and loyalty. Not only is he a mature thinker and faithful friend, but he is also regarded with respect and admiration at Overton and in the entire community. As a Rebel he is involved in many academic and extracurricular activities, Bruce exemplifies the characteristics of one esteemed by peers and teachers alike. Because of these, and many other attributes, Bruce deserves recognition bestowed upon him by being chosen to Who's Who.

Blaire Volman

MAURA FLANAGAN

We here in Bumpity, Kansas just couldn't wait for the Seärs Sprang Catalog. I wanted to order me one of them Maura Flanagans. People tell me you just can't find anything much better. She comes in all cheerful colors; we rarely see a blue Maura Flanagan. If you do happen to find one there's always a cheerful cover to hide her sadness under. She comes with a lifetime guarantee of dependability, honesty, and sincerity. Since Maura Flanagan is so versatile, she comes in economy size; she gives so much, but expects so little in return. The supply is limited, 'cause there aren't too many Maura Flanagans in the world.

Barbara Fitts

SUSAN MEEKS

Have you ever tried to paint a portrait of Susan Meeks? To begin, one would blend a heaping amount of sincerity, honesty, ability, and maturity. One must also add a bright hue of enthusiasm and friendliness. A fresh and genuine sense of humor is synonymous with Susan Meeks. Radiating from her smile, one senses her sincere concern and friendliness. These qualities have enabled Susan to attain the heights she has reached and insured inevitable success in the future. I am lucky to be able to say, "Susan Meeks is my friend."

Barbara Fienup

RUBEL BURCHAM

Who is always behind the scene? Who is always beside the scene? Who is always in front of the scene? There is only one possible answer to all these questions. That answer is Rubel Burcham. Rubel's ability to organize and coordinate is unsurpassed. Not only is Rubel able to cope with problems, but he cares about people. Rubel has shown his willingness to work as this year's Commissioner of Assemblies. Italy has had its Mussolini; Germany, its Hitler, and France its Napoleon; but, Overton has had its Rubel.

Randy Simmonds

STEVE SCHRADER

Accomplishing his duties quietly is a characteristic that sets Steve Schrader apart from other leaders at Overton. Humility and sincerity mark Steve as a boy whose friends first learn to respect him and then to value his friendship deeply. Steve never seeks recognition, yet always deserves it. He does not become your acquaintance —he becomes your friend. To understand his serene attitude isn't difficult because Steve possesses a deep faith, a kindness for people, a respect for life, which all make him the truly deserving person he is.

Mary Jane Sanders

LINDA BIGGS

Have you ever known anyone to whom you could turn when the "world was against you". Or maybe someone who seemed a little more thoughtful than everyone else and always seemed to find time to do the extra things that add so much to a friendship? Perhaps you have known someone who is all that you wish you could be. If you have known someone like this then chances are, you know Linda Biggs. Linda is outstanding—she is intelligent, mature, and compassionate. She's the person with an extra helping hand even though her hands are quite full. If you have known her, you can never forget her—Linda Biggs.

Susan Goff

KAY TANKERSLEY

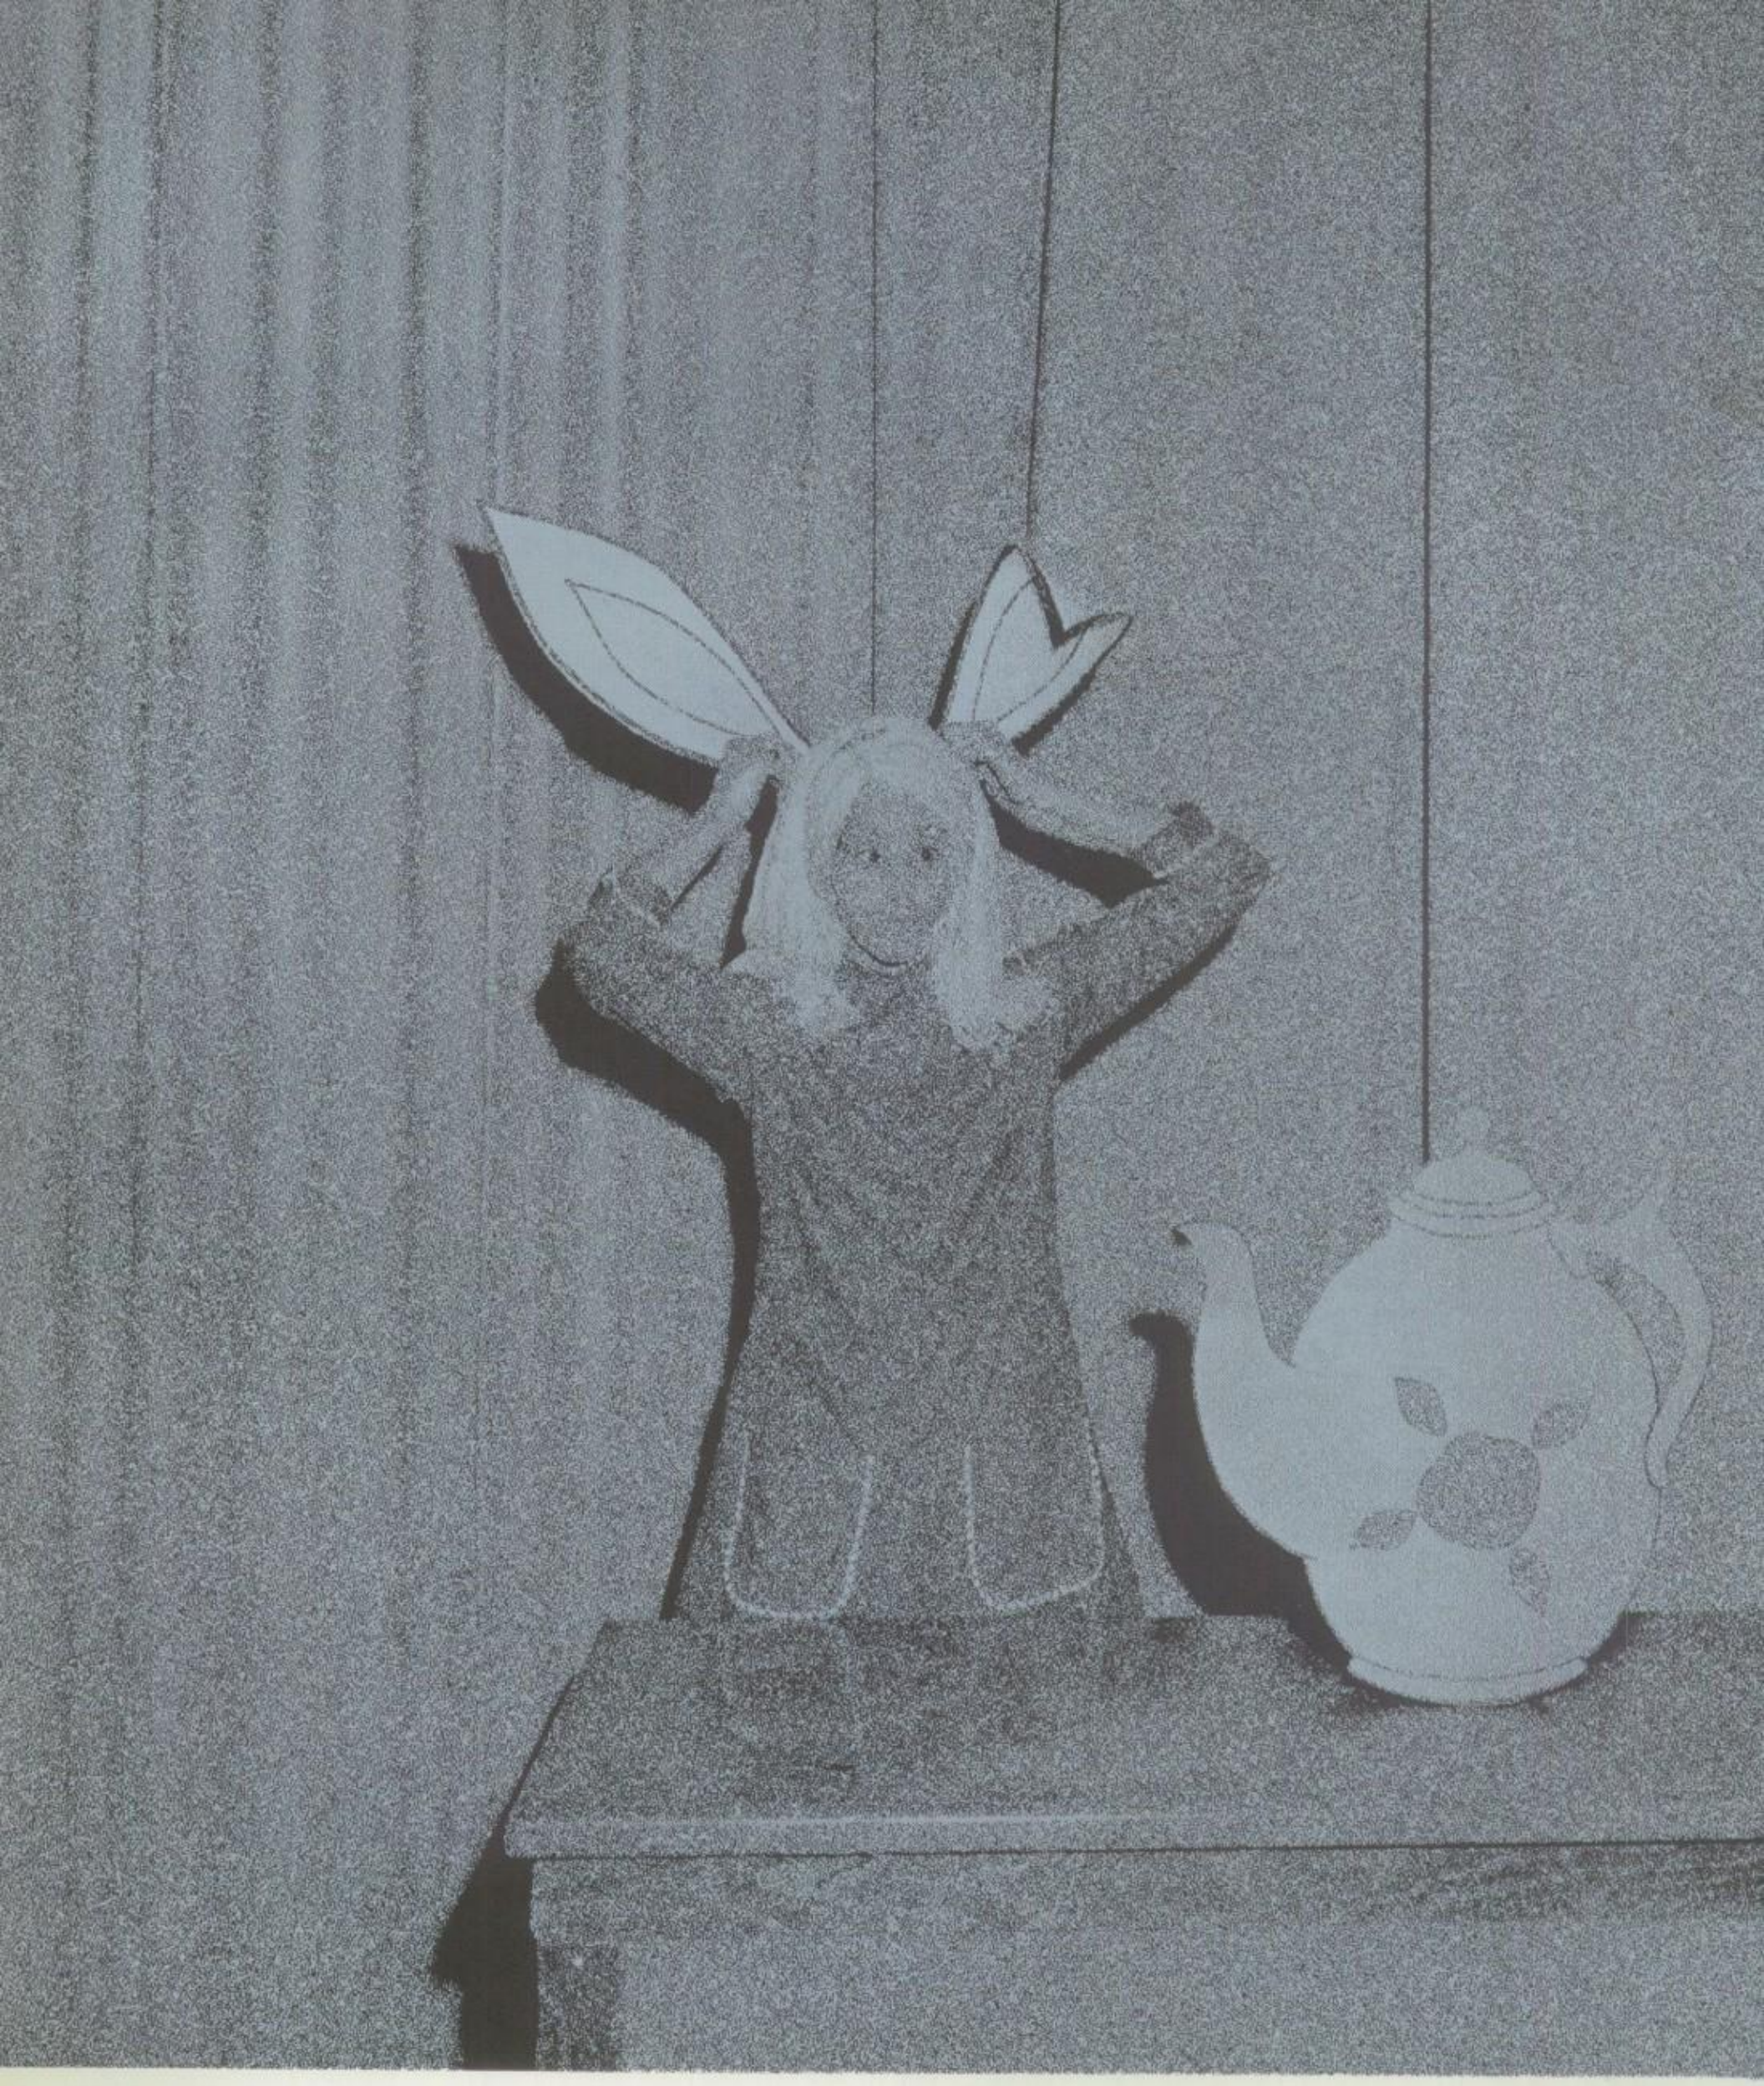
Seniors are a unique breed of students. The leaders and the followers are separated by the stress of the demands of finishing high school. The 1968 graduating class has one young lady high on its list of outstanding leaders. Her name is Kay Tankersley. In her sophomore and junior years, Kay received honors, proving her ability to the school she has supported. Kay deserves these because she never places the rewards of a task above the task itself. As a friend and leader, everyone who has met Kay will agree that she is remarkable.

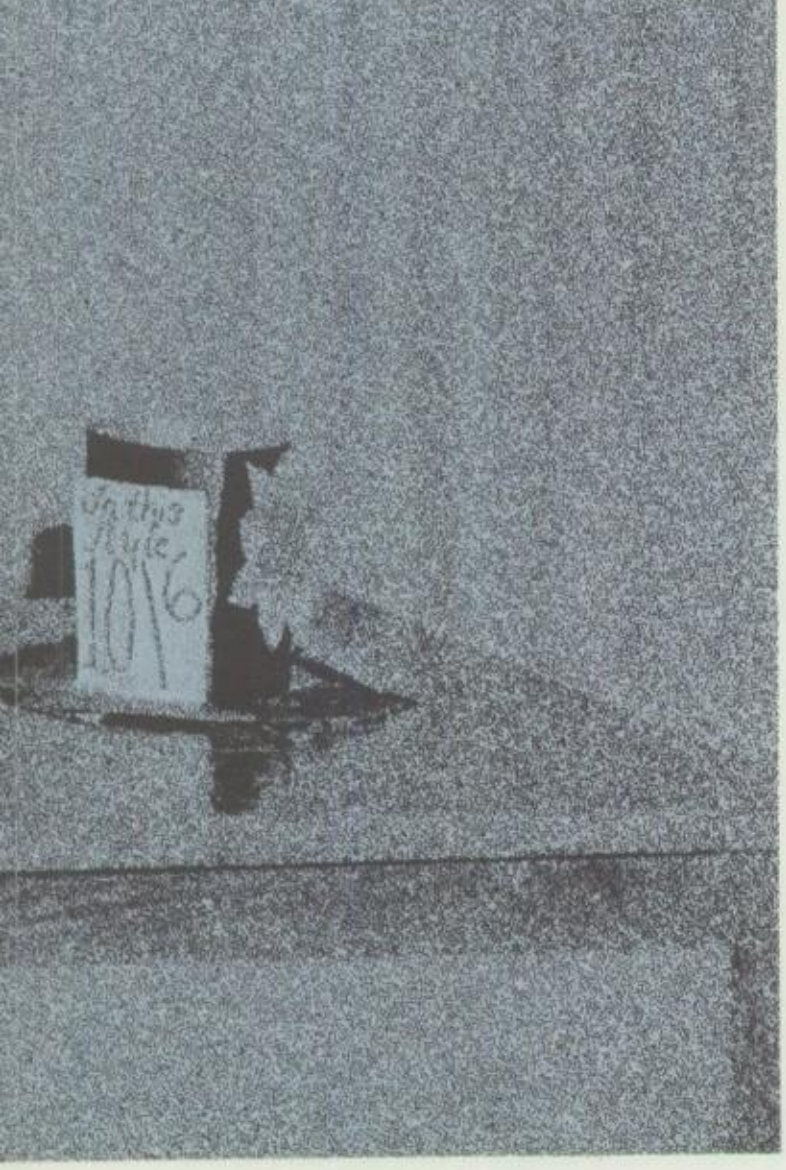
Susan Anstey

Mr. and Miss Overton

Steve Collums and Linda Biggs were selected as Mr. and Miss Overton of 1968 by the vote of the senior class of Overton High School. Steve and Linda were among the five top senior Who's Who members chosen by the faculty and out of these five were chosen by individual vote.

Linda and Steve have shown themselves to be outstanding in such areas as leadership, character, and scholarship. Beyond these fine qualities they both possess outgrowing personalities and the fine sense of humor needed so much in order to get along with others. To Steve Collums and Linda Biggs Overton proudly bestows the title MR. AND MISS OVERTON.





Features

Rebel Queen Pageant

Trying preparations, continued rehearsals, and last minute panic are all components of being a contestant in the Rebel Queen Pageant. None of the above are pleasant experiences, but each senior girl secretly would welcome the opportunity to be placed in these situations. The 1968 contest was characterized by empty stomachs, shaky knees, and eighteen nervous girls. Among these was one girl who shone above all, Miss Vicki Maddox, Rebel Queen for 1968. Each year at Overton, contestants are sponsored by a variety of school organizations. The girls are selected according to their poise, talent, beauty, and speaking ability. Each contestant is required to give a two minute after dinner speech the night previous to the pageant. It is at this time that a banquet is held for the contestants, sponsors, and the yearbook staff. The presentation of the girls in evening gown and talent is seen the following night. The climax of the pageant comes when the finalists are announced. This year's finalists were Linda Biggs, fourth alternate; Vicki Stannard, first alternate; Vicki Maddox, Queen; Karen Indorf, second alternate; and Debbie Hicks, third alternate. Other contestants were Diane Lewis, Terri Jacobs, Sharon Black, Shelly Page, Annette Delap, Carole Todd, Susan Meeks, Susan Anstey, Barbara Fitts, Susan Digett, Susan Goff, Deorenda Dye, and Maura Flanagan.

(Upper left) Susan Doggett displayed her artistic ability with the showing of original fashion creations. (Lower left) Preparation for the pageant began with tedious rehearsals and endless questions. (Middle right) At the banquet Vicki Stannard, like other contestants, dramatized her speech with her antics. (Far right) Miss Debbie Hicks, alternate to the Queen, charmed the audience with a thoughtful answer to a thought provoking question. (Upper right) Congratulations to the Queen brought the closing of another Rebel Queen Pageant, but with that closing were brought the exciting and unforgettable memories to be enjoyed by many people for many years.

Rebel Queen

Vicki Maddox

The true Southern Belle has become a rarity in these modern times, but Overton's Rebel Queen for 1968 is typical of that beauty and charm which graced the South a century ago.

Vicki Maddox exemplifies that beauty and talent which is so necessary for the title of Rebel Queen. During her senior year Vicki has been honored with the title of second alternate to the Football Queen. She is a member of the Aviation Club and has participated in the Art Festival.

(Upper) Judges included such persons as the honorable Mayor Henry Loeb. (Center left) Buddy and David lightened some of the backstage pressure with their capers. (Center right) Rubel Burcham and his backstage committee proved to be a valuable asset to the contest. (Lower) Overton's Art Department worked steadily to prepare the outstanding sets for the Rebel Queen Pageant.

Plantation Party

In keeping with the traditional design and creativity of the Old South, the attractive stage decorations for the Seventh Annual Plantation Party were again constructed by Overton's superior Art Department. Against the colorful stage setting Rick Edwards and Nina Isom were announced as the 1967 Colonel Reb and His Lady. Annually this honor is bestowed upon the senior boy and girl who is considered most popular by the student body. The "royal" court is composed of those sophomores, juniors, and seniors deemed most representative of the true Rebel spirit. (Below) Front row: Susan Goff, John Mohundro, Linda Biggs, David Didier, Holly Hossel, Ronnie Becker, Debbie Hicks, Tommy Stephenson, Gwen Tippett, Ricky Jablonski. Back row: David Maxey, Vicki Kennedy, Randy Cowell, Margo Fienup, Steve Wherry, Tinian Vandergriff, Steve Hanley, Carolyn Britt, Dave Brotherton, Wendy Jones, Randy Simmonds, Carol Dando.

Junior Miss

An All-American girl: wholesome, but not dowdy; brilliant, but not "book-wormish;" friendly, but not ostentatious—these characteristics typify Overton's Junior Miss, Kay Tankersley. Kay seems to exemplify all the qualities which set her apart from the ordinary and allow her to transcend into the "special." As comfortable in class as she is on stage, Kay's rare combination of brains, talent, and poise make her the obvious Overton entry in the Memphis Junior Miss Pageant. Competition for the title was indeed keen as the following vied for the privilege of selection: Maura Flanagan, Kay Edington, Susan Anstey, and Susan Meeks. As a suitable ending to the delightful evening, Kay was crowned the 1967-68 Overton Junior Miss by Steve Collums, president of the Student Council.

Faculty-Alumni King

For the past eight years, Mr. Bernard L. Drinkard has served Overton, its students, and faculty unselfishly as a teacher, leader, counselor, and friend.

He is a man who can be recognized as having successfully combined high scholastic standards in classes with genuine interest and leadership toward each student. He has devoted many active years to extra-curricular activities, encouraging students to set high goals and strive to reach them. He has gained his leadership ability from his wealth of experience. In 1952, Mr. Drinkard was named to Who's Who in American Education. To receive this high honor, he had previously undertaken positions such as principal and superintendent of various schools.

This year, to express Overton's appreciation, Mr. Drinkard was selected as King of Overton's 1968 Faculty-Alumni Basketball Game. As king Mr. Drinkard was escorted by Overton's various queens: Holly Hossel, Nina Isom, and Kay Tankersley.

This versatile Overton teacher may be seen anywhere from the classroom to the golf links where he and Overton's principal, James Hewlett, play regularly.

With the beginning of August came the beginning of football. Running in the early morning was separated only by hard, hard practice. Keeping in mind the first game with Frayser on September 8, the coaches, headed by Don Robinson, began to synchronize the functions of the team. During this month the coaches improved the talents of some and discovered new talents in others. In this short period of time, the players and coaches became very well acquainted. The clash of pads and sleds was the result of many hours of hard but beneficial work. Through these days of long practice, the coaches and players began to notice the most talented and most spirited players. From these were chosen the captain, Rick Edwards, and the co-captains, Robert Black and Tommy Stephenson. Having made these selections, the Rebels were ready for their first game.

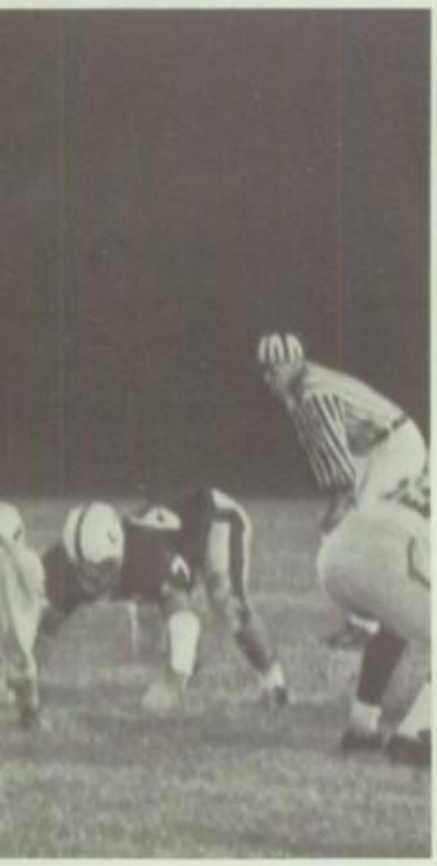
The first game at Firestone was an example of the accomplishments of the first weeks of practice. The Rebels displayed a strong running game displayed by the lead Mike Mashburn, and also a strong passing game with John Potts as quarterback. The next game with Messick proved to be a defensive duel, followed by the loss to Trezevant on a cold rainy night. The Rebels came back after the loss with a well balanced attack to beat Northside. Many times during the season, the fans saw two completely different teams between the halves, and the Treadwell game was not an exception. The next win was probably the most gratifying of all by beating Manassas although they were favored.



The fans at the homecoming game probably saw the best played football of the season. In this game Potts displayed some of the reasons for his getting All Mid-South. The last two games were the most crucial of the season pitting Overton against White Station and C.B.H.S. The Rebels put up a good fight but the last half splurge was not quite enough to take the games. Although Overton's record was 5 wins and 4 losses, the Rebels deserve a great deal of credit for their hard work.

Although Cross Country is not yet a major city sport, it has already gained its popularity at Overton by having the best record in the school. Paced by the fine running of John Mohundro, the Overton runners lost only one race in the city. The Rebels showed fine form in the state meet—placing fifth. With the return of experienced runners Steve Stahl and Pete Eldridge we will be expecting another fine season from the Cross Country Team.

The beauty and charm of our Cheerleaders this year was surpassed only by their hard earned ability to "make spirit". Their smiling faces, friendly attitude, and hard work instilled a spirit of tradition into everyone with whom they came in contact. The work they did was carried from the playing field to the classroom and halls. Their undying willingness to help fellow classmates "cheer up" is a job for which they were not trained and one for which they will receive no recognition but their inborn talent is something for which we can all be thankful. The Cheerleaders work also reached beyond the school by helping the Student Council and leading cheers for the hockey fans. Through all their efforts it can be said that this is the finest group of young ladies to be found anywhere.

Statistics, won and loss columns, individual and team honors, and press clippings would justify calling our 1967-68 basketball season a successful one. But from a coach's standpoint it will be remembered, not for these many wins, but for those few losses.

I cannot explain why our loss on March 8th hurt this coach as it did. If hurt could be measured I now have a lifetime supply. I can only justify my feelings as one who subconsciously tried to personally absorb all the disappointment and heartache that prevailed in the eyes and hearts of our many, many loyal fans.

But time is our prescription and we reverently thank the Great Physician for this solace. There will be another year and, with a new goal in mind, I say "Thanks" to our Rebel followers. "May your tribe increase."

Respectfully,

Bob Miller

Y-Teen Basketball

There's something about sports that even girls like. This year the Overton Y-Teens had a basketball team consisting of 17 girls, all active members of the club. Having a schedule of 8 games and losing only 2 of these, they advanced to the city tournament.

If you were ever at Davis Park on Friday afternoons you could have heard and seen the group as they displayed their "Rebel" spirit.

The Y-Teens also participated in volleyball and softball events.

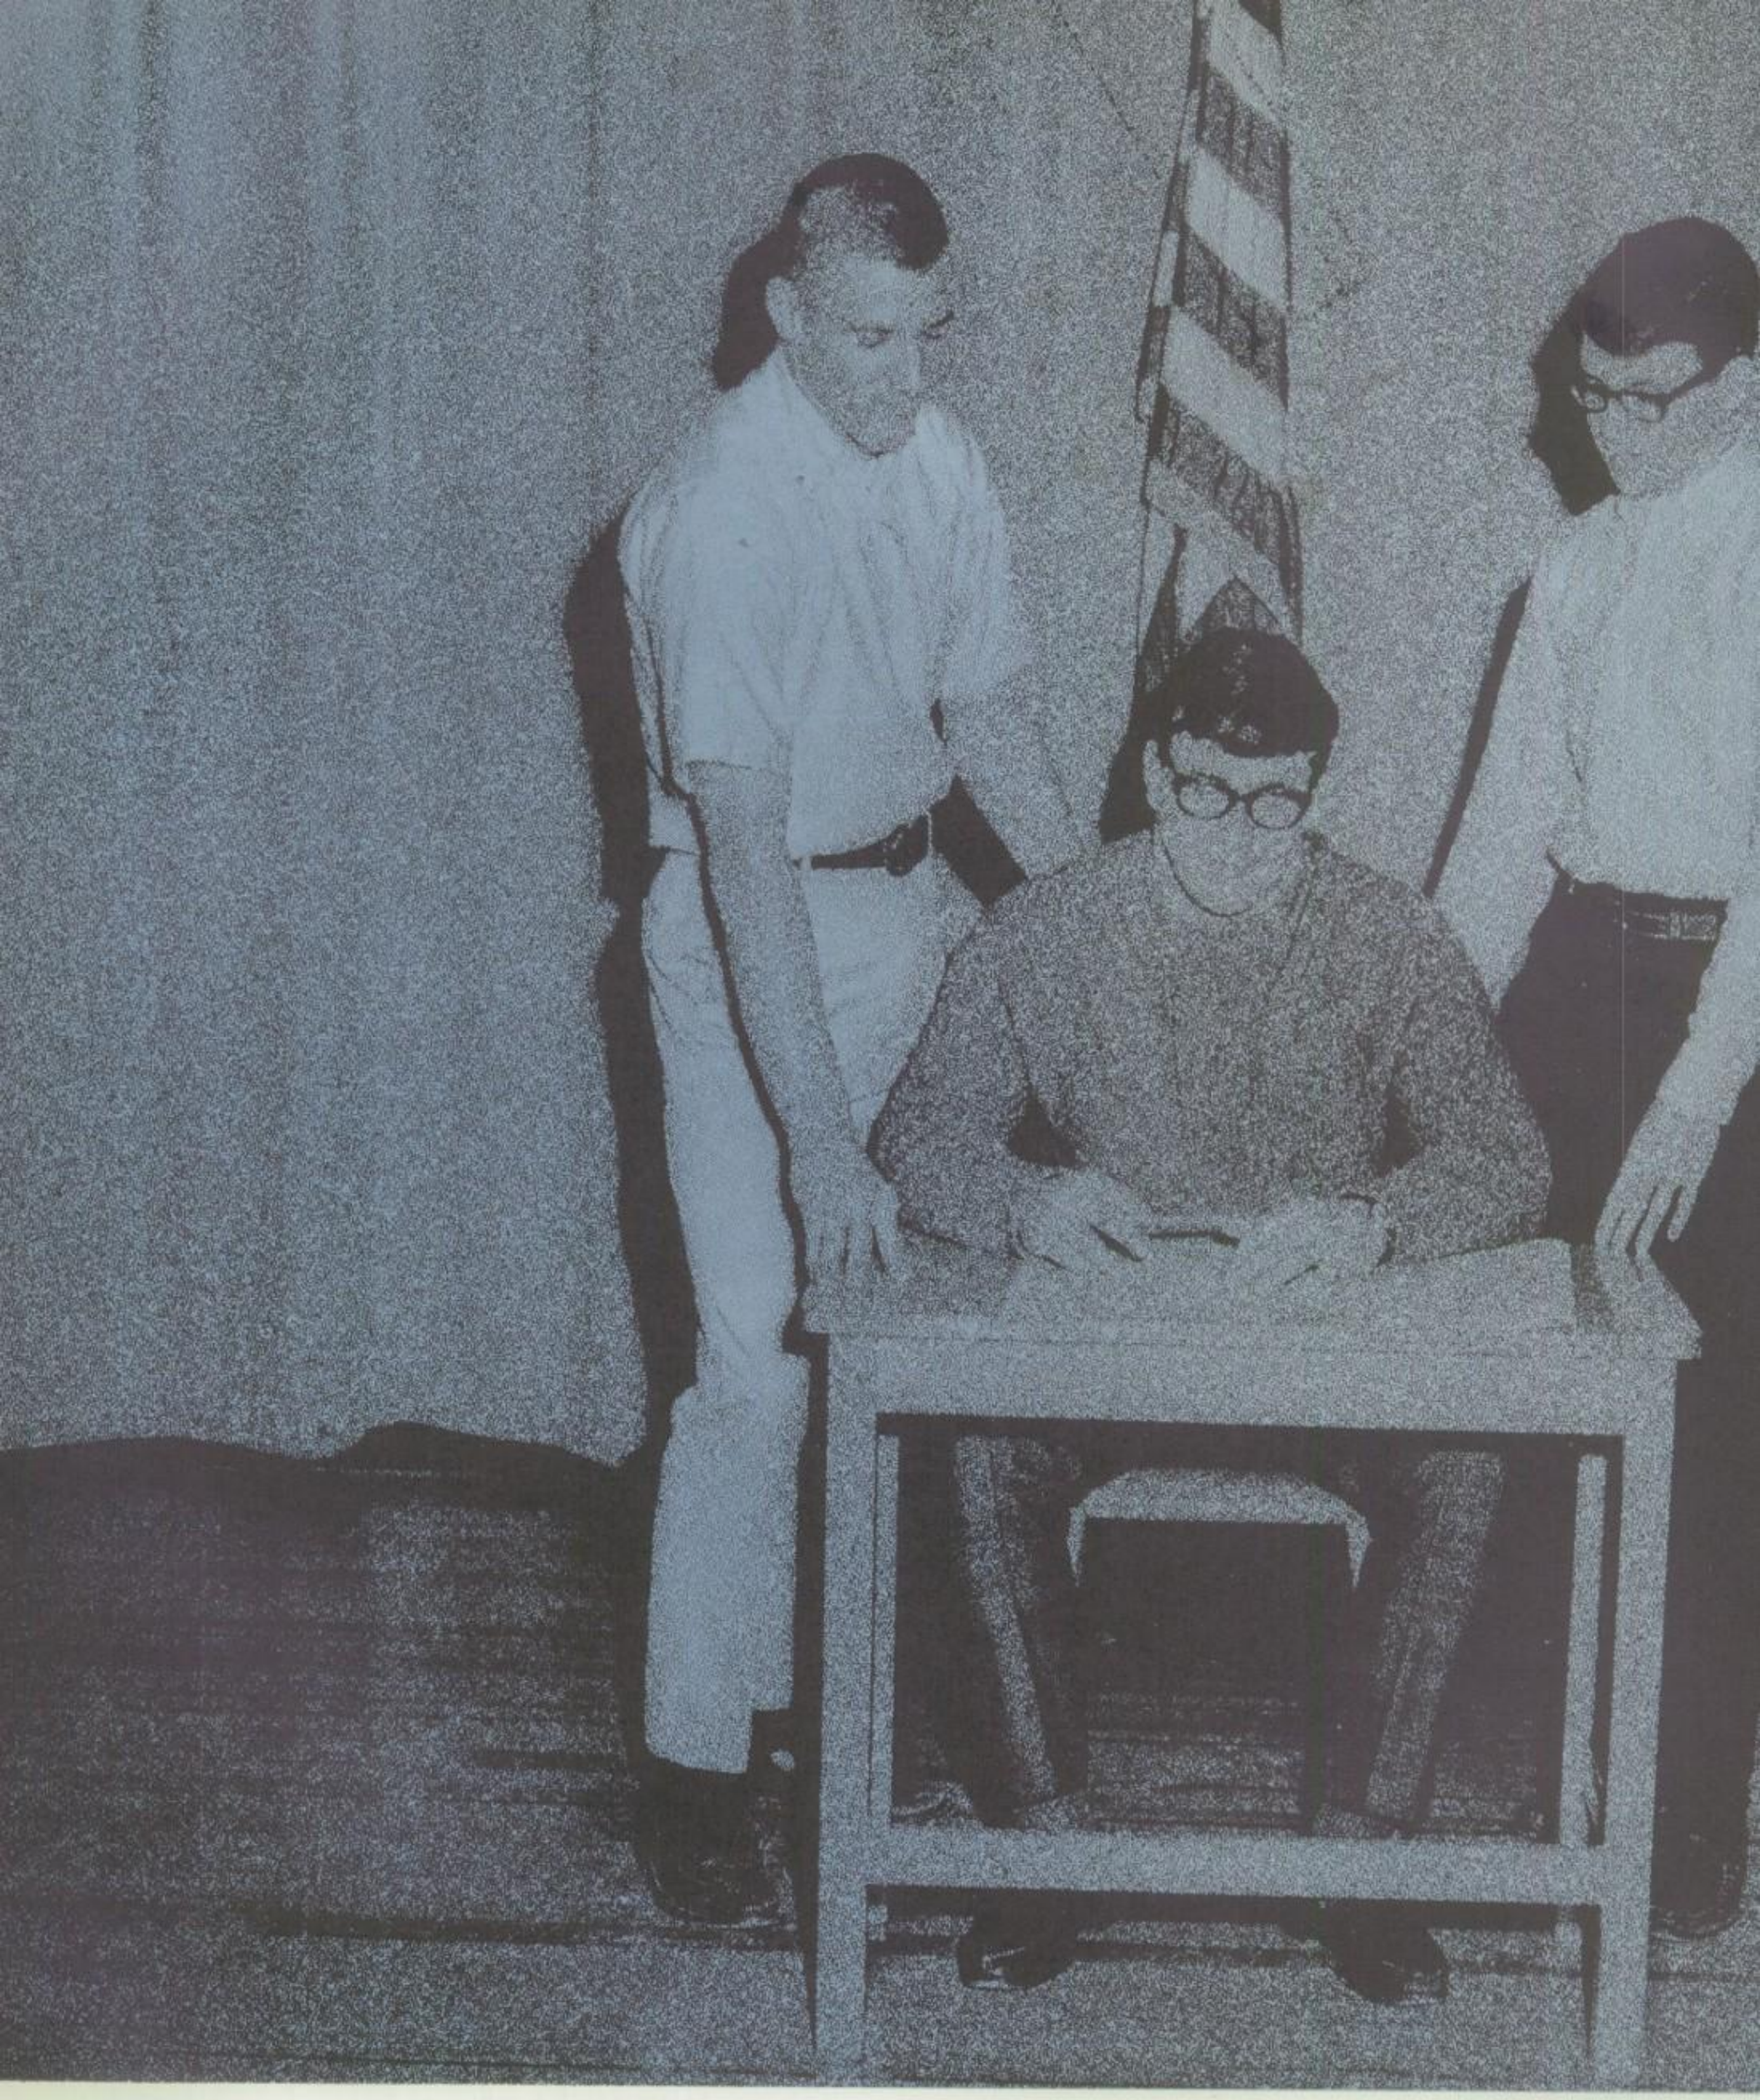
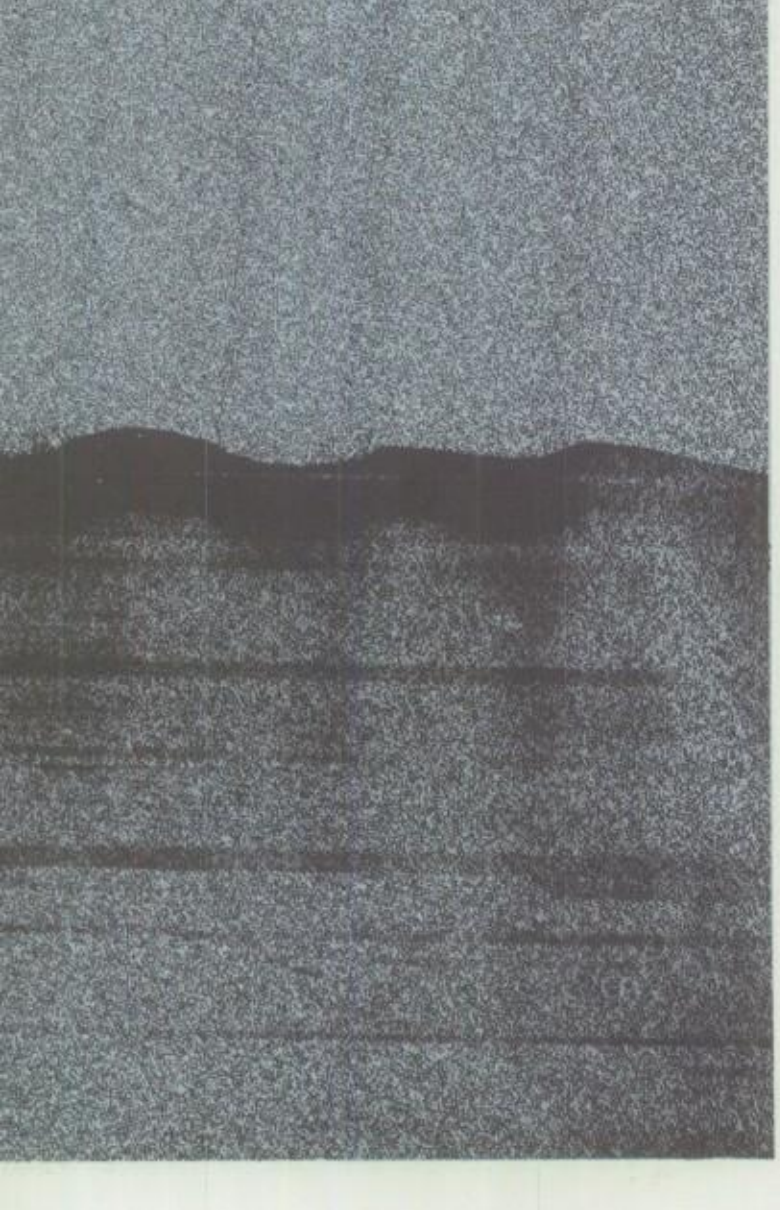
After our pages went to press, the Overton Baseball Team won the 4A Championship. Avid Overton fans participate as interested spectators as the team enters the city tournament.





Classes

Outstanding Seniors

Membership in the Hall of Fame is an honor bestowed upon sixteen seniors. These are "special" people, people who fully possess the qualities of one certain ability. Elected by us, the senior class of Overton High, they represent us today and in the future.

"Friendliest" in the class of '68 are congenial Holly Hossel and amicable Ricky Jablonski.

Always having a witty comeback are jesting Denny Duke and Woody Wall, "Wittiest".

1968 Hall of Fame

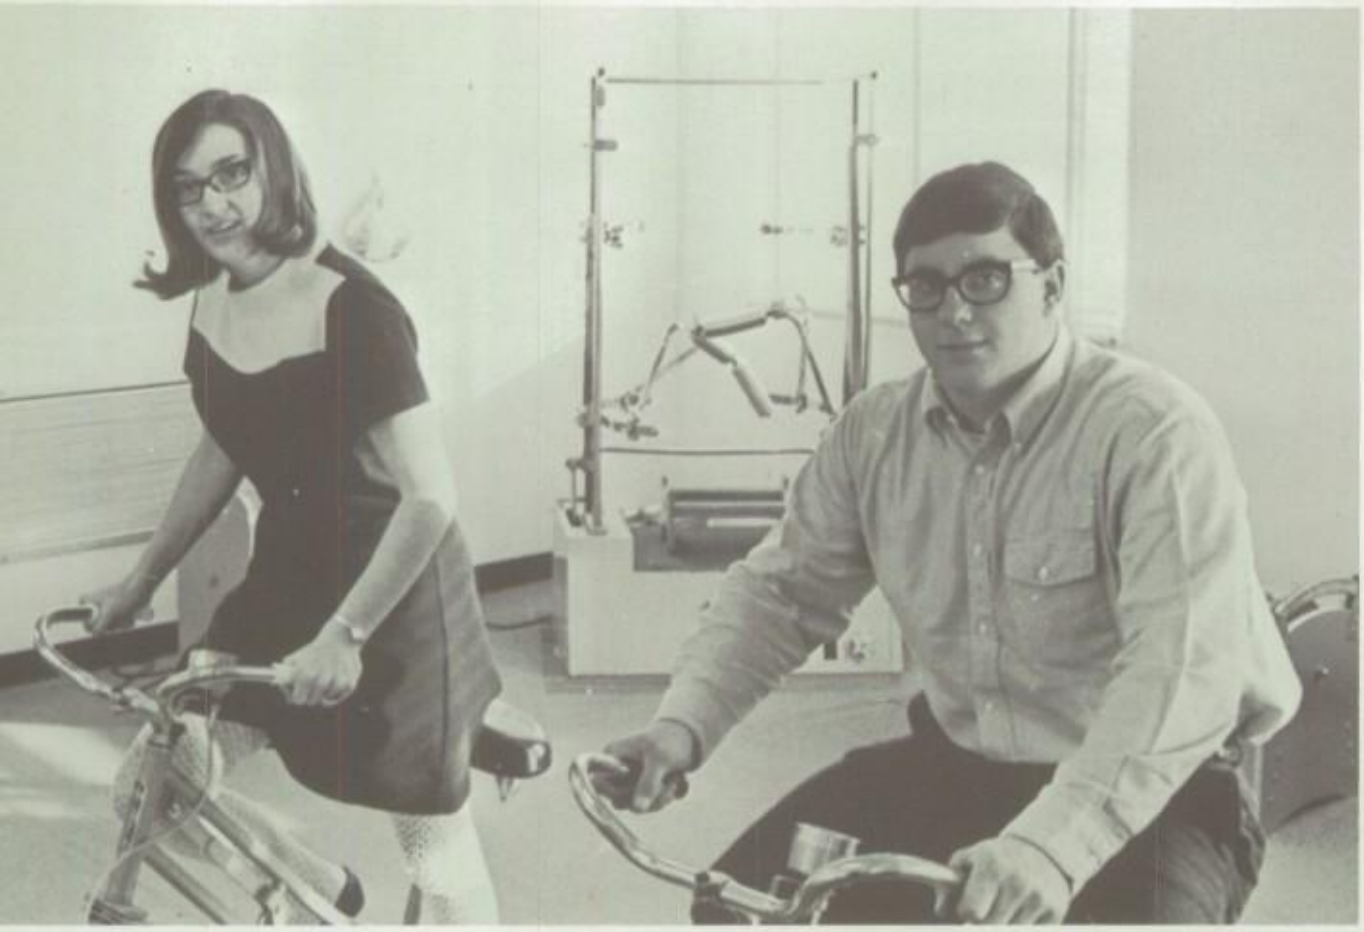
Well-rounded Steve Collums and Linda Biggs are "Best All-Around" seniors.

"Most Likely to Succeed" are accomplishing seniors, Kay Tankersley and Jimmy Coleman.

Seniors chose artistic Maura Flanagan and skilled John Potts as "Most Talented".

Vivacious senior, Karen Indorf and energetic (dynamic) senior, Bill Warmath, are chosen "Most School Spirited".

Hall of Fame



Sporting Beverly McCormick and Rick Edwards are selected as "Most Athletic".

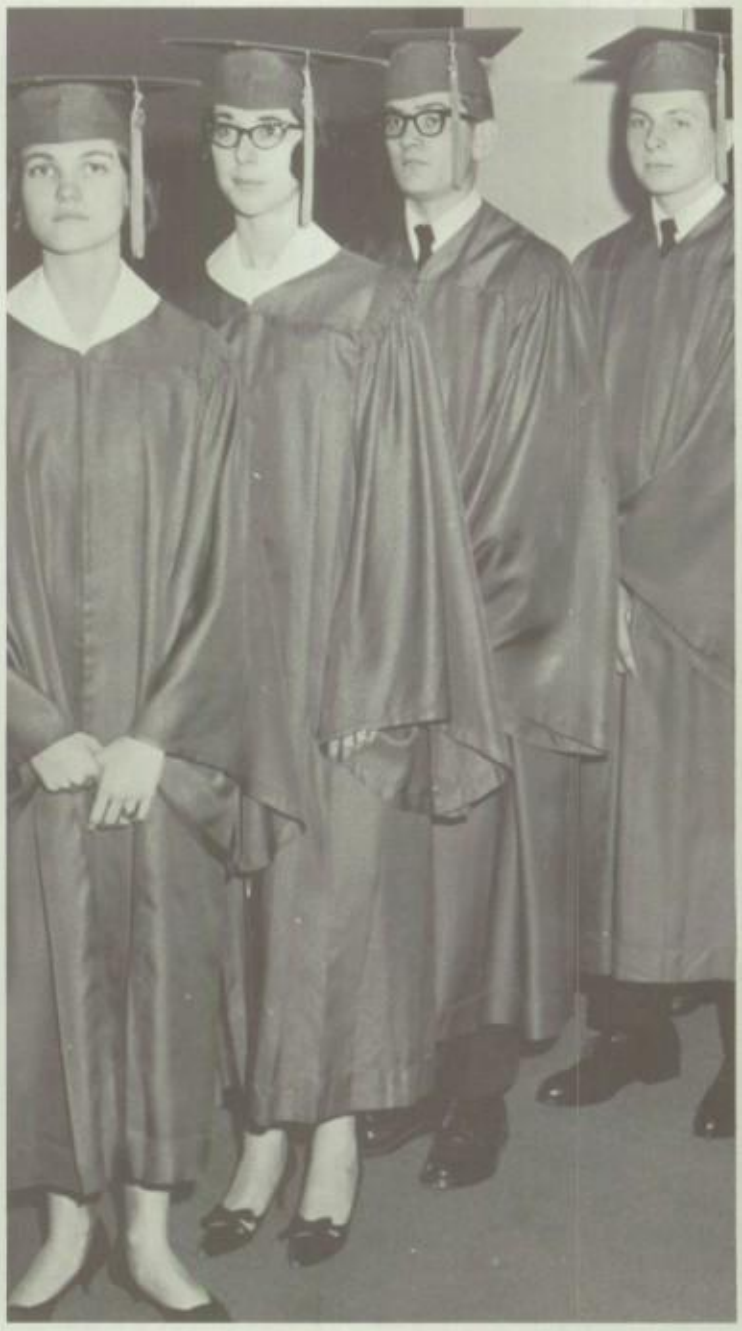
Elected "Most Attractive" are David Didier and Debbie Hicks.

These outstanding and versatile "Hall of Fame" seniors now walk toward the future, a confident step to even brighter days of tomorrow.

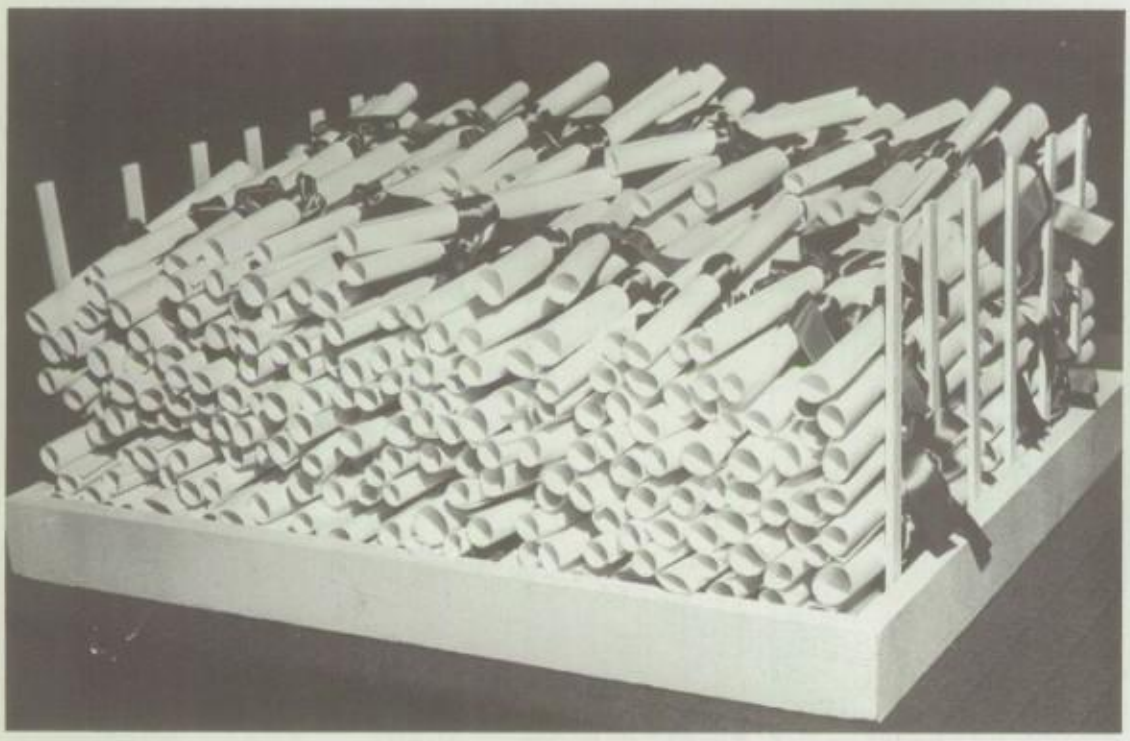
It Was a Very Good Year

"A FUNNY THING HAPPENED ON THE WAY TO GRADUATION." This was more than just the theme for the senior luncheon, it is descriptive of our year 1968. It describes all of the things that go together to make the memories of the joys, the tears, and the laughter. Traditional senior spirit stick given to the juniors. Big "kids" day . . . tricycle race with only two tricycles . . . senior skip day letters . . . Sardis . . . that senior look of unconcern that getting out of school brings . . . Tiny Tim alias Sid . . . Mr. Hewlett's favorite funnies. Although these events of whim and fancy which we experienced on the way to graduation will long be cherished. Other things of a more solemn nature will also be remembered as a part of our senior year. The dedication of the Viet Nam plaque and the moving speeches heard the day it was presented . . . tornado . . . 18" snow . . . seemingly endless curfew . . . and the final realization that it's really over.

BACCALAUREATE
Bellevue Baptist Church
May 12, 1968



This was the first time we were brought together as a group in one place—the immense, beautiful Bellevue Baptist Church. The importance of the situation was sensed as five hundred seniors filed down the aisles to fill the entire middle section of the church. This speaker, our friends, our teachers, and our parents were all gathered to challenge us to face our futures, Baccalaureate, May 12, 1968, was an introduction to this new phase of our lives.



Most people don't realize how much planning and preparation a graduation takes. Seniors must successfully complete the course of study, invitations must be ordered and sent, arrangements must be made for caps and gowns, speeches must be prepared, and the whole program must be practiced.

It was an absurd sight to see five hundred seniors marching to Pomp and Circumstance in shorts, sandals, and mini dresses.

There are many things these diplomas do not say. When the presentation proves to be worth all the planning and preparation, we realize that the diploma is a record of achievement of our completed high school education.

Seniors

The Senior Class of 1968 is leaving all the people, places, and things it has known for three years at Overton: the pep rallies, football games, basketball games, assembly programs, research papers, college placement tests, favorite teachers and friends. It is leaving much behind, but also taking with it stores of experiences, knowledge, and pride that it has acquired for the uncertain future.

How could anyone forget his junior year at Overton? This is the year when you finally reach the magic age of sixteen. A driver's license opens up a new world to you. PSAT scores ... the Scarlet Letter ... Senior rings —these are only a small part of your junior year. New opportunities are opened to you every day as you prepare for and anxiously await the arrival of your Senior year. Remember college night? ... the chemistry lab? ... Algebra II? ... the day we were fitted for our Senior rings? ... the day they finally arrived? These are some of the cherished memories we will never forget as we look back on our junior year at Overton and become the "Class of '69."

Well, here they are! They finally made it to Overton. Who are we talking about? Why, the Sophomore Class, of course. As the Class of 70 continues through high school, they will always remember that first frightening day; Caesar and his Ides of March; exams that lasted two hours; pep rallies and the competition cheers; and finally getting to drive a car to school.

All of the sophomores are well on their way to becoming true Rebels, but several are outstanding already. These are the 67-68 Sophomore Class officers. They are Richard Blount, Sergeant-at-Arms; Debbie Crain, Chaplain; Margo Fienup, Secretary-Treasurer; Vicki Kennedy, Vice-President; and Mike Mashburn, President.

Rebel Rouser Staff

To the average student these words resemble nothing short of a mass confusion of gobbledygook. To the nineteen members of the REBEL ROUSER staff the same phrases have become the normal lingo for at least one hour of every day. For that hour of concentrated effort staff members work toward their goal of producing a newspaper that will please the approximate 1700 students of Overton High School. That is a lot to ask of fellow students, but the Rouser staff has succeeded in producing a newspaper of which Overton students can be proud.

(Upper) Editors Kay Edington and Sue Krohn prepare the layout for one of the 1968 issues of the REBEL ROUSER.

Rebel Staff . . .

The preparation of a yearbook is a long, tedious, fun-filled, and challenging task. Created to record the history of Overton, the REBEL will be treasured for years after leaving high school.

The nineteen members of the staff spent the summer selling ads to help pay for the production of the book. When school started, sections were assigned and a short clinic was held to teach the new members the art of laying out a yearbook. By using new techniques and special effects, the 1968 REBEL Staff produced a new and different yearbook.

It was a year of hard work, disagreements and overdue deadlines, but the staff pulled through and many long-lasting friendships were made.
